BOW TORN AWAY, the 8,000-ton Marie Skou of Danish registry, was towed into port here today after midnight collision with 40,000-ton Japanese freighter Chitose Maru. They met head-on in Strait of Juan de Fuca. No one was hurt but both ships were crippled. Japanese ship was expected to arrive off Royal Roads later today. Fog and smoke blanketed the strait. Socred MP Swings Over To Liberals

'National Party At End of Line'

OLSON
... Alberta member

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—H. A. Olson, MP for Medicine Hat, has quit the Social Credit Party and has written Prime Minister Pearson seeking a berth with the Liberals.

He told a press conference today that "for all practical purposes" the national Social Credit Party is dead.

The 42-year-old Olson said his choice was partly dictated by his commitment at the 1965 election to his constituents to "assist the government in properly governing the country."

A spokesman said Mr. Pearson's comment on Mr. Olson's decision was:

"I am delighted."

It was expected that Mr. Olson's application to sit with government supporters will go before the caucus of MPs and senators this weekend.

If admitted to the ranks of government supporters in the Commons, he would be the only Alberta Liberal. He would be the second Liberal in the three Prairie provinces. The only one now is Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet, member for St. Boniface, Manitoba.

HAS HOPES

This, Mr. Olson said, and other factors lead him to hope he would have an equal opportunity with other government supporters of being appointed to the cabinet. However, he had no comments, formal or informal, on that score.

Mr. Olson said that although he is seeking to join the ranks of the Liberals, he doesn't renounce the monetary doctrines of Social Credit.

"I think there is a great deal of validity in Social Credit monetary proposals. But one of the greatest problems we have had . . . is explanation of them by some self-appointed spokesmen who don't really understand what they are talking about."

Mr. Olson's departure reduces the Social Credit group in the 265-seat commons to four from five under interim leader A. B. Patterson, MP for Fraser Valley.

Mr. Olson cited five reasons in a press release for deciding the Social Credit Party is "dead."

These included decisions taken at the party's national council meeting in Edmonton Sept. 11-12 to close down the national office here and wind up its monthly publication, Focus.

He said his reasons also cover the publication by Premier Manning of Alberta of his book, Political Realignment: A Challenge to Thoughtful Canadians.

It called on Social Credit supporters to assist in reorganizing one of the two major political parties.

Mr. Olson said he has sent Premier Manning a copy of a letter to Mr. Patterson, resigning from the party and all appointments in the party caucus.

Mr. Olson said he plans to tell his constituents in a broadcast later this week of his decision and the reason for it.

ENDORSE VIEWS?

He said he doesn't think his constituency association executive and council endorse the views of Mr. Manning, widely interpreted as a bid to marry Social Credit and the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Olson was asked whether he will seek re-election to the Commons at the next general election as a Liberal.

"Probably," he replied.

He anticipated some difficulty in winning. The easiest course probably would have been to join the Conservatives because the combined Social Credit and PC vote in his riding represented about 85 per cent of the total votes cast.

He said he had informal invitations at various times to join

MORE COMING?

Manning Book Blamed

By JOHN MIKA

Shocked B.C. Social Crediters today are braced to see more Social Credit MPs cross the floor of parliament behind H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat).

But acting national leader Alex Patterson (SC — Fraser Valley), told the Times in a telephone interview from Ottawa that he doesn't think there will be any more disaffections although he can't speak for his colleagues until they have a caucus next Monday.

Mr. Patterson admitted that each of the five Socred MPs last week told the party's national council they were extremely distressed that Premier Manning's recent book urging realignment of the Tory and Socred parties had put them in a virtually untenable position.

He said none of the five at the time threatened to quit, not even Mr. Olson.

'WE CAN SURVIVE'

"As far as I know, I'll be remaining with the party," the acting leader said. "I believe if we can survive this latest blow—Mr. Manning's book primarily but also the loss of Mr. Olson—we will be able to continue."

Later Mr. Patterson emphasized that he has "no plans to switch to another party but I have not discussed this with the others since the news about Mr. Olson. I would not anticipate they would join the Liberals but this whole thing will be under discussion when he meet Monday morning."

Premier Bennett declined to make any comment and Herbert Bruch, provincial MLA for Esquimalt and national party president, could not be located for comment.

But B.C. Social Credit League president George Driedigger in Vancouver made it clear that some are braced to see more join Mr. Olson.

"I regret to see Mr. Olson leave because in my estimation he was and remains one of the

Roblin Gets Offer To Run in Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba has been offered the Progressive Conservative nomination in the Nov. 6 federal by-election in Jasper-Edson.

Dr. Hugh Horner, who resigned his federal seat to enter Alberta politics last May, said today the constituency association had writeen Mr. Roblin and was awaiting his reply.

"If Mr. Roblin does not run here, we have several excellent men who will contest the nomination," Dr. Horner said.

Mr. Roblin has said that if he were to seek a seat in the Commons, he would be interested in representing a Manitoba constituency.

Former Mayor William Hawrelak of Edmonton said today he had been asked by several persons to contest the byelection for the Liberals.

Whoever wins the seat will not hold it for long. It will disappear under redistribution.

MANITOBA MP WOULD RESIGN

MINNEDOSA, Man. (CP)—Progressive Conservative MP J. Nicholas Mandziuk said today he is prepared to resign his seat in Marquette constituency, if Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin wishes to run for Parliament.

'MAY GOD BLESS HER'

Queen Elizabeth II Name for New Liner

From AP-Reuters

CLYDEBANK, Scotland — The Queen cracked a magnum of champagne on the graceful bows of Britain's great new ocean liner today and launched it into the River Clyde with the name millions were waiting to hear—her own, Queen Elizabeth II.

An emotional roar erupted from 30,000 throats as the Cunarder glided down the slipway and set up a huge wave across the river.

"May God bless her and all who sail in her," said the Queen.

The name of the ship had been kept secret until now. She had been known only as Q4.

The 58,000-ton craft slipped down into the Clyde cheered by 9,000 shipyard workers and a large gallery of notables.

Until the Queen pronounced the ship's name, just before shattering the champagne bottle across its bow, only three other persons were in on the secret.

Speculation on what this successor to the Cunard line's Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth would be called had kept newspaper readers agog and bookmakers busy.

The list of possible names included Sir Winston Churchill, Princess Margaret and Princess Anne. But the Queen Elizabeth was high in the betting.

The liner took to the water carrying Cunard's hopes of achieving a profit in place of the present crushing loss it suffers on the North Atlantic passenger run.

The ship also bears a heavy load of debt. Public funds to the tune of nearly £24,000,000 ($72,000,000), have been borrowed towards its cost of about £30,000,000 ($90,000,000).

As the launching neared, the Queen, surrounded by members of the Royal Family including Prince Philip and Princess Margaret, had to wait for 15 seconds while a fault in the microphones was fixed.

After announcing the name, the Queen had another anxious wait. She pressed the launching button and nothing happened.

Millions of television viewers shared her anxiety. Sounds of hammering were heard for a moment. And then, 2½ minutes later, the liner began gliding away.

At 58,000 tons the new liner is no giant compared with Mary's 81,237 and the Eilzabeth's 82,997. But with the use of weight-saving alloys, her accommodation is comparable—2,000 passengers on the Atlantic, 1,500 while cruising.

Her twin screws, powered by steam turbines, will keep her steady at 28½ knots, no faster than the Mary, but she uses only half the fuel.

Her first commander, Capt. William Warwick, 58, will have a computer that will help his crew set course, watch over the engines, and even keep check on the stockrooms and passengers' bar bills.

AT UBCM MEET

'Tom Terrific' May Explode

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

PRINCE GEORGE—Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell and the Union of British Columbia Municipalities are locked on a collision course.

"Tom Terrific," as he's known on the Lower Mainland, thundered into Prince George this morning with a sweeping denunciation of the 64-year-old organization of municipal governments and a demand that Vancouver and Victoria have a greater say in UBCM affairs.

His scathing criticism of what he termed "the rurally-oriented mouthpiece of the provincial government" will hit the convention floor late Friday afternoon.

'COOLLY ALOOF'

Victoria's Mayor Hugh Stephen will support Mayor Campbell's demands—but holds himself coolly aloof from the flamboyant tactics of Vancouver's chief magistrate.

Mayor Campbell, who earlier this week threatened to pull Vancouver out of the UBCM, admitted in an interview today his first thoughts were a tactical error.

"I don't want to ruin the UBCM," he said. "I shall not advocate that Vancouver pull out. But I shall demand that the Lower Mainland and Greater Victoria have a greater say in matters affecting urban areas.

METRO BRANCH

"It is my view that it would be relatively simple for the UBCM to establish within the present organization a branch strictly devoted to the problems affecting metropolitan areas.

"This organization is wasting too much time discussing and debating problems which are of no importance whatsoever to the cities in which the majority of the people of this province live.

Mayor Stephen said he is gratified that Mayor Campbell had reconsidered his earlier decision to pull out of the UBCM.

"It is quite obvious that a city cannot be effective in absentia. The UBCM is in dire need of a forceful and useful opinion.

"I am totally in agreement with Mayor Campbell that the problems facing municipalities in B.C. are so diverse that specific representation of urbanized areas is essential."

Mayor Stephen said that by 1980 four of every five Cana-

Beulah Slams Texas With 120-mph Blast

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI) — Hurricane Beulah smashed south Texas with 120-mile-per-hour winds today and drove northwest, veering inland from her expected coastal path and "weakening rapidly" but still spinning off tornadoes and rain that killed six persons.

The weather bureau said Beulah's centre was about nine miles north of Harlingen and moving northwest while "weakening quite rapidly" as her eye passed over land.

Earlier a veteran hurricane hunter pilot after flying through the eye reported:

Forecasters said "all precautions" should be continued along the threatened Texas coast, where 30,000 persons had been driven from their homes 163 miles up to Corpus Christi.

Five persons were killed by tornadoes that sprang up in Beulah's path from the coast 100 miles inland, and a man was drowned when a car overturned in a river near Edna, Tex., swollen by 10 inches of rain.

Beulah had killed 36 persons —18 in the Caribbean, 11 in Mexico's Yucatan Penisula and seven in Texas, including the victims today and a 15-year-old girl who vanished while surfing Tuesday.

Brownsville on the tip of Texas was a shambles of unroofed buildings, snapped and flashing power lines and shattered windows. No deaths were reported, however.

Uprooted citrus trees and fruit from a $15 million orange and grapefruit crop littered the sodden ground in the lower Rio Grande valley. Shrimp boats sank off Brownsville's port and small craft and tankers ripped loose and floated free.

Corpus Christi braced for the storm while palm trees bent double in Beulah's vanguard of 60-mile-per-hour gales. Mountainous waves crashed on the breakfront and inundated the extreme northern tip of the city.

Along the coast and inland tornadoes sprang up in Beulah's path — so many that radar trackers could not keep count.

The Red Cross said more than 30,000 persons were in shelters along the coast, including 16,000 in Corpus Christi.

Beulah's winds, estimated at 175 miles per hour when she smashed into Brownsville early today, had weakened to 120 miles per hour. But she could still turn out to be one of the

3 Federal Byelections Called for November 6

Ridings concerned are Colchester-Hants in Nova Scotia, where Conservative skipper Robert Stanfield will seek election t the Commons; Bonavista-Twillingate in Newfoundland and Jasper-Edson in Alberta.

The last may be the most interesting of the three. All parties will be anxious to see how loyal the Prairies will remain to the Conservatives now that John Diefenbaker has been deposed as leader.

Nomination day in Colchester-Hants will be Monday, Oct. 23. The Liberal association in the riding has not yet decided whether to field a candidate against Mr. Stanfield. The New Democratic Party has already opted out.

It is being suggested by some Liberal sources here that if the Liberals do not put up an official candidate, a ginger Liberal group in Colchester-Hants might do so.

Colchester-Hants was held by Conservative Cyril Kennedy from 1953 until last week when he resigned to give Mr. Stanfield an opening to the Commons, which will reconvene Sept. 25.

Nomination day in Bonavista-Twillingate and Jasper-Edson wil be Tuesday, Oct. 10. Normally it would be the previous day but Oct. 9 is Thanksgiving, a statutory holiday.

The Newfoundland riding was left vacant Monday by the departure from the Commons and cabinet of Transport Minister Pickersgill. The riding has been Liberal since Newfoundland joined Confederation in 1949 and Mr. Pickersgill has held it since 1953.

It is believed that Charles Granger, former Liberal MP for Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador and a former aide to Mr. Pickersgill will seek his party's nomination in Bonavista-Twillingate.

Dr. Horner had held the seat

dians will be living in urban areas.

"In order to face up to the problems that situation will bring it becomes increasingly obvious that the urban areas must have a strong and united voice."

Mayor Stephen also agreed the UBCM is rurally oriented and added he is strongly in favor of Mayor Campbell's suggestion that reorganization must take place and take place soon.

Mayor Campbell said that it is ridiculous to try and run the UBCM on a $25,000 a year budget.

"How can the president of the UBCM come from a community like Williams Lake and be expected to efficiently lead cities like Vancouver and Victoria with their $40 million and $16 million annual budgets?"

The president of the UBCM this year is Mayor H. J. Gardner of Williams Lake.

He presented his annual report to the UBCM this morning. It was described by Mayor Campbell as a "tragic documentation of the futile efforts of the UCBM.

"I do not make this statement as a personal criticism of Mayor Gardner. I am sure he has done his best but his report states very clearly what I am talking about. It is full of words like 'frustrating' and 'stonewall' and it is obvious that this man, leading this organization, was unable to get to the provincial government."

Mayor Campbell said that he anticipates trouble in getting the opportunity to address the convention.

'I WILL WIN'

"They don't want to hear this sort of criticism," he said. "Privately, they all agree with what I'm saying but they don't want to rock the boat and prefer to continue in their own placid way. But they have to listen to me. And they will. I do not expect to win the fight this year, but win it I will."

Mayor Campbell will attempt to introduce several late resolutions from Vancouver Friday afternoon. He expects his request to be rejected by the delegates.

"But it will give me the opportunity to say to the convention what I am saying this morning."

finest MPs in the whole House," said Mr. Driedigger. "I just wish he hadn't left us at this particular time."

Mr. Driedigger said Premier Manning's book put all the party's federal members into a seriously difficult situation and "each of them is assessing his personal position and making a decision.

"I have no criticism to launch against any of our members who might make the same decision as Mr. Olson's. It's a personal decision."

Mr. Driedigger said he did not know as a fact that any more MPs would quit the party, "but we knew the book was going to cause us difficulties."

He said he was certain that whatever happens federally, it will not "hurt us provincially one bit."

But Mr. Driedigger said he has invited each of the five MPs to the B.C. provincial convention Nov. 2 and 3 in Vancouver "so they can outline their positions to us on this matter.

"I have no doubt they are very concerned (about the Manning book). They expressed that concern at the national council meeting on the 12th and 13th."

History shows that setbacks and victories by the federal wings have little effect on the provincial wings of all Canadian parties, he said.

"When the Diefenbaker administration collapsed it did not affect the Tory provincial administrations. The same is true for the Liberals and the same is true for us.

"It is almost impossible to project federal situations into provincial politics and vice versa. Davie Fulton's rejection in his own province as provincial leader and the CCF defeats in Saskatchewan have proved that."

GREATLY CONCERNED

"There is no doubt we are all greatly concerned about the impact of Mr. Manning's book but we realize that he called for a realignment only if the Conservatives would completely reorganize their party, "Mr. Patterson said.

"I don't think they have given any indication they are prepared to reform—in fact the whole proposition has received a very cool reception from the Tory spokesmen," said Mr. Patterson.

He said he was not planning to leave because, despite Mr. Olson's charges that the national party is dead, "I don't see any indication yet that it is prepared to fold up and in that context I have no plans to fold up either."

But he added that future courses of action will hinge on decisions that will be made at the impending national convention on Socred constitution and policy in January.

He denied Mr. Olson's statement that the national office has been abolished.

"We decided (at last week's council meeting) to suspend its operations but we are retaining the office, and my personal feeling is that the convention will decide to resume operation of the national office."

Mr. Driedigger said the party's headquarters in Ottawa was given up but only because the rent was too high and new quarters are being sought. He said the national newsletter "Focus" was going out of publication because "it has operated in the red for years."

On his way to lunch, Premier Bennett brushed off reporters with a terse remark that the party "is not dead federally or provincially."

Attorney-General Bonner said despite Mr. Olson's resignation he saw "no signs of the party's demise" and contended it was undergoing a resurgence in B.C. and through Western Canada generally.

the Conservatives. Mr. Olson read portions of his letter to Prime Minister Pearson informing him of the decision to apply for status as a Liberal.

It was dated Sept. 20 and was sent to Mr. Pearson shortly before the Olson press conference was called.

The Commons standing is: Liberals 130, Progressive Conservatives 94, NDP 22, Creditistes 8, Social Credit 5, Independents 3, vacant 3.

Mr. Olson's departure would leave four Social Credit MPs and raise the Liberal figure to 131, if he is accepted by the party.

Mr. Olson issued a press release which appeared to be almost word for word the contents of his letter to Mr. Patterson. It said in part:

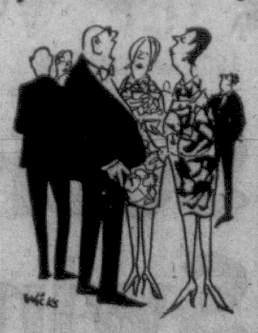

"From my observations, the leaders of the Social Credit League of Alberta will continue to pursue the course of seeking an accommodation or 'marriage' with the Progressive Conservative party.

"My convictions and conscience, in keeping with the commitments I have made to the people of my constituency, prohibit me from endorsing or supporting this course."

Many buildings in the little town of Palacios were levelled by the tornadoes to splintered planks sticking up two feet above the foundations.

Windows were blown out of buildings and cars throughout Brownsville. Shattered glass, planks and sheets of plywood nailed against windows ripped loose by the wind shot through the air.

BIG FOUR MEETING?

UN Pressed To Concentrate On Mideast

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The UN General Assembly's new president called on the 122 member states to embark today on a study aimed at finding a "lasting solution" to the Middle East problem.

Corneliu Manescu, foreign minister of Romania, is the first Communist to be assembly president. He was elected Tuesday in a secret ballot with 122 votes for him to one for Tanzanian Ambassador John W. S. Malecela.

The assembly's prime duty, said Manescu, 51, is "to concentrate its efforts upon a thorough study of this the Middle East problem that could lead to a lasting solution in keeping with the vital interests of the peoples of that region."

The dispute was handed to the assembly by the emergency session that met after the six-day June war between Israel and the Arabs but could agree on no solutions. The Middle East dilemma headed the list of 96 items on the proposed agenda for the 22nd session.

Other key issues were the problem of substituting UN for South African control in South-West Africa, the question of seating Communist China and the means of achieving disarmament.

Britain's Brown Arrives Today

A Big Four discussion on the Middle East is a possibility with the arrival in New York of foreign ministers from the Soviet Union, France, Britain and the United States.

British Foreign Secretary George Brown arrives today and U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk is expected Sunday night. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is already in New York and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville is due tonight.

The Soviet Union, however, turned down a French proposal last spring, for a Big Four summit on the Middle East.

UN Secretary-general U Thant suggested Tuesday that the Security Council hold a private meeting among foreign ministers at the assembly to seek a consensus on peace issues within UN competence.

Canada's external affairs minister, Paul Martin, in an interview outside the assembly chamber, said "there is no doubt that the UN's image is tarnished." However, he added:

"I feel strongly that it is valid to make the distinction between the organization and the members of the organization. What is wrong is not the UN but the background of world events against which the UN operates and the attitude taken toward UN obligations by some members."

This echoed the oft-expressed complaint of Thant that disregard by some members of the UN charter and basic differences between the major powers, particularly the Soviet Union and the United States, work against the United Nations.

Thant's Report Pleases Martin

Martin said he was particularly pleased that Thant, in his annual report, "came out so strongly" in favor of a UN peacekeeping role, emphasizing "the very points that for three years we have been espousing."

Thant, in reference to peacekeeping, said that the inability to agree on "guidelines and ground rules" for a UN force is due to fundamental differences on the interpretation of the UN charter with regard to UN activity in behalf of peace.

Manescu told a news conference Tuesday he thought little could be done in the United Nations "to the benefit of peace" in Vietnam.

He said the war should be negotiated through the Geneva agreements and explained that putting Vietnam on the assembly agenda depends on the stand taken by North Vietnam. That nation has come out against UN involvement.

Some observers saw Tuesday's Cuban walkout, and the nursing argument between the U.S. and Russia over its cause, as an indication of the shape of things to come in this session.

Six Cuban delegates left the hall protesting that an agreement on diplomatic immunity was violated when U.S. immigration authorities in Nassau, the Bahamas, insisted on inspecting the baggage of other Cubans on their way to New York for the session.

U.S. delegate Arthur Goldberg denied the allegation and said the Cubans did not claim immunity for some wooden crates.

Russian representative Nikolai Fedorenko supported the Cuban protest, saying the U.S. behavior could not be condoned.

LEADER OUSTER SOUGHT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America said Tuesday he will fight for the ouster of the leaders of the B.C. Federation of Labor he said were responsible for the suspension of four IWA locals earlier this year.

Syd Thompson made the statement at a meeting of the Vancouver Labor Council.

Locals at Vancouver, Victoria and Duncan and the Lumber Inspectors local were suspended in June for refusing to retract statements made about Joe Morris, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Mr. Morris was accused of meddling in B.C. labor affairs by some IWA executives, including Mr. Thompson.

"The people responsible for the suspensions should resign," Mr. Thompson said. "With this blunder they no longer have the right to hold a seat. We intend to do everything in our power to see what can be done about it."

The suspensions were lifted two weeks ago on a recommendation from the CLC.

Marijuana Use Climbs

VANCOUVER (CP)—Use of marijuana in Vancouver is increasing, according to police statistics released Tuesday. In the first eight months this year arrests doubled the total for all of 1966.

THIRD CHILD LOST IN YEAR

EAST DOVER, Vt. (AP) — For the third time in 10 months, Mr. and Mrs. John Goode have lost a child by drowning.

Their five-year-old son, James, fell into the family swimming pool Tuesday. The father found the body.

PETERSON REJECTS PRESIDENT'S PROTEST

'Split Vote' Set for IWA in Interior

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said Tuesday night he will not delay a government-supervised strike vote among northern interior members of the International Woodworkers of America.

Mr. Peterson was replying to a request from IWA regional president Jack Moore that northern and southern interior workers vote at the same time and that the voting day be set back until the employers involved in the dispute make clear their positions on an industrial inquiry report prepared by Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe of the B.C. Supreme Court.

Mr. Moore accused Mr. Peterson of undue delay following receipt of the Munroe Report.

"I told Mr. Moore that I instructed the department of labor to hold the vote as expeditiously as possible," Mr. Peterson said. "Preparatory work to holding the vote has already been done and cannot suddenly be changed.

"It has always been the practise to take the southern and northern votes separately. I have asked the employers to make their positions known prior to the vote being taken.

"FAIR AND IMPARTIAL"

The government announced earlier Tuesday that the vote by northern workers would be held this Friday and the voting date for the southern workers was expected to be Sept. 29.

The northern interior and southern interior workers are seeking wage parity with the coastal workers. Parity for the interior workers would give them a 50-cent hourly pay raise. Mr. Justice Munroe recommended a 44-cent an hour increase in a two-year contract and other proposals which fell short of parity.

The IWA described the separate votes as a move to divide what is one dispute into two disputes and a move to use the northern vote to influence the southern vote.

A labor department official said the separate votes are an administrative problem.

POINTS OUTLINED

Mr. Moore outlined four major points of contention in the separate votes:

—The northern local got only two days notice of the date before the vote and it will be difficult to provide scrutineers because of the long distances involved.

—The main issues are the same in both areas and one vote should not be used to influence the other.

—The union is entitled to reasonable consultation in fixing a convenient date since it was the employers who asked for the government vote.

—The employers haven't declared acceptance or rejection of the Munroe Report and workers who voted against a strike would mean acceptance of the employers' terms.

Meanwhile, the strike by 500 IWA members employed by Celgar Ltd. at Castlegar continues. The company did not apply for a government supervised strike vote and bargained independently from other Interior lumber operators. In addition, 320 members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada honored picket lines at the Celgar mill.

U.K. Impaired Drivers Warned of Crackdown

By DAVID MILLER

LONDON (CP)—The dos and don'ts of Britain's tough, new drinking-driving law were announced Tuesday night and Transport Minister Barbara Castle warned she means business with the compulsory alcohol tests for suspect drivers.

To get the point across to Britain's 13,500,000 motorists, Mrs. Castle plans a £350,000 ($1,050,000) publicity program—the most costly road safety advertising campaign ever organized.

The Road Safety Act will go into effect Oct. 9 and from that date it will be an offence for anyone to drive, attempt to drive or be in charge of a motor vehicle when more than 80 milligrams of alcohol are shown in 100 millilitres of his blood.

An indication of the toughness of the new act is the provision that anyone who refuses to take the alcohol tests when asked is liable to the same penalties as if the tests were made and proved positive—as well as an additional £50 ($150) fine.

At a press conference Tuesday night, Mrs. Castle called the new legislation "pretty tough" and said it will be enforced to the letter.

LIQUOR A FACTOR

Mrs. Castle predicted 150 to 240 deaths and 1,750 accidents could be prevented every year if Britons respond to the new law. Statistics show that liquor plays a part in nearly 30,000 road accidents a year, including 13,000 fatal and serious mishaps.

1. If a driver commits a moving traffic offence such as crossing the white line or exceeding the speed limit;
2. If police suspect from his behavior that a driver has been drinking alcohol;
3. If a driver is involved in an accident.

There the driver is asked to submit to a blood or urine test which measures alcohol in the blood. Failure to pass either test could mean drinking charges resulting in suspension of licence for a year, fines up to £150 ($300) or imprisonment for four months.

If the driver refuses either the breath or blood test, he faces the same penalties as drunken drivers plus the additional fine.

Fish Experts From Russia To Visit Coast

Tuesday the group visited fisheries department headquarters here and held discussions with Fisheries Minister Robichaud and his deputy, Dr. A. W. H. Needler. The two Canadians made a tour of Russian fishing areas earlier this year.

The visitors will stop in Winnipeg today for a tour of the freshwater fisheries institute there before flying on to Vancouver. They are to visit the Vancouver aquarium and a fisheries research station Thursday.

Friday they will be at Nanaimo, and on Saturday they will inspect a salmon development project in the Prince George, region. They fly to Regina Sunday and return to Ottawa Monday.

Veins for the Lifeblood

IN ITS EFFORTS TO URGE CANada on to greater economic efficiency, the Economic Council of Canada stresses the need for our manufactures to be produced more cheaply and with better quality. A chapter in the Council's fourth annual report, published last weekend, suggests that one method of achieving this would be for Canada to specialize more, to produce the things we can make well and at lower cost than other countries and, conversely, to stop trying to manufacture things we could buy at a lower price abroad.

By doing this, the Council says, Canadian producers would avoid the short production runs which result in higher unit costs and the nation's productivity would be enhanced. But how is a shift in emphasis to be accomplished when approximately 60 per cent of Canada's manufacturing capacity is foreign-controlled and basic policy is made outside the country? The council sees an opportunity for more specialization when the Kennedy Round tariff reductions come into full effect as this will "provide opportunities for a very subsantial expansion in commerce in manufactured products." This "opportunity" for specialization will be more like acute necessity.

When, for instance, American-manufactured goods can enter Canada free of tariffs, the branch plants manufacturing these items in this country—at a higher cost because of the shorter production runs—may well become redundant. They might more profitably be closed down to enhance further the lower unit cost of the parent plants.

One way out of the dilemma would be to extend the principle of the Canada-United States auto free trade agreement into any areas of manufacturing where it would be mutually profitable. It must be recognized, however, that with the tariff barriers coming down anyway, Canada now has much less leverage with which to entice American manufacturers into similar deals. Additionally, as recent events have shown, transferring into Canada jobs which American workers could do across the border is proving unpalatable to both politicians and trade unionists in the United States.

The council in its report states that firm conclusions are difficult to come by on this problem because of a dearth of solid statistical data.

Since the survival of Canadian manufacturing is so important, and since the time left in which to map out a future course is relatively short, a major effort should be made to assemble data and evolve a program which will help to ensure Canada a viable manufacturing economy. This will supplement our natural resources production which by itself will not provide sufficient employment for a growing working force.

Vancouver and the UBCM

VANCOUVER'S MAYOR CAMPbell has revived some old arguments in his discussion of the possible withdrawal of the province's largest city from the Union of British Columbia Municipalities. He points out that Vancouver operates under its own charter while other members of the union function under the Municipal Act. He also notes that, on a population basis, Vancouver is seriously under-represented on the UBCM, and its problems are metropolitan — largely dissociated from the concerns of most other members.

All this is true. The mayor may also be correct in his assertion that "if Vancouver had the power it deserves, it might make the UBCM effective." There is, however, one point Mr. Campbell overlooks in his statement of position. Vancouver, big as it is, belongs to that level of government occupied by the municipalities. While there are major differences between the administration of Vancouver and Vanderhoof, there are certain elements of similarity.

Both represent the form of government closest to the people and frequently in conflict with senior governments. They may disagree on the means that should be used to carry their cases to higher levels of administration, but they share a community of interest in their responsibility to residents within their jurisdictions.

Vancouver might lose very little by opting out. On the other hand, it once was a small town and should feel a responsibility toward other small towns which make up the administration centres of regions from which a great deal of Vancouver's wealth is drawn.

Hands on a New Throttle

COMMENTS ON THE APPOINTment of Mr. Jack Pickersgill to the presidency of the new transportation commission and consequent withdrawal from parliament vary substantially. There is, nevertheless, virtual unanimity on one point. His departure will remove from the House of Commons a man of outstanding ability and high political acumen.

Few in parliament are as knowledgeable as he regarding its usages. Few can challenge his mastery of political tactics or parliamentary procedure. And perhaps none has enjoyed so close and influential an association as he with two of Canada's most effective Prime Ministers, William Lyon Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent.

Jack Pickersgill brought the capabilities of a penetrating and incisive mind to parliament and to the departments he headed. Nimble in debate, witty, competent in the use of power, his achievements are widely recognized. Parliament is losing an impressive figure — on stage and off—and his going marks the passage from the Commons of one of the last of the "post-war" ministers.

Now or Never

THE ARBITRATION BOARD award of $1.2 millions for the McRae estate lies reasonably enough within the upper and lower prices proposed by the contending parties. While the municipality naturally must seek to get the best bargain it can for the expenditure of public money, it is equally clear that the McRae family should not be expected to make an undue contribution to the public domain.

While the sum mentioned is considerably more than the amount originally projected in the capital budget approved by Saanich voters, there can be no doubt that the property is essential to the proper development of the municipality's public amenities. To picture Victoria without Beacon Hill Park today is to picture Greater Victoria without the McRae parklands twenty or thirty years from now. By its nature and its location it should be a vital component of the "breathing space" which will become so essential as the Greater Victoria region builds up to a maximum population.

Future residents and councils undoubtedly would deplore — and justifiably — a failure to acquire this parkland today. Soon it will not be available at any price. Saanich council should make all necessary financial arrangements to ensure that the McRae property becomes park and recreation land—and also that once dedicated it will remain so for all time.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — By WILLIAM R. FRYE

U Thant Urges a Halt to the Bombing

UN Secretary-General U Thant is bringing maximum pressure on Washington to halt the bombing of North Vietnam. He contends that if it is halted, there can be "meaningful" peace talks with Hanoi in three to four weeks. If it continues, Thant says, Communist "volunteers" notably pilots, gunners and engineers — may be sent to fight with North Vietnam.

Frye

Thant applied this combination of carrot and stick to Washington in a news conference here on the eve of a new session of the 122-nation UN General Assembly which is due to debate Vietnam extensively, though it may not attempt to take any formal action.

Interest in possible peace moves has revived here in recent weeks as a result of these parallel developments:

● The United States has sounded out friendly members of the 15-nation UN Security Council on Council action urging a cease-fire and peace talks.

The reaction has been cool, and Washington is understood to have decided not to go ahead at this stage, except with a major new statement of policy to the General Assembly by United States delegate Arthur J. Goldberg tomorrow.

One major obstacle to fruitful Security Council action, in the view of several countries Goldberg consulted, is understood to have been President Johnson's unwillingness to halt the bombing without a corresponding de-escalation by the enemy on the ground.

Without an unconditional bombing halt, it was clear the United States did not have the UN votes to bring pressure on Moscow and Hanoi for a peace conference.

● Canadian External Affairs Minister Paul Martin is reported to have said North Vietnamese officials had expressed interest in peace talks. The word was said to have come originally from O. W. Dyer, a Canadian diplomat making soundings in Hanoi.

● "Reliable" North Vietnamese sources were quoted Thursday by Agence France Press as having said talks could follow in three to four weeks if the bombing stopped unconditionally.

American Fear

The deadlock continues to boil down, diplomats said, to American fear that a bomb halt would lead to prolonged and frustrating peace talks, with no result except to free the North Vietnamese from aerial pressure.

The war would go on, it is feared, the enemy having gained a military advantage.

Against this argument, Thant is posing these contentions:

1. That there will be a dangerous broadening of the war if the bombing continues. He cited "reports," thus far "unconfirmed," that there had been an "agreement between Hanoi and some of its sympathizers regarding provision to Hanoi of volunteer technicians, particularly air crew: like pilots, gunners, and engineers."

Thant declined to indentify the countries which might send "volunteers." He did not even specify whether he meant Red Chinese or Soviet bloc manpower, or both.

Original published reports of such an accord cited a supposed meeting of Soviet and Chinese officials in a South-China city, implying that both the rival Communist blocs planned to participate.

But there was no confirmation here from Communist sources, and other diplomats expressed skepticism, given the current state of Soviet-Chinese relations.

2. That a bomb halt can be tentative, not permanent, and by implication, that the raids could be resumed if the halt proved to be a trap.

Hanoi is asking that the bombing halt be "unconditional," that is, that there be no military quid pro quo from the Communist side, but is not saying it must be "permanent," Thant argued.

Official Washington doubts seriously that in fact, bombing could be resumed. Political pressure to continue the halt would be immense, it is argued, if peace talks, however unproductive, were in process.

3. That, in any event, it is the view of the "vast majority" of UN member countries that a halt ought to be tried.

This kind of pressure on President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who have insisted that they could not and would not stop "half the war," is likely to intensify tension between Thant and the administration.

Whether it will have any other practical effect, at least until a physical barrier between the two Vietnams can be depended upon to inhibit infiltration, is not clear.

HUMANITY

We carry all humanity, in its best and its worst, within ourselves. Unless we know that, then we do not understand ourselves, we do not understand our neighbours, and what we do is to emphasize our good sides and emphasize the bad sides of our neighbours; then we are satisfied. That is the root of nationalism, that is the root of all prejudices.

Dr. Erich Fromm, on the BBC.

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

An Abiding Debt to Dave Rogers

THE day was darkened for many in the Canadian newspaper community and far beyond it when word came through of the passing of Dave Rogers, former editor of the Leader-Post. He was my first boss, my neighbor in Regina and a friend so close that he was always "Uncle Dave" to my children, although we are not related. For me to write of him is not easy but I share with old colleagues a compulsion to say something going beyond the deserved tributes to him as editor and citizen.

Western

The Dave Rogers I knew was a very warm, human, rather uncomplicated man and a natural enemy of stuffed shirts. These memories are personal, altogether happy and not, I hope, of a character to cause any embarrassment to his family — else nothing would induce me to place them on paper.

Dave Rogers was a "newspaperman's newspaperman." In fact he launched a good many of us, now scattered far and wide inside and outside the profession. On our first meeting in Moose Jaw we became involved in argument over some historical point long since forgotten. By the time I had won it, Dave had signed me up as a reporter on the Leader-Post. There are men who can charm a bird from a bough. With the salaries of those days Dave had to charm reporters out of the most unpromising sage brush, and summon them he did.

News was his first love and he could never reconcile himself to the fetters of an editorial desk. He particularly disliked making the speeches expected of an editor. First, he employed me to ghost-write them. I had no objection to this until it came to him one day in a vivid flash that since I was writing them, I might as well deliver them too. One cannot be too careful with editors.

As newsman, Dave wanted to be where the action was. And so, in every press club, men and women today are recalling his great stories, his interview with Trotsky in island exile; his dash in and out of Canton at a critical stage in the Chinese civil war — one could go on endlessly.

Among the basic characteristics of every reporter of excellence are a native, searching curiousity and an intense, sympathetic interest in people. Dave had both in full measure. He came of a distinguished family (his brother, Norman McLeod Rogers, was war minister until his tragic death) and so it was natural that he should be on familiar terms with many of the great and near-great. But only a few of us knew that, in his occasional moments of despondency, it was his habit to seek the company of very humble men in a home for the aged in Regina.

Circus Fascination

Nothing aroused him to more boyish excitement than the arrival of a circus in town. He could never wait for performances but would drag me out to see the show being unloaded and the tents going up. After one such afternoon among the barkers and snake-charmers, the truth came out. We all have our frustrations and Dave's boyhood ambition, never forgotten, had been to run away from home to join the circus.

He had the instincts of a do-it-yourselfer coupled with certain theories frightening to his associates. On one occasion he succeeded in making the office radio work by removing an apparatus screwed to the back. This experience governed his later approach to machinery. Dave believed in a principle of subtraction. Once, after addressing some visiting firemen at the Assiniboia Club, he returned to a garage where his automobile was being repaired. Unfortunately the place was empty and parts strewn across the floor. This in no way deterred the editor of the Leader-Post who offered a number of interesting, if unflattering, comments about manufacturers and then drove off anyway.

The results, miraculously, were less than disastrous, confirming his view that he had stumbled on an important principle undreamed of by the schools.

Looking for the Body

Even more remarkable was the affair of the cistern. It happened that a previous owner of Dave's home had vanished mysteriously. The disappearance gave rise to many local rumors and someone developed the theory, a most unhappy one for the Rogers family, that the remains had been cemented into a huge concrete structure which took up a large part of the basement. For various reasons this seemed not implausible.

Removal of the cistern promised to be costly, and, in any case, it was difficult then to obtain labor. The situation was one to arouse Dave's deepest do-it-yourself instincts. Arming himself with an iron bar, he launched nightly frontal assaults on the highly-resistant, foot-thick cement walls. This engagement lasted rather longer than the Battle of the Somme and although Dave's enthusiasm was rather wanly reflected in the batterings of a few friends, was approximately as successful.

So, in the end, a demolition crew had to be called in. The outcome was reassuring for the family. Some of us had a lingering suspicion, though, that Dave, who believed in digging for stories, would have been even better pleased if the final result had been light in a dark corner; the goal of every newsman — news.

Fervent Liberal

In his politics, Dave was a fervent Liberal and an honest partisan. This never interfered with his personal friendships, which were legion. In my later days in Ottawa, one who always spoke of him with affection was an old college chum who might have become a Conservative prime minister — the late George Nowlan. And Alvin Hamilton, a stout partisan himself, used to distinguish between opponents he disliked and those he classed under the general head; the "Dave Rogers sort of Liberal."

To work with Dave was fun; to leave him hard. In giving his best for the people of Western Canada, he left many in his debt. As for those whom he sought out or encouraged as writers, we will not discharge it until each in his appointed time has filed his last despatch. Until then he will be remembered whenever we gather to exchange stories, saluting a fine craftsman and a prince among men.

Looking Back

From The Times, Sept. 20, 1907.

The city council will have two matters to consider at this afternoon's meeting which may add to its burden of problems. First is a petition from the property owners of Government Street protesting against assessments for the forthcoming repaving of Government Street, and the other is a promise of legal proceedings through the city's action in destroying some property owned by Miss Parshalle, without obtaining her sanction.

Gorge Remedy

What has long been known to the individual, has now been stated officially, the water of the Gorge is polluted. Presumably this also applies to Portage Inlet.

In the past few years it appears there has been a considerable number of young families settling permanently in the Greater Victoria area, with the result that large sums of money have been allocated to the different municipalities for the building of recreation centres. This is a good thing and in line with the contemporary trend of providing from public funds, recreation facilities to absorb the leisure time and energy of youth where no natural facilities exist. But in this area, one of the greatest natural recreaton facilities has existed, protected salt water. It has been allowed to deteriorate, why?

Members of the council have told the public to support the sewer program in order to eliminate pollution. Yet the council has had at its disposal the greatest possible lever by which to coerce reluctant tax-payers to acquiesce in the matter of sewer installation. That is, rigid enforcement of anti-pollution laws. Why are these laws not enforced?

Thousands of dollars have been spent on useless surveys. It seems to the layman that the use of a couple of inspectors and the courts would be of more practical value. Why aren't they used. — G. A. Rose, 960 Arundel.

War Under Water

Tsk. tsk, Mr. Editor, you let your slip show in one of your Saturday editorial articles. In talking about deep-sea resources development, you said, "Without some form of international regulation, it seems possible that the ocean bed could indeed be a source of future world conflict."

But only on the ocean floor of course. Wars are not fought over resources on the land, to keep profit production going, but are fought to stop evil men from taking over us good guys, or taking our "freedom" and "democracy" away from us, etc., etc., ad nauseum. — J. G. Jenkins, 959 Darwin.

Founders of B.C.

Everyone who has enjoyed the beauties of Vancouver's Stanley Park can be thankful that Captain Edward Stamp found the currents off Brockton Point too swift for booming logs.

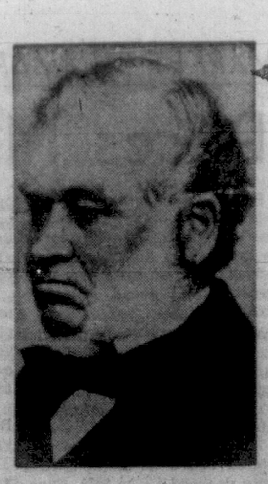

Otherwise the park might have been logged flat and developed as part of the city business area. Stamp, often referred to as British Columbia's first industrialist, was given 100 acres in the vicinity of Brockton Point by Governor Seymour in the 1860's because he planned to begin exporting lumber. But the currents and shallows in the area changed his mind and he moved his mill site to the south shore of the inlet.

It gave birth to the community of Granville — which in time was to become Vancouver. This was before he started his mill at Alberni.

Stamp was a British sea captain who first came to the west coast in 1856 on a mission for the British government to buy spars in Puget Sound. The Fraser Gold Rush two years later induced him to leave the sea. But it wasn't gold that held him here, but the commercial activity the gold rush engendered.

He settled in Victoria as an agent for spars. In 1860 he branched out, starting a sawmill in the Alberni canal. In 1865 he began his mill in Burrard Inlet. In 1866 he built a block of stores in Victoria and became the member for Esquimalt in the Vancouver Island House of Assembly. After Union of the Colonies he became a member of the British Columbia Legislative Council, representing Lillooet.

His wealth and importance grew with his business — the shipment of lumber to points as distant as Hawaii and China. Soon he turned to salmon canning, pioneering that industry on the coast for European markets.

Shaking Up the Caucus Stanfield's First Task

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

Robert Stanfield's major task between Sept. 25 and the calling of an election is to give a good parliamentary performance and to draw the Tory caucus into this as an effective unity which complements the impression he will make.

Fisher

Mr. Stanfield can never acknowledge that he is taking over a caucus that is very weak in debating skill, lacklustre in energy, attendance and enthusiasm and terribly diverse in policy positions. Such is his inheritance. It's been evident for months, before and since the '65 election.

Causes celebres like the Munsinger case, the flag and defence unification plus the overall lure of John Diefenbaker have tended to obscure how very bad this caucus has been.

Crowe

By our reckoning more than 60 of the 90 odd Tory MPs have taken only a perfunctory interest in the House and its committees.

Roughly 50 of the 60 have been in a rut since the 1958 influx, doing at best a thorough constituency job or providing in a hit-and-miss fashion a claque and audience for Mr. Diefenbaker and a few others.

No leader can do much with these people except to encourage them to work like the devil in their constituencies and to provide a spirited presence and backdrop for him in the coming months.

The biggest busts of the present Tory caucus have been those who decorate the front benches. There are exceptions like Gordon Churchill and Alvin Hamilton. Davie Fulton and George Hees may be useful but you couldn't prove it by anything they've done in the House or its committees in the last year.

Mr. Stanfield will have to show some ruthlessness in shifting around his seating and in rearranging responsibilities for subject fields. It has been traditional in all parties that seniority and former status as a Privy councillor gives a precedence in the House and a vague priority in making speeches.

Frankly, Mr. Stanfield must shake this tradition up if he wants to lead a force to be reckoned with in the House.

Only a few Conservatives (notably Gordon Churchill) have a real appreciation of the flow and moods of the House. Only a few have the aggressiveness and gall to raise hell with the government. This kind of conduct may not strike Mr. Stanfield as worthwhile but an effective Opposition has to have some policemen and bouncers.

The few Conservative MPs who have such talents (Erik Nielsen, Eldon Woolliams, Jack Horner and Bob Muir) have hardly been consistent in attendance or in concerting their attacks.

With John Diefenbaker in eclipse there's hardly a man on the Tory side who can catch the House with force and presence and dominate it. No matter how you arrange the skills and energies in any calculus of appreciation the Liberals and New Democrats have demonstrated proportionally greater House talent than this Tory caucus.

Governments do not topple through their own disbalance. They are pushed. The classic example was the long Liberal fight back from 1959 to 1962 led by Jack Pickersgill, ably backed by Messrs. Pearson, Martin, and Chevrier.

Many of us who follow Parliament have remarked that some of the best Conservative talent missed genuine chances to star as parliamentarians because they were outsiders beyond the Diefenbaker pale.

We cite people like Gordon Fairweather, David Macdonald, Jed Baldwin, Gordon Aiken, Jean Wadds and Tom Bell. Essentially these MPs are a nucleus of a possible resurgence but none of them is terribly aggressive in either House or caucus terms.

A new leader must give them their opportunity. There are more who can be useful and who are not yet ruined by inactivity: Lewis Brand, Bud Sherman, Pat Nowland, Alf Hales, Heward Grafftey, Roger Regimbal, Bob McCleave, Harold Danforth and Reg Cantelon could and should be encouraged to make this a working, debating, lively session beyond anything they've done before.

The names are not so important in the advice we give Mr. Stanfield as the reminder that he should not take over this caucus without assessing it cold-bloodedly and then shaking it up.

The best people on his staff must spare as much time for the caucus and planning its performance as on his own speeches. He must spend a great deal of time in the Commons, not with the intention of speaking on many subjects but to encourage and appraise his followers.

They've been under the Diefenbaker cloud for a long time. One can't get a team performance from what has been essentially a one-man gang without very firm guidance.

It is transparent that he couldn't, even if he wished, loom over Parliament in the Diefenbaker manner. Yet this official Opposition must have the most determined, tough leadership if it is not to be a flop and its new leader with it.

Clearly the Liberals, the New Democrats, and the press gallery have an intense interest in testing Robert Stanfield as a parliamentarian. They know his credibility as the next prime minister can be exploded in Parliament.

The Pause That Follows A Long, Hot, Happy Summer

By ART STOTT

We sat quietly on the little beach at the lake in the soft warmth of an Indian Summer afternoon late last week and watched a line of small bubbles progress from one small stone jetty to the other. A mink was making his deft way under water, fishing.

Stott

From the woods behind us came the ratchet call of a jay. In the sky a hawk drove its purposeful way toward Memory Island. Small birds, flocking, lifted in a quick group flight from thicket to thicket. The type of sparrow we call GI Joe hopped cheerfully to the doorstep of the cabin, and a pair of squirrels, touched by late summer madness, scampered in a game of tag up trees and over the ground.

The wild things were repossessing the lake after the human invasion of hot July and August. The merry and raucous shouts of children and youth at play were stilled. An occasional water skier only cut plumes on the surface of the lake and a measure of serenity had returned.

This is part of September's benediction at Shawnigan. When a breeze or a shower clears the air of drifting haze from slash fires to the west, the yellow wash of a lowering sun throws its shafts of light among the trees. Across the water the folds of the hills are molded in shadow.

Dusk comes earlier, with skies dyed richly through the smoke, and early dew freshens the earth, pushing aside the veil of the atmosphere to let stars glitter. The moon comes rolling huge and orange from behind the mountain we call Stick and gradually shrinks to a normal size and pale gold hue.

Not yet autumn, though evening brings a crispness to the air and the mist blanket lingers longer on the lake in the morning, summer has made its delayed farewell. The water is chilly to swimmers reluctant to abandon the element for the season. Nature yawns, stretches slowly with the rustle of foliage just starting to turn, and begins to settle toward its long sleep.

After the busy days of vacation—a great year in which the small tow-head outdistanced by inches her redheaded cousin in the first thrashing strokes of swimming—time seems briefly suspended.

A gentle melancholy wells up in the human spirit—a sense of loss for splendid hours that have been spent and cannot be reclaimed. Calm has succeeded confusion, but the merry disputations are missed. The earlier shouts of children take on a retrospective cheeriness unnoticed when they were uttered. The gigantic strides of their immaginations—continent-spanning, space-soaring—fall into perspective, a little sadly because they will be diminished by the pressure of coming years.

★ ★ ★

In the pause of summer's ending, a man thinks of the jobs he intended to do during the good weather, the re-roofing that was somehow neglected, the work on a basement, as long in the building as Rome, the flooring that was to add warmth to the cabin in winter, the plumbing that was to give comfort to short off-season sojourns. The moss grows on the shingles that degenerate slowly into a powder. A small Gibraltar thrusts its form into the basement space that should have been excavated. A few more tiles have been placed in gravel beds created after hard digging, but the bathroom is without fixtures, its walls and ceiling unfinished.

Not altogether a summer of accomplishment, this. But one of hot sun, happy company, change and relaxation.

There will be days ahead for the work to be done, and evenings by an open fire, unused while heat built up in the forest and bush and when a single sheet was ample covering for night's sleep.

Jack Pickersgill Takes His Leave

By PETER C. NEWMAN

This week Ottawa bids political farewell to the Hon. John Whitney "Sailor Jack" Pickersgill, that peripatetic son of Newfoundland whose unusual career has spanned four political eras and left a deep imprint on each.

It is perhaps typical of Pickersgill that he plans to end his days in Ottawa the way he began them 30 years ago, as a member of the public service, and that he apparently regards without qualms his transition to politics and back again.

Newman

It's entirely in character for Jack Pickersgill to see as natural the fact that as the new head of the Canadian Transportation Commission, he will be occupying a $40,000-a-year job created by himself for himself — a plush sinecure from the political wars that have occupied his talents since he became secretary of state in the St. Laurent government on June 12, 1953.

This new job — which will make him one of the most powerful members of the Ottawa bureaucracy — is his fifth incarnation on the national scene.

A Password

Between 1936 and 1948 he functioned as Mackenzie King's most powerful advisor and in this era, "Check it with Jack" first became a password to power in Ottawa.

He was an even more influential backstage influence in the administration of Louis St. Laurent until he emerged, full-blown, as a cabinet minister and MP for Bonavista-Twillingate.

His next role was as one of the most effective of the front benchers during the Pearson opposition period. When the Liberals regained power, Pickersgill grabbed centre stage once more as one of the new administration's most important parliamentarians.

Now, finally, he has drifted back to the safe non-partisan wings of the civil service. It may not have been exactly a noble career but it was, well, cohesive.

Like Mackenzie King, Jack Pickersgill has never seen much scope for public service away from power. More so than any other Liberal, he has always considered his party not so much an organ of the people as an organ of the state, and in private he often refers to the Liberals as "the government party."

His career and his opinions have made Pickersgill the incarnation of the Ottawa Liberal Establishment. He has always exuded the attitude that by accepting the burdens of office, the Liberals are really bestowing a benefaction on the nation-at-large and that any criticism of the Liberal party is essentially an unpatriotic activity

"As far as I'm concerned," he once told me in all seriousness, "Tory government is like mumps. You have to endure it once in your lifetime but when it's over, you don't ever want it again."

JACK PICKERSGILL
. . . wedded to past

Although he was once considered a radical — and played a large part in persuading King to accept the desirability of the Family Allowance idea — in recent years he has been one of the Liberal cabinet's most reactionary members, urging the undertaking of social reforms only if there was less danger in passing them than in turning them down.

"Jack is so firmly hooked on the past I sometimes think he's wearing cement boots," commented one of his colleagues. A fellow minister swears that there haven't been more than half a dozen cabinet meetings in the past four years during which Pickersgill has failed to mention the way Mackenzie King solved the crises of his day.

He is full of irrelevant historical trivia (e.g.: Bracken's Manitoba cabinet of 1922 was composed entirely of Presbyterians) but has little contact with the modern-day society he has had such a prominent part in governing.

Pickersgill's career has been spent entirely in Ottawa (with summer and electoral forays into rural Newfoundland) so that the world of urban, contemporary Canada has remained entirely outside his experience.

Levers of Power

He has survived so long and at such a high level of influence because more than any other member of Ottawa's establishment, Pickersgill has understood how to manipulate the levers of power, and how to apply political control over the bureaucracy. His friendships with Joey Smallwood, Geoff Stirling and John Doyle—the power barons of the island kingdom of Newfoundland—have reduced his national stature but he has been ever true to the province that gave him his political base.

During his powerful days considerable sums from the national treasury have been spent for the well-being of his constituents. He has always taken the position that Newfoundland, alone of all the provinces, has delivered a solid Liberal vote, and that the island deserves a suitable reward.

The circumstances which allowed Jack Pickersgill to flourish are part of an old-style vanishing political world with little relevance to the new society of modern Canada.

But he will always be remembered as one of the last of his type and his departure from active politics could well be the turning point in the evolution of the political process in this country to a new, less cynical plateau of enlightenment.

UFOs Not Craft From Other Worlds

By MARTIN WEIL

A mathematical astronomer has entered the flying saucer dispute to recommend that all claims that the objects come from other worlds be dismissed, on the grounds they violate the law of physics.

William Markowitz, physics professor at Marquette University, Milwaukee, invokes authorities from Newton to Einstein to support his contention that no unidentified flying object yet reported has what it takes to be an interplanetary spaceship.

Markowitz agrees that unidentified flying objects do exist.

But writing in the current issue of Science, he asserts "control of reported UFOs by extra-terrestrial beings is contrary to the laws of physics," and he calls on the air force to admit this and drop its saucer studies.

Otherwise, he suggests, we may be the laughingstock of the 21st century.

Markowitz points out that the implacable laws of physics demand vast amounts of energy for a spaceship to cross space to earth, enter our atmosphere, perhaps land here, and finally to escape our gravity and return home.

No sign has ever been detected that such energy has been unleashed here, he said.

Huge Operation

If chemical fuels were used, operations on the scale of Cape Kennedy would be required, he said. If nuclear fuels were used, the laws of physics would demand generation of 30 times as much power as all the earth's electric generators yield. Moreover, he said, 80,000-degree temperatures would be produced.

Nobody has seen signs of any of this, he said.

Markowitz sees no reason why inter-stellar beings should be exempt from the laws of physics that restrict us. And even if they could achieve anti-gravity devices, he said, they would still need vast amounts of energy to reach high speeds.

Anything more, he said, would be in the realm of magic, and "anyone who wishes is free to accept such magic properties, but I cannot."

'Semi-magic processes" could accelerate spacecraft to nearly the speed of light, thus seemingly making interstellar trips feasible despite the enormous distances involved but at such speeds, collisions with specks of interplanetary matter would demolish the spacecraft, he said.

After considering these arguments, Markowitz said, he will not believe in interplanetary visitors "until I am shown such a visitor."

Babette Basbleu And Torontoman

By RICHARD J. NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

Il y avait une fois, dans la belle cité de Montréal, une jeune femme nommée Babette Basbleu. She was bilingual, as all Canadians should be, and went to Expo to polish her English much as other people went there to polish their French.

One day, Babette was admiring the view from the lofty top deck of Man the Producer when she saw a man emptying his pockets and writing out a note in preparation for hurling himself over the edge.

Needham

"Ah, le pauvre!" thought Babette, "I must see if I can dissuade him from this foolish deed," so she went over toward him, at which he drew back and started trembling.

"Don't come near me!" he cried. "I can't stand to be approached by filthy, ignorant, immoral, smelly women."

Babette replied, "To the best of my knowledge, I am not filthy or smelly, nor would I deem myself ignorant. Being a woman, I am of course immoral, but that's a basic part of a woman's nature and one which most Montreal men appreciate, though Westmount is another story. Now tell me, who are you and why do you want to end your life in this untidy way?"

The poor little chap replied, "I am Torontoman. I went to Malton to catch a plane for Chicago, and hear Billy Graham preach on the redemptive powers of napalm. But being a lifelong teetotaller, I got slightly sloshed in the bar at the airport, and boarded the wrong plane, and wound up here at Expo, where I have seen so much sin and depravity that I simply cannot endure it any longer."

Babette thought, "The right thing to do in these cases is to keep them talking," so she asked, "What sort of sin and depravity?"

He replied, "Everywhere I go at Expo, there are men and women kissing in secluded corners and indeed right on the yellow minirail. They are caressing each other in the most lubricious manner and holding hands right out loud. There are statues of naked women all over the place, with men admiring them and patting their metallic bottoms. As for the booze situation, it is absolutely frightful — outdoor bars everywhere you go, with men and women drinking together right in front of their children.

He asked, "How many people come here to Expo each day?", to which Babette answered, "Oh, about 200,000 or on a really big day, 300,000, though it has gone as high as 400,000."

Torontoman whistled in amazement. "That must constitute a real policing problem. To keep all those people under firm control, you would need about 100,000 police officers posted at various strategic points. I suppose there are jails for men and women — separate ones, of course — right on the grounds, and plenty of magistrates' courts where people are deemed guilty until they have been proved guilty. What rotten swine human beings are! How good it is that we have laws under which practically any one of them can be packed off to prison for a good long stretch!"

●

Shaking her head in bewilderment, Babette took him firmly by the hand and lugged him to the top deck of the French Pavilion, where they saw the big, brightly colored Nanas being menaced by ugly-looking black machines. Torontoman shook his head in disapproval. "I always heard the Frogs were hung-up on sex, and this proves it."

Babette winced and took him down to Man and the Oceans, where they saw hordes of weird-looking fish who appeared to be conducting a leadership convention.

The two of them finally went to the Canadian Pavilion whose entrance is marked in English, "O Canada, our home, our native land" and in French "O Canada, notre pays, nos amours," but Torontoman fortunately failed to notice this. He and Babette climbed all the way up to the top of the Katimavik, where they found vast empty spaces, and big golden masks, and heard strange electronic moans and shrieks. By this time, Torontoman seemed to have calmed down a bit, so Babette decided she might take the gamble of showing him the amusement area at La Ronde, with consequences we'll see tomorrow.

Oil Companies Play Dual Role

By AB KENT
Business Editor

In the realm of undersea research, the oil companies play a double role — as a vested interest standing to gain through the development of petroleum resources, and also as contributor to the world's knowledge of oceanography.

As the September edition of Petroleum Press Service tells in a fascinating review, offshore drilling as a separate part of the oil industry is only 20 years old, having started in 1947 in the Gulf of Mexico.

Kent

Prior to then the study of oceans was relatively unexploited and even today, the sum of knowledge about the deeps is slight in comparison to what is known of the earth and of space.

With the most to gain initially from submarine exploration, the petroleum companies of the world have been busy testing and tapping the sedimentary strata of the ocean floor.

Today 16 per cent of free world oil production comes from offshore sources, principally in the Gulf of Mexico and in the Persian Gulf, but with growing volume in Alaska's Cook Inlet, off California, Trinidad, Venezuela, Nigeria and Borneo, the magazine says.

It is partly in view of the suspected link between the deep California Basin and the Cook Inlet field that offshore oil exploration has commenced in British Columbia, which lies directly between the known sources.

The B.C. government is counting on a rich offshore future to complement a productive, mineral and resource-laden land-based economy, and has claimed the entire Canadian Pacific continental shelf for its control.

The mineral and food potential of the sea is just beginning to be realized and doubtless will play a role of growing importance in many parts of the world.

Premier Bennett would like private industry to take a greater interest in the B.C. shelf and his government will entertain proposals for detailed exploration programs.

However, the oceanic depths at this point remain a last frontier, presenting a formidable challenge to exploration and discovery because of the visual and pressure barriers and the high cost of scientific programs.

The Petroleum magazine reports that a world-wide $15 billion a year is being spent on oceanography.

Of this, the U.S. spends about $5 billion and even though government contributes some of the money, private industry pays most heavily — the oil industry heaviest of all.

It is estimated by Petroleum Press that some $6 billion has been spent in the U.S. alone since the first rigs went offshore, and almost that amount will be spent over the next five years.

Much of the investment will be for construction of oil drilling vessels, such as the $10 million rig built here last winter.

But is the magazine points out, with each vessel that puts to sea, more is learned about the oceans and the floor beneath them.

The oil companies also develop new ways of getting about beneath the waves, and new tools for use on the bottom — all of which can be readily adapted to use by other industries or for the ultimate undersea environment in which man may find himself.

Prospector's training classes, commenced 49 years ago by the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines, will resume Oct. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in Point Grey Secondary School, Vancouver.

For 3½ winter months, lectures will be given from 7:30-9 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday, covering subjects such as mineralogy, geology, claim-staking, blowpipe analysis and techniques of prospecting, mining and testing.

Leading university and industry figures will conduct the course and some special lectures will be given by B.C. department of mines and petroleum resources.

The chamber of mines says an "appreciable number" of graduates of the school have made important mineral discoveries while others have found work with large exploration companies.

Injunction Refused Oil Group

VANCOUVER (CP) — County Court Judge Kirke Smith refused to grant an injunction Tuesday restraining a group of shareholders of Charter Oil Company from implementing resolutions passed at an extraordinay general meeting here on Aug. 25.

Judge Smith ruled that the enlargement of the directorate and the appointment of directors to fill vacancies at the meeting were valid.

A company director, Jacques Beique of Montreal, made the request for the injunction in behalf of the "Berliz group" headed by Paul Berliz of Calgary.

The defendants in the action are known as the "Willi group" and headed by Hans Willi, a Swiss financier who controls Canadawide Investments Ltd. Canadawide holds 49.6 per cent of the Charter Company shares.

Defendants included Henry M. Beaumont and Herbert Wyman, both of Calgary; David Menzel of Toronto and William J. Esselmont, Stanley E. Jerome, F. L. Croteau, Douglas D. Campbell, Brainard Imrie, G. Clinton Shell, Thornton Donaldson and Ivan G. Thompson, all of Vancouver.

Canadian Ownership Increases

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) —Canadian ownership in Canadian companies is on the increase, a Toronto Stock Exchange official told the Chartered Institute of Secretaries here.

Huntley W. F. McKay, a TSE vice-president, said Falconbridge Nickle Mines Ltd. last year was owned 79 per cent by Canuadians, up from 65 per cent in 1963.

Between 1963 and 1966 Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd. had an increase to 83.7 per cent Canadian from 81.4 per cent, International Utilities Ltd. to 59.8 per cent from 43.7 per cent.

Between 1963 and 1966 Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd. had an increase to 83.7 per cent Canadian from 81.4 per cent, International Utilities Ltd. to 59.5 per cent from 52 per cent, and Canadian Pacific Railway Ltd. to 56.8 per cent from 43.7 per cent.

Between 1964 and 1966, Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. showed a rise to 97.5 per cent from 96.2 per cent, Industrial Acceptance Corp. Ltd. to 92.4 per cent from 89.1 per cent, Interprovincial Pipe Line Co. to 88.9 per cent from 87.8 per cent, and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. to 93.9 per cent from 92.7 per cent.

Mr. McKay said the prime reason for this trend appears to be the introduction in 1963 in the U.S. of the interest equalization tax. U.S. citizens are required to pay a tax of 19.75 per cent on purchase of shares of foreign companies.

MAJOR SALE OF URANIUM TO JAPANESE

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's two largest uranium producers today announced they will sell 31,000,000 pounds of uranium concentrates to a group of Japanese electrical utilities.

Denison Mines Ltd. said it has agreed to sell a minimum 21,000,000 pounds of concentrate to the group.

Negotiating with the Canadian companies on behalf of Japan's 10 electric utilities are Tokyo Electric Power Co. and Kansai Electric Power Co.

Rio Algom Mines Ltd. said it has received a letter of intent from the same group to purchase 10,000,000 pounds.

Mining sources were reported as saying the total price of the two orders would probably exceed $200,000,000.

U.S. Trade Increases Despite War

VANCOUVER (CP)—An American expert on Iron Curtain trading said Tuesday trade with the Soviet Union and Eastern European nations has shown substantial increases despite U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

J. Mishell George, special assistant to the director of the Bureau of International Commerce, an organization subordinate to the U.S. Department of Commerce, was speaking at the convention of the American Association of Port Managers.

"The improvement of trade relations with Eastern Europe is likely to be a slow process, but the slowness does not diminish the importance of the effort," he said.

"Vietnam and the Middle East situations both tend to slow down progress and to emphasize the need for speedier progress.

HELP PEACE BID

"We believe that our two-way trade with these countries can continue to increase," George said. "We believe that increased trade contracts can be helpful in our search for a peaceful world."

He noted that despite the Vietnam war, U.S. two-way trade with the Soviet bloc increased almost $100,000,000 last year to approximately $377,000,000 compared with figures for 1965.

"The significant increases were in trade with Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia and East Germany, in that order," he said.

"It is worth noting that for the first half of this year, two-way U.S. trade with Eastern Europe amounted to over $215,000,000."

Earlier in the day, R. L. Houston, executive director of the Canada-Japan Trade Council, said the Canadian west coast must build port facilities capable of handling huge bulk-carrying freighters if the nation is to compete successfully for booming Japanese coal markets.

"The size of the ships is increasing rapidly," he said.

"Big ships go hand in hand with big-ship economics. They cannot be operated at maximum productivity without constantly improving port handling methods."

Houston did not refer directly to a feud involving the provincial and federal governments over development of Roberts Bank south of Vancouver as a super-port.

The B.C. government has threatened to build the port itself to handle coal exports to Japan if the federal government sticks to its position that the Vancouver harbor comes first.

The federal government says Vancouver will be able to handle any ships at sea at least until the 1980s—a point hotly contested by the provincial government.

General Motors 'Stealing Market' Union Official Charges

DETROIT (AP)—A top United Auto Workers Union official says General Motors is "stealing as much of the market" as it can while Ford Motor Co. is stopped by a UAW strike.

GM is "piling on as much production as possible," said Leonard Woodcock, a UAW vice-president and head of the union's GM department. The company denied the charge.

With Ford shut down by some 160,000 UAW workers in support of demands for a new contract, Woodcock said GM's production of 1968 model cars "is greater now than at any time in other model starts."

Woodcock said he toured 13 cities with GM plants last week, meeting local union officials.

"Our production scheduled today is unchanged since before the selection of a strike target," a GM spokesman said.

The UAW has named Ford as the strike target in a bid to replace the three-year contract which expired Sept. 6.

Contracts at GM and Chrysler Corp. also expired Sept. 6, but the union has continued working without a contract.

Labor demands include a guaranteed annual income, a share of corporate profits, a "substantial" pay increase, equal pay for Canadian workers, boosts in fringe benefits and improved working conditions.

Meanwhile, bargainers decided Tuesday at GM to concentrate immediately on seeking at-the-point working agreements which supplement national contracts.

Strikes in support of demands on such local-level agreements crippled GM for periods of up to five weeks after national contracts had been settled in 1958, 1961 and 1964.

'Waiting Pupils' Cause Problem

Nor at Mount Prevost junior secondary school.

Schools superintendent Art Jones today said earlier reports of fighting and smoking among students were exaggerated.

Acting principal of Cowichan high, Harold Proctor, said: "It is a problem of controlling numbers and the only reason we brought the matter to the attention of trustees is that the school is being used as a transit point."

About 500 students from other schools in the district are marshalled at Cowichan and Mount Prevost for transit by school buses.

Mr. Jones said: "Once in a while a fight breaks out among the boys, and there is some smoking off the school grounds.

"The board is investigating the cost of hiring a commissionaire to supervise the students at these schools between 8 and 9 a.m. and 3 and 4 p.m."

Hinges and doors have been broken and a recent $5,200 paint job badly marked.

Trustee Ernest Goddard said: "Supervision of waiting students is not a teachers' job. Before and after school hours every teacher has plenty to do.

"There is always a teacher on duty in the school but they should not be expected to patrol the grounds too."

A request from Mr. Proctor for more trash cans on James Street in front of Cowichan high was approved by the board.

Extra trash cans will also be requested from the local councils for the area of Festubert and St. Julian streets in the vicinity of the students' marshalling point.

SCHOOLS READY IN NOVEMBER

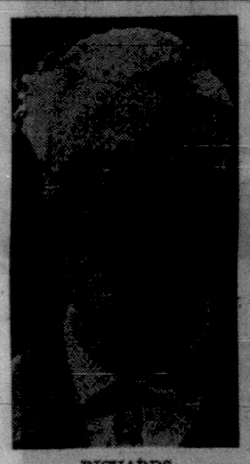

DUNCAN — The new Roome Road and Lane Road elementary schools will probably be ready for occupancy at the end of November.

Schools superintendent Art Jones told Cowichan district trustees that opening of these schools will bring to an end the present shift system.

He said he had received no written complaints about the shift system which has been in operation since school opened earlier this month.

Mr. Jones said: "The board is not to blame for the situation and we are rectifying it as soon as possible."

Previously board chairman Dr. Neil Dorning said delay in granting departmental approval for plans of the new schools was responsible for the delay.

Cyclist Suffers Head Injuries

DUNCAN—Rodney Dillabaugh, 17, of Duncan, was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria, Tuesday night for emergency surgery after being in a highway crash.

Dillabaugh was still unconscious while being transferred from King's Daughters' Hospital here. He was in fair condition today.

He suffered head injuries after his motor bike was in collision with a car being driven by Arthur Robert Tamplin of Duncan.

Oppose Abortion

MONTREAL (CP)—The Catholic Women's League Tuesday urged its 165,000 members to tell their federal representatives they oppose adoption of permissive abortion legislation. The 400 delegates attending a three-day convention of the national Roman Catholic women's organization, based their resolution on a statement passed by last year's convention which termed abortion "the taking of the life of an innocent human being."

Best Collection Anywhere Of 19th Century Victoria

By HUMPHRY DAVY

If you want to know how a well-to-do great-grandmother lived in 19th century Victoria, then a visit to Point Ellice House, 2660 Pleasant, will be enlightening and rewarding.

Historians, connoisseurs of art and antiques, and architects, who were present for the opening of the 100-year-old dwelling as a museum Tuesday, agreed it contained the finest collection of Victoriana in Western Canada.

The house built for the Hon. Peter O'Reilly, B.C.'s first gold commissioner, contains hundreds of antique furnishings, household utensils, artifacts and bric-a-brac.

It also includes wine and champagne imported to Victoria when British Columbia was a colony.

★ ★ ★

But the unique thing about the collection is that none of the articles were bought for the museum. They all belonged and were used by the same family.

Carolyn Case, curator of history for the provincial museum, said it would take a museum between 20 and 30 years to collect a similar collection.

"I have never seen as large a collection of Victoriana in Western Canada," he said.

Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, who conducted the opening ceremonies, was equally as impressed with what he saw.

Some of the things which impressed Mr. Pearkes was a gold harp which was played a century ago by Mrs. Kathleen O'Reilly, and a writing desk owned by Sir James Trutch, B.C.'s first lieutenant-governor.

He was a brother of Kathleen O'Reilly.

Mr. Pearkes was also interested in a fine lady's side-saddle and some riding whips.

For many visitors, the house still retained 'an aura of romance.'

They also saw some of the possessions of Kathleen, the daughter, who was courted by Capt. Robert Scott, of South Pole fame.

Scott, then a young naval officer, was obliged to give up the idea of marrying Kathleen because of the lack of money. She was not far from his thoughts when he left for the South Pole in 1912 where he was destined to die.

The rugs and old English prints on the walls also attracted notice.

Master of ceremonies for the opening was James Nesbitt, local historian.

Lawrie Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, in a brief address, said many old Victoria homes could be restored if people would only use their imaginations.

★ ★ ★

The lawns and garden which overlook Selkirk waters, including the home, were illuminated for the occasion.

The scene to many visitors was quite impressive—a house landscaped with trees and a garden situated in the midst of industrial Victoria.

Comox Driver Acquitted

The charge arose out of a fatality April 29 in Comox when Flynn's car struck a bicycle being riden by George Mulholland, 15.

County Court judge H. C. MacKay said there was no evidence to indicate excessive speed or erratic driving.

Chiropractors Plan Meeting in Nanaimo

NANAIMO — One hundred chiropractors will meet here at the end of the month for the 34th annual meeting of the Chiropractors Association of British Columbia.

The three-day meeting, starting Sept. 29 will include lectures by Eric Shrubb, of the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College in Toronto, on X-ray interpretation in accident reporting and a seminar on chiropractic techniques.

Other talks will deal with the law and the chiropractor and on Workmen's Compensation Board reporting.

Mother Wants To Visit Daughter

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany has asked the Canadian external affairs department to allow the mother of a plane crash survivor to visit her injured daughter in Halifax, the official East German news agency ADN reported today.

The request was made for Frau Lucie Luca, mother of Jutta Albrecht, one of two East German women injured in the recent crash of a Czech airliner in Newfoundland.

The East Germans asked that government officials also be allowed to visit the women in hospital to administer "humane necessities and the usual support from the government of their native land."

The new request follows reports by the East Germans to send a member of their Cuban embassy to Halifax. An entry visa was refused by Ottawa.

A government spokesman in Ottawa said last Friday the East German diplomat—a woman—had been refused entry because she did not have a temporary travel permit from the Allied Travel Office in West Berlin. He said the special permit is required because Canada does not recognize East Germany diplomatically and does not grant visas to East Germans wishing to visit Canada.

The Canadian spokesman said the door had not been "irrevocably closed," however, and that officials from three other Communist countries had been given special entry visas promptly after the crash, in which 36 persons died.

On Sept. 15, East German Foreign Minister Otto Winzer accused Canada of "inhuman behavior" for turning down the entry request.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Makes Late Husband Early

MRS. L. C. BORDEN

Waiting meals, while her husband mixed his own mustard, nearly drove Mrs. L. C. Borden to desperation. That is, until she brought a gleam to his eye with Colman's Hot Ready Prepared English Mustard. Now he drives her to desperation by getting to the table ahead of time. Advt.

PRIVATE RESERVE FOR 'OVER 65s' . . . AND A CIRCUS

GANGES—A parishoner told Reverend Ray Horsefield of the Anglican Church: "On Salt Spring Island we do things differently."

The comment was appropriate as observed in this week's events: A new traffic "circus"; a proposal to ban youth from the Gulf Islands; a back page slap at bureaucracy; and a host of sundries.

The new traffic circle, or circus (it seems to owe more to Barnum and Bailey than St. Giles) has left drivers perplexed.

MIDDLE OF ROAD

Formerly the intersection featured a First World War memorial (it now resides in splendid new surroundings at Centennial Park across the street right smack in the middle of the road.

You had the choice of turning left or right or, if you felt patriotic, driving right through and opening a New Front.

The new complex has every known modern street inconvenience: no entry, one-way, crosswalk, dozens of arrows pointing every which direction, yield, stop, and crash!

DROVE WRONG WAY

While he spoke, one man drove the wrong direction up a one-way lane, turned around and drove the wrong way down another; a woman drove past a stop sign with nary a pause; another woman stopped at yield, looked both ways and plowed through a loaded crosswalk.

The ban on young people was proposed by D. S. Morrision of Fulford Harbor. Mr. Morrision deplores pollution of air and stream and especially resents any improvement in ferry service.

In a letter to the Driftwood weekly he urged the government to "declare the Gulf Islands a closed area, reserved for retired people."

An under-65 Ganges businessman wondered aloud who would run the services on this proposed colony of ancients.

Mr. Morrison concluded: "We oldsters have some rights as well as the untried and inexperienced youngsters who are telling us how business methods should be applied to the art of living."

NOT ALL MEAN!

The Chamber of Commerce once hinted that the mean average age of Salt Springers is 68 years. Of that number, of course, it may be assumed that not all are mean. The question is: How many are average?

In a back page notice to the Bureau of Statistics, Salt Spring Island Driftwood editor Frank Richards complained he was tired of telling them he didn't own the paper last year.

"No government can accomplish a change of historical fact," the notice read. Some governments have tried, mind you.

RCMP ON HAND

Meanwhile, a gaggle of pensioners who have taken to missing the last bus at Swartz Bay—mainly because the bus hasn't been there—have been assisted to their destination by a handy RCMP paddy wagon!

Recently, a grizzled sea captain (every other man, and some women, is a captain of some sort on these islands) said:

"I sure would like to know where you get the material for these reports."

I looked him over from bow to stern. His hat was a greasy sweat band with captain lettered by hand; his shirt, open at the waist, showed a wide expanse of a hairy belly; his shortened trousers were held up with rope and his twitching feet were bare.

I looked past the nervous tic in his left eye and wisely chose not to divulge the "source" of my material!

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

'Student Makes Pact With Self'

The university student is assumed to have made a contract with himself to achieve excellence, Uvic president Dr. Malcolm Taylor told the freshman class Tuesday.

"Do not be deceived by the freedom from compulsion and restraint in the university attitude towards you," he told close to 1,000 students gathered in the gymnasium for the president's annual welcome.

"We are genuinely interested in you and we will give you much help.

"But we assume that you have made a contract with yourself that is far more binding and far more effective than any we might impose on you.

DEVELOP TALENTS

"And that contract with yourself is the responsibility you have to yourself to achieve excellence, the responsibility to develop your own special talents and employ them as fully and as usefully as you know how."

The question is, said the president, are there enough of you here? Is this generation preparing enough people from the coming generation to operate a society so complex.

"For our society is obviously so complex even now that its problems seem to exceed our capacity for solution."

CHIEF RESOURCE

Social complexity and an accelerated rate of change means that trained intelligence is the nation's chief resource, said Dr. Taylor.

"We must educate every citizen of this land to the utmost of his intellectual ability. We must develop every ounce of brain power that the school system can discover.

"This is not the century of the commmon man but of the qualified man," the president said.

A GEOPHYSICIST who has explored the north and south polar regions, scaled mountains and seen more than 100 countries, John Tuzo Wilson, has been named the first principal of Erindale, University of Toronto's newest arts and science college.

NEW BRUNSWICK ELECTION ROUNDUP

'Opportunity' Program Test

FREDERICTON (CP) — Liberal Premier Louis Robichaud hails New Brunswick's economic growth in the last seven years as the greatest in its history. Progressive Conservative Leader J. C. Van Horne calls the province the most retarded in Canada.

Mr. Robichaud points out that 200 industries worth $400,000,000 have settled in the province since the Liberals took office in 1960.

Mr. Van Horne maintains New Brunswick requires a survival kit of at least another $100,000,000 in annual aid from Ottawa.

These are the divergent political viewpoints given the more than 280,000 voters eligible for the polls in the provincial election Oct. 23.

TEST FOR PROGRAM

The election — third in seven years—not only will select a government but will make known the public's attitude toward the controversial Program of Equal Opportunity made effective Jan. 1.

It transferred to the province from municipalities all major services, abolished county councils and based real estate assessments on what the government termed market value. Tax rate is $1.50 per $100 of assessment.

The program has been Mr. Robichaud's basic appeal for another mandate.

Mr. Robichaud, the second Acadian premier of New Brunswick, says the program best provides universal services to rich and poor alike.

Mr. Van Horne, fluently bilingual like the premier, says the program is dictatorial, calls "for a return to democracy" and promises better tourist, industrial and resources development.

SEEN AS SHOWDOWN

Mr. Currie, one of three NDP candidates, expects the election to be a personality showdown between Mr. Van Horne and Mr. Robichaud.

"Our supporters," he says, 'gave us reason to understand that they had no more cause to be satisfied with the old party policy on the provincial level than they had on the federal level."

DEATH SIGNIFIED LIFE

The NDP did not contest the 1963 election and has never held a seat in New Brunswick. For that matter, only one other party has ever been successful in New Brunswick. The United Farmers landed seven seats in 1920, but disappeared by 1925.

There will be six more seats in this election—Bathurst, Edmundston, Campbellton, Saint John, Fredericton and Moncton —for a total of 58.

In 1963, the Liberals won 32 seats, 12 more than the Conservatives.

N. KOREANS FIGHTING FOR N. VIETS

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—The state department said Tuesday North Korean pilots may be flying combat missions against U.S. aircraft in Vietnam.

U.S. officials during the weekend said North Korea had sent between 25 and 50 pilots to North Vietnam. Tuesday's announcement was the first from the state department that the North Koreans may be engaging in aerial fighting.

Alderman Dies

EDMONTON (CP)—Alderman Frank Edwards died at the wheel of his car Monday night, an hour after he moved to adjourn a city council meeting. The 59-year-old public school principal was believed to have suffered a heart attack.

Special Pay Level Upsets Pattern, Says Commission

The Civil Service Commission Tuesday echoed a contention that special wage levels for provincial psychiatric nurses would upset the whole civil service pattern.

It made the submission to a three-man fact-finding panel considering an impasse between the commission and the 850-strong B.C. Psychiatric Nurses' Association.

R. D. Higgins, chief classification officer for the commission, said under a policy of seeking "comparability" between government and private wages, the psychiatric nurses are paid the equivalent to registered nurses in general hospitals.

To go beyond this would "greatly disturb established and correct principles" and upset the commission's relations with the other 24,000 government employees, he said.

Mr. Higgins' argument paralleled the brief by E. P. O'Connor, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, at the opening of the hearings.

Dwight Wenham, spokesman for the BCPNA, argued it was normal for a specialized group to seek extra pay.

"The trouble is that the psychiatric nurses have not spoken out in the past and our counterparts in general hospitals are still not speaking out," he said.

CD COURSES

Crisis Needed To Get Help

It takes a serious international crisis to make Oak Bay people respond to appeals for civil defence volunteers.

Toughest job for co-ordinator G. O. White is to arouse interest in civil defence and to get people to take the courses offered.

Mr. White said that about 400 people have taken courses which include communications, first aid, police, warden training, and others in the past seven years and some have come back to retrain and take refresher courses.

But at present, instead of a flow of volunteers for the future course, there's only a trickle.

ADVERTISING COURSE

Civil Defence operations group is now advertising the courses on notice boards at churches, schools and other public buildings in the municipality, and handbills are to be handed out to people transacting business at the municipal hall.

Civil defence films may be shown in the hall.

There have been international crises which have prompted people to volunteer for courses, said Mr. White, but the Cuban crisis and the more recent Middle East trouble had no effect whatever on the number of volunteers.

"It seems as if people are sitting back waiting for something to happen before offering their services," Mr. White said," but we want to build up a strong trained force of civil defence workers before anything happens."

Oil Pollutes Lake

CHICAGO (Reuters) — An air, sea and land investigation started Tuesday to find the cause of giant oil slicks polluting a 75-mile-long area of Lake Michigan. Vinton W. Bacon, general superintendent of Chicago's sanitary district, described the massive oil seepage, after a helicopter survey, as "the worst case of pollution I've ever seen in a body of water."

Seeks Union Funds

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson's ruling Labor party today announced plans to seek more funds from unions to help modernize its vote-catching machinery. The decision was announced shortly after the Trades Union Congress condemned the government for its handling of the economy. An estimated 750,000 persons may be out of work this winter.

HOME GARDEN

Start Potting Now For Winter Bulbs

By HILDA BEASTALL

The growing of bulbs in pots for blooming during winter is something to get started on at once, if results are to be satisfying.

Hilda

Those of us blessed with gardens may have outdoor blooms of one kind or another every day of the dullest winter, but those who must dwell in high-rise or other types of apartments still need fragrance and simplicity of live blooms from potted plants.

Fortunately, bulbs can be started indoors from purchased materials, including plastic pot containers, sterilized potting soil, and the different kinds of bulbs suitable for growing indoors.

Locally grown hyacinths, early narcissus varieties, and large blossomed dwarf tulips may all be successfully put into pots now to bloom in early winter.

The procedure briefly is first to locate the coolest place in the apartment of perhaps outside on a balcony where sun does not strike.

In the apartment, the coolest place may be a bottom shelf in a utility space where the heating unit can be shut off. If the spot is dark, so much the better. This cool place is where the bulbs must spend six to eight weeks while they form roots.

Only one kind of bulb can be used in a pot, for flowering times vary with different kinds, and indeed for different varieties of the same kind.

Fit the bulbs into the pots, having just enough space between and beneath for an inch or so of potting soil. The soil needs to be firmly packed it if is a purchased sterilized mixture, and at least an inch over the tops of the bulbs since apartment dwellers are unable to bury their pots in deep cool outdoor earth.

A neat plastic pot label bearing the name of the bulbs and date of potting will be useful identification.

Moderate dampness of the pot contents will be needed, never too wet nor too dry. Let the fall rains take over if the pots are kept on a balcony.

When purchasing bulbs be sure to specify that they are to be "forced" in pots indoors. Some varieties are superb for this purpose.

HANDLE MACHINE GUN LIKE COMMANDO'

Hail of Police Bullets Ends Molly's Career

MONTREAL (CP) — Machine-Gun Molly, pint-sized mother of two who police said could handle a machine-gun "like a commando," was shot and killed by Montreal North police Tuesday as she sat injured behind the wheel of a crashed stolen car shortly after a bank robbery.

"Our men had no choice," said a police spokesman. "She had a revolver trained on them, so they took no chances and opened fire."

One suspected accomplice in the $3,000 holdup was arrested soon after Machine-Gun Molly's car had plowed broadside into a Montreal Transportation Commission bus. Two others were arrested later in raids on homes.

The woman, whose real name was Monica Proietti, according to police, was hit three times—once in the head and twice in the chest—by police bullets.

Police said they believed the 27-year-old, 95-pound woman had taken part in more than 20 armed robberies in the Montreal area during the last year.

MOLLY
. . . 20 armed robberies

She was free at the time on $1,500 bail pending trial on a charge of assisting in the theft of an automobile.

During the 100-mile-an-hour chase of Machine-Gun Molly's car, punctuated by rifle and small-arms fire, 11-year-old Antonio Marinelli was struck on the cheek by a stray bullet while playing on the lawn of his home. At hospital, his condition was reported "not serious."

Adrien Tremblay of Montreal North was pistol-whipped by the bandits, who commandeered his car. He was released after treatment at hospital.

The chase began soon after police had answered a burglar alarm at the Desjardins credit union on Vital St. The fleeing bandit tried to switch to a second car but changed their minds as police converged on them.

Police had to run for cover as the bandits opened fire with machine-guns, a 12-gauge shotgun and a revolver.

Police were returning the fire from behind a parked car when Tremblay drove his car into the cross-fire.

RAMS INTO BUS

The chase began anew, the bandits firing from the window of the getaway car. At Pie IX Boulevard and Dickens Street it crashed into the bus.

Three men pulled themselves from the wreck and ran. Machine-Gun Molly was injured.

Detectives Gilbert Dorion and Gerard Forest said they peered into the wreckage and saw Machine-Gun Molly pointing a revolver in their direction. They shot.

One man was flushed from an apartment house cellar a short distance away. The two others were arrested later.

Ex-Editor Faces Highway Charge

MOSCOW (AP)—The son-in-law of former premier Nikita Khrushchev is under investigation for an accident in which his car hit a woman pushing a baby carriage across a Moscow street, informed sources said today.

The son-in-law, Alexei I. Adzhubei, was editor of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia and an important aide to Khrushchev before Khrushchev was ousted from power three years ago. Since then, Adzhubei has been one of the editors of the minor magazine Soviet Union.

The sources said the accident occurred several days ago. The sources lacked details, including the nature of any injuries.

Under the Soviet legal system, an investigation might take several weeks. It determines whether criminal charges will be pressed.

As a government and Communist party official under Khrushchev, Adzhubei rode around Moscow in a black limousine driven by a chauffeur. But Adzhubei lost his chauffeur along with his titles and has in the last few years driven himself.

BORNEO GIRLHUNTERS NOT WOWED BY MAO

BRUNEI, Indonesia (UPI)—Communist Chinese propaganda has taken a turn upsetting to the bachelors of this woman-short town of the Island of Borneo.

Youths inserting their names in the lonely hearts columns of Hong Kong magazines in a search for female friends have been receiving portraits of Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung and clippings of his books, government officials said.

since 1958, increasing his plurality over the Liberal candidate by more than 10,000 votes in 1965 when the last general election was held.

COOL TO SOCREDS

Conservatives have been extremely cool to the overtures of E. C. Manning, Social Credit premier of Alberta, for a Conservative-Social Credit alliance.

The Conservatives now hold 15 of the 17 federal seats in Alberta. Social Credit has the other two.

Other byelections may be held before the next general election, expected once the Liberals get a new leader.

The Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert would become vacant if Mr. Diefenbaker resigned from the Commons, as he has hinted he may do.

He leaves here Wednesday night for Saskatchewan to make a speech in Saskatoon and to consult his riding association on his future plans.

Three Conservatives may be trying to get into the Commons soon: Premier Roblin of Manitoba, Conservative party president Dalton Camp and Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon.

One vacancy likely will occur soon with the resignation of Conservative Eric Winkler from Grey-Bruce in Ontario.

Bonavista-Twillingate: Liberal 10,113; Conservative 3,687.

Soviet Trade Climbs

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A trade conference was told Tuesday the Soviet Union's trade with developing countries grew 20 per cent annually in the last decade, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported. Nikolai Orlov, director of the Moscow Market Studies Institute, said such trade continues to grow at a fast rate.

IT'S STILL VANCOUVER . . . SOUTH OF BORDER

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)—Vancouver, Wash., is going to keep its name.

In a Tuesday primary, residents of this Columbia River city of 39,000 voted 6-to-1 against a proposition aimed at clearing up confusion with Vancouver, B.C., the Canadian metropolis.

Had the measure passed, the voters would have picked a new name in the November general election.

$40,000,000 Voted For U.S. Rat Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives, by one vote, has tentatively approved a $40,000,000 increase in funds authorized for rat extermination and other state health programs.

If sustained on a vote scheduled for today, the action could partially erase what many members consider a black mar on the House for its rejection in July of the administration's $40,000,000 rat control bill.

The measure adopted 129 to 128 Tuesday as an amendment to a $950,000,000 health bill would increase the funds available for state public health programs by $20,000,000 this year and $20,000,000 next year.

While funds in the bill are given for the states to use according to their needs, backers of the additional $40,000,000 indicated they hope it would go largely for rat control.

'Forget School Costs'

People Will Act, Says UBCM Head

The president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, Mayor H. J. Gardner of Williams Lake, said this morning municipal governments should not concern themselves with rising school costs.

In his annual report to the 64th UBCM convention at Prince George, Mayor Gardner is reported by Times City Hall reporter Jim Hume as stating:

"I am of the opinion that perhaps we should paddle our own canoe, set our mill rates at a level to provide services expected or needed and not concern ourselves as municipal people with the school cost portion of the tax bill."

'DO SOMETHING'

Mayor Gardner said he took his stand because municipal councils have no control over school costs and that he was confident that once the taxpayers wake up to the fact that too much of the high cost of education is being borne by the landowner, they will start trying to do something about it.

The president made a brief reference to an emergency meeting of the UBCM executive last April to discuss rising school costs and the possibilty of a detailed survey of provincial-municipal cost-sharing arrangements.

"The comittee is still working on this matter," he said. "We have delayed the decision because I suspect that a survey such as the one proposed could cost anywhere from $40,000 to $60,000 and I feel that a matter of such major importance as this should be decided by all members of the UBCM.

LESS THAN HUMAN are frosh and less than humane is the treatment afforded them by upperclassmen at Uvic during first-week frolics. Senior biology students lined up these freshmen Tuesday for a "free" group photo. Then they beaned them on the beanies with garlands of soggy seaweed dropped from the roof of the science building just as they were set to say "cheese". John Philion was the photographer who took the smelly shot, cutting himself off forever from a section of future business. But for a picture like that, perhaps it was worth it.

15-YEAR PLAN FOR OAK BAY TO BE DISCUSSED BY BOARD

Directors of Oak Bay's Board of Trade will meet tonight to discuss the regional planners proposals for the municipality.

All directors have received copies of the $2.5 million, 15-year plan which calls for a village development, new apartment zones and improvements to parks.

The directors will exchange views on the plan this evening before meeting municipal engineer and planner G. O. White next week to discuss the proposals in detail before formulating a policy.

Bow-Torn Ship Here After Fog Collision

$1 Million Damage Estimated

By TERRY IZZARD

The first of two badly damaged freighters limped into Ogden Point at noon today.

The 8,000-ton Marie Skou, her bow torn completely off, was being examined by divers at press time.

Still in the fog-shrouded Straits of Juan de Fuca was the 40,000-ton Japanese lumber carrier Chitose Maru.

She was reported to have a 30-foot gash along her starboard bow.

The two ships met head on in the strait shortly after midnight.

Thick fog and smoke had cut visibility to less than a quarter mile.

GIANT AXE

Her crumpled bow looked as though it had been sliced by a giant axe.

Her 7,000-ton cargo will be offloaded and stored at Ogden Point while the ship undergoes repairs in drydock.

A deck officer said it was pitch black when the two ships met.

'IT WAS TOO LATE'

In perfect English he said: "The other ship suddenly appeared out of the fog.

"We tried to veer away but it was too late."

With the exception of men on watch, crews of both ships were in their bunks. But for this there could have been serious injuries.

The 650-foot long Chitose Maru was on her maiden voyage from Japan where she was launched only a few months ago.

This was her first visit to Vancouver Island to pick up lumber.

Due to the fog there was no way of knowing her precise position, though she was reported about two hours out in the strait. She was due to anchor off Royal Roads this afternoon.

Damage to the two ships is expected to be well over $1 million, possibly several million.

At the time of the collision the Marie Skou, 416 feet long, was outbound after loading on the Island for the past week.

The Chitose Maru was heading the other way in ballast.

What repairs are carried out here will depend on availability of Esquimalt drydock which is presently occupied.

COMPANIES WOULD LIKE . . . . . TO LEAVE IT ALONE

Government Slash-Burning Policy Challenged

By PETE LOUDON

British Columbia's largest forest industry today agreed there is too much slash burning undertaken in this province each fall.

A Vancouver spokesman for the giant MacMillan, Bloedel Ltd., vice-president and general-manager wood products J. O Hemmingsen said:

"We agree that there is too much (intentional) burning. But we are forced by the government to burn or pay a penalty of $12 an acre.

"Furthermore, if we don't burn, the government will not allow us to harvest adjacent timber stands, even though we might own them."

The smoke from slash fires which burn the residue from summer logging operations, has clouded B.C. in recent days.

It has hampered operations of fire spotters and water bombers as far inland as Kamloops.

Several slash fires jumped their guards and destroyed both standing timber and logging equipment—especially in the Sooke area, northeast of Victoria.

The situation brought the observation from University of B.C. plant ecologist Dr. V. J. Krajina that legislation is needed to curb slash fires.

He told The Times they are lit too early in the fall and are damaging to forests and wildlife.

Dr. Krajina said the industry should stop burning slash as a blanket spread over acres of the forest floor after trees are cut. He said the industry should be forced to pile the slash in damp areas before igniting it.

Mr. Hemmingsen agreed there was too much burning but he felt the slash should just be left where it falls, reducing logging costs rather than adding to them.

"It is simply not practical nor economical to haul slash any distance, to pile it and burn it," he stated.

He said slash-burning may damage topsoil or humus, but this doesn't necessarily deter new growth.

He pointed out that a major reason for the slash-burning policy is to reduce the amount of fuel on the ground. With today's fuller utilization of forest products (MB and PR says it uses everything but rotten limbs and needles in pulp operations) less slash is left behind the loggers, however.

Any intentional burning is a hazard to adjacent timber stands, he said. And there are examples when burning the slash did not impede later fires.

A good example, said Mr. Hemmingsen, was the recent large summer fire in the Alberni region — an area previously burned intentionally.

"Nevertheless, it burned vigorously a second time."

Slash fire permits in lower Vancouver Island are under suspension but several fires started last week are still burning in the Sooke area, in a controlled manner.

When these fires were out of hand Sunday considerable damage was sustained to timber stands owned by Pacific Logging Company Ltd. No official was available today to detail the loss.

Pat Carson Bulldozing said that firm suffered a small loss, so did Malloch and Moseley Logging, including a small truck. Butler Brothers reported its greatest loss was in wages and time. Most of their 100-man crew was diverted to fighting slash fires extending over "several thousand acres," of CPR timberlands.

'Pay Extra Cost' For McRae Estate Councillor Urges

A Saanich councillor said today the municipality should purchase the 132-acre McRae Estate and pay the extra cost.

Coun. Digby Kier was commenting on the $1.2 million arbitration award for the property, which was $450,000 above the amount set aside for the purchase.

"We may have to go to a referendum in December to get the extra money," he said.

"If that is necessary we should do that. The people wanted the estate in the first instance and I don't think they've changed their mind now."

REGIONAL AFFAIR

Another councillor, Harold Todd, said "other alternatives" to purchase may have to be explored. He said the McRae Estate "situated as it is, is a regional park if there ever was one.

"Saanich could abandon the idea (of purchase) at that price and opt out by paying the rather substantial costs." But, he added, this is "not a very pleasant prospect either."

Reeve Hugh Curtis said earlier he didn't think council could abandon any of the capital budget projects approved by ratepayers two years ago and he would "very much regret" not purchasing the estate.

He said the municipality could "go back to the people for more money."

Saanich councillors attending the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Prince George did not receive a copy of the 21-page arbitration award until last midnight. They were to study it today before commenting.

The extra cost of purchasing the estate in southern Saanich, including costs and interest to the McRae family, is about $550,000 — not $50,000 as printed in Tuesday's Times.

One estimate is that this could be reduced to about $350,000 by applying money from contingencies and savings on McKenzie Avenue in the capital budget.

Guided Missile Destroyer Open For Inspection

The general public will be able to visit an American guided missile-armed destroyer leader this Sunday.

The 8,000-ton USS Horne will arrive at Esquimalt late Friday and will leave Monday morning. She will also visit Vancouver next Tuesday to Friday.

Main gates at HMC Dockyard will be open for the public between 1 and 4 p.m. Sunday for visitors to see the destroyer.

The visiting vessel carries a crew of 24 officers and 375 enlisted men. She is 547 feet long and has a 54-foot beam.

Panel to Explain Carter Proposals At City Luncheon

Carter taxation proposals and their implications for the average businessman or individual will be explained by a panel to be brought here by Victoria Chamber of Commerce Oct. 6.

Two Vancouver men, Derek Parkinson, a partner in the accountants firm of Price, Waterhouse and Co., and Jacques Barbeau, partner in the legal firm of Barbeau, McKercher and Collingwood, will outline the royal commission report at Imperial Inn, at a noon luncheon.

The men have devoted much of the summer to studying the Carter commission and have prepared their findings on behalf of Vancouver Board of Trade.

Cedar Hill Surfacing Next Week

Surfacing of the newly widened Cedar Hill Cross Road at the entrance to the University of Victoria, is scheduled to start next week.

This will complete the first half of the $190,000 project which calls for widening and repaving of the road from Gordon Head Road to Cadboro Bay Road.

This year the Gordon Head-Henderson stretch will be completed and the remainder to Cadboro Bay will be done next year.

The provincial government is providing $90,000 towards the cost, the frontagers $17,643 and the municipality will pay $88,357.

INSTALL MANHOLES

No federal aid is included because the subsoil in the area is not suitable for winter work.

The whole of Windsor Road from Beach Drive to Victoria Avenue will be rebuilt, widened and the crown levelled off.

First stage calls for rebuilding of the short stretch from Beach Drive to Newport. This includes traffic control islands at the start of Windsor.

Ask The Times

Q. Is there a national newspaper boy week and if so when is it? E.G.

A. There is a National Newspaper Boy Day which falls in National Newspaper Week but the dates have not been announced for this year, although the week is usually marked in mid-October.

Q. What was the name of the first ship to circumnavigate Vancouver Island and when? V.G.

A. According to history books, Captain George Vancouver was first to sail around the Island in 1792 on board the Discovery.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

GORGE RACE

Anything That Floats Can Enter

Bathtubs, air mattresses, paddle boards, rafts — any kind of makeshift craft — can enter the open boat class in Saturday's centennial boat races on the Gorge.

Jerry Gosley, co-ordinator of the Greater Victoria Centennial Society, today called upon Victoria boatmen to support this "open" event.

"This can be one of the most interesting races if we get the entries," he said. "So far we have only one."

He said the kayak race may have to be cancelled if there are less than six entries. To date there are four.

The nine-mile canoe race starting from the Inner Harbor to Portage Inlet and back so far is the only event certain to be held Saturday afternoon.

There are 25 entries so far in the "double" paddle event, mostly all from Victoria and district.

While the races are in progress on the Gorge, Indian dancers will perform on the lawn of the Empress Hotel.

200 Visitors Attend Gyro Installation

Navy Man Convicted Having Drug

Kardera was arrested early on the morning of Aug. 3 near the main gate of the base.

IN PLASTIC BAG

Two other seamen testified they were present when Cino paid Kardera $10 for a promise to deliver him a matchbox full of marijuana Aug. 2.

Kardera insisted he did not know the substance was marijuana. He said he bought it for $4 at a "hippie house" and thought it was some sort of herbal tea.

"It is absurd that anyone would want to pay $4 for herbal tea," commented Magistrate Ostler.

The magistrate remanded the case to Sept. 28 for pre-sentence report.

Two Students Receive Awards

Partnership in Crime Terminated in Court

A short-lived crime partnership ended in magistrate's court today when two men pleaded guilty to charges of false pretenses.

David Charette, 39, and Donald Gautier, 41, both of 44 San Jose Ave., appeared in court separately.

City police detective Tom Smith told the court Charette obtained a sports jacket from Eaton's Tuesday afternoon. He gave the store a $31.45 cheque later found to be worthless.

Magistrate Ostler remanded both until Sept. 28 for pre-sentence report.

Full Gospel Businessmen Meeting Here

B.C. Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi will represent the provincial government at the Pacific Northwest regional Full Gospel businessmen's convention at the Empress Hotel, Oct. 5-7.

Delegates will be welcomed at 3 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 5, and there will be a public meeting at 8 p.m. in the Empress ballroom.

Between religious and social meetings, delegates will visit the Royal London Wax Museum and the Maritime Museum.

On Saturday there will be an adult banquet, a youth banquet, a students' seminar and a children's meeting.

Among the speakers will be Earl Prickett, international vice-president, Pacific Northwest region, and Rev. John Costas, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Blackwood, N. J.

HE WANTS TO RESERVE EXPLANATION

Tim Glover, 3895 Hobbs, pleaded guilty to three similar charges in the court's Tuesday morning sessions.

The first three offences took place at the Sidney Travelodge, the Crystal Court Motel and the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. The fourth was at the Century Inn.

Glover said "I would like to reserve my explanation as other charges are coming in."

Rites Thursday For Ex-Banker

Private funeral services will be held Thursday at Hayward's Chapel for Donald Barrett Maclean, a native son of Victoria.

Mr. Maclean, who was 62, died Tuesday in Victoria. He was manager of the Royal Bank of Canada in Courtenay and later, before his retirement, savings manager at Royal branches in Victoria.

He leaves the widow, Margaret; a brother, Mr. Justice H. Alan Maclean of Vancouver; a nephew in Montreal and a niece in Courtenay.

Victoria Man Gets 2½ Months On Three Charges

A 22-year-old Victoria man was sentenced in magistrate's court today to a total of 2½ months for three offences.

Gerry Ouellette, 1192 Grant St., pleaded guilty to swearing, drinking in a public place, and supplying liquor to minors.

Police said the swearing charge arose after Ouellette used "filthy language" trying to provoke a fight at Thetis Lake Aug. 12. The police said many women and children were in hearing distance.

The other offences occurred at Courtenay in a hotel parking lot Aug. 12. Ouellette was found by police drinking in a car with a companion under the age of 21.

Magistrate Ostler sentenced him to $50 or 14 days on the first charge, and $50 or one month each on the second and third. Ouellette said he was unable to pay the fine.

RACING DAYS

It Was Horses He Loved

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The ponies are running again at Sandown.

So it must have been the echo of their hooves that thudded deep into my subconscious and churned up a story I heard some years ago.

Forbes

It's a true story with a setting at the old Willows race track. And it revolves around a wizened, grey-haired Irishman named — well, let's say Tom Casey — with a love of horses born in him as surely as was his belief in the leprechauns.

Tom had little or no money but that doesn't matter. Enough that he called a small cottage close to the Willows track, his home. And in and out of season he would be found at the stables.

He watched the boys as they worked. Greeted them by their first names. He knew the horses, too. The ones that were there in off seasons. He'd talk to them. Bring them tidbits. And on days when the stable hands were in good humor he'd help with the feeding and grooming.

But it was during racing seasons that Tom Casey was happiest for then there were horses in every stall. He knew them all and he greeted them as old friends.

In turn hands clapped him on the back and voices sang out his name with noisy pleasure. For stable boys, horse owners and jockeys were a little superstitious about Tom Casey.

You see, it was this way. He could pick winners. Day after day, season after season, he would tell you if you'd listen, what horse would win and which race it would win in.

When his favorites were running he would always be found leaning against the rails at the turn into the home stretch, his white hair ruffled, his eyes bright and his lips moving.

Some there were who said they had seen velvety ears flicker as ponies passed that particular turn. Be that as it may Tom Casey's favorites won.

The stable boys called it Casey's Luck. They laughed and joked about it. But they backed the horses he named ... and won ... and won again.

The years crept on as they have a habit of doing and with each succeeding season Tom's step got slower. But because he still picked his favorites no one thought much about it. Until the day he didn't show up at the stables.

Then one of the lads made his way to the little cottage. Tom was in bed. He couldn't walk. Indeed, the doctor said he would never walk again.

Another racing season rolled around and when people from the track dropped in to see him Tom asked such eager questions they knew his heart was with the ponies.

Oh! It was a grand scheme they thought of. And a "broth of a doctor" who gave them the go-ahead sign. They would bundle Tom up, they said, and carry him the short distance to the track.

They'd fix a place for him by the rails at the turn into the home stretch where he could see the flying hooves, talk to his favorites and perhaps pick winners for them again.

Each day they came for him and carried him to the track. Each night they took him back to the little cottage.

Tom was happy. Propped up with rugs and pillows he watched the horses. He talked to them. And some there were who said that they knew he was there. Perhaps it was so!

Finally the racing season was over. The horses went off to other tracks and with them went many of the lads Tom Casey called his friends.

★ ★ ★

He never knew they left money to help him make the home stretch that was just a few lengths away. They said they owed it to him.

Now for the strangest part of my story. As I've told you, Tom Casey picked winners as easily as you pick flowers.

Many there were who boasted that "Casey's luck" gave them their first stake. Many others backed his choices. Yet Tom Casey went to the Winning Post without a cent of racing money in his pockets.

There are those in Victoria who remember the old Willows race track. A few may have known the wizened, grey-haired Irishman who was never happier than when he was at the stables.

If they knew him, they will also know that what I have told you is true. Tom Casey loved horses. He could pick winners. But he never placed a bet in his life.

Outgoing UN President Warns Against 'Vietnams of Tomorrow'

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan, outgoing president of the UN General Assembly, deplored Tuesday the rising trend toward external intervention and warned that guerrilla movements were already forming in many parts of the world which "might well become the Vietnams of tomorrow".

Pazhwak, whose term ended with the opening of the 22nd General Assembly, added:

"We can only ponder how a world so badly shaken by one Vietnam could bear the shock of a number of conflicts."

He attributed the deteriorating world situation to a behind-the-scenes power struggle which is turning more and more to the use of force and is employing both resistance movements and mercenery forces to promote "purely selfish, national interests".

Lawyer Charges Police Brutality In Yorkville

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer Aubrey Golden, who says he has sworn statements alleging police brutality, has asked city council to order a judicial inquiry into police conduct.

In a letter to board of control, Mr. Golden said Monday police also were guilty of illegal entry and of threatening members of the public during a demonstration Aug. 20 in the midtown Yorkville coffee-house area.

Mr. Golden is acting for David DePoe, a hippie spokesman and member of the Company of Young Canadians, who led a series of demonstrations which sought to close Yorkville Ave. to traffic by a sitdown.

Mr. DePoe had said earlier that police had been brutal and behaved improperly in other ways during the demonstrations and the board on Sept. 1 asked him to supply details.

Mr. Golden Monday produced what he said were excerpts from sworn statements of witnesses.

He asked for a judicial inquiry on the ground that subpoena power "which would be available to my clients during the course of a judicial inquiry" would make it possible to identify the police officers involved.

He refused to furnish the board with the actual statements.

ECONOMIC UNION FORECAST

Canada-Japanese Trade Surpassing All Hopes

VANCOUVER (CP)—Both Canada and Japan are surprised at the mushrooming trade between the two nations, Col. Robert L. Houston, executive director of the Canada-Japan trade council, said today.

"When the Canada-Japan trade recommenced in the early 1950s people in both countries thought that if this trade became in the vicinity of $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 by 1965 this would be about the best which could reasonably be expected," he said.

But this year the value of Canadian goods export to Japan should reach a value of $600,000,000 with imports totalling $280,000,000, he told the American Association of Port Authorities convention.

"It is even possible that our two-way trade could pass the $1,000,000,000 mark by the end of 1968," he said.

"And if the increase continues, Japan may replace the United Kingdom as Canda's second largest trading partner.

"Canada is one of the most stable countries in the world today and Japan one of the most reliable markets. The two countries complement one another in many ways, to the benefit of both nations. The outlook for the future grows brighter with each passing year."

Col. Houston warned that Canadian port facilities must adapt to handling larger ships and heavier cargo loads to avoid "through our inability to handle this trade, an embarrassment of riches."

He also forecast "some sort of economic union in the Pacific."

"Twenty years ago people would have said the concept of the present European Common Market was unrealistic, but look what has happened."

Nasser Accepts Blame For Collapse of Army

TORONTO (CP)—Egypt's President Nasser accepts responsibility for the collapse of his armies in the June Middle-East war and is only staying in power because he fears civil war will break out if he quits, writes a Toronto anthropologist who has recently interviewed the Egyptian leader.

In an article in The Star, William Morris, who taught anthropology at the American University in Cairo in 1965-66 and returned there last month on a fact-finding tour, writes that President Nasser told him "he personally and the revolution he started in the Arab World are compromised by the June defeat, and that the only thing he can do is make way quickly for a successor who can start afresh."

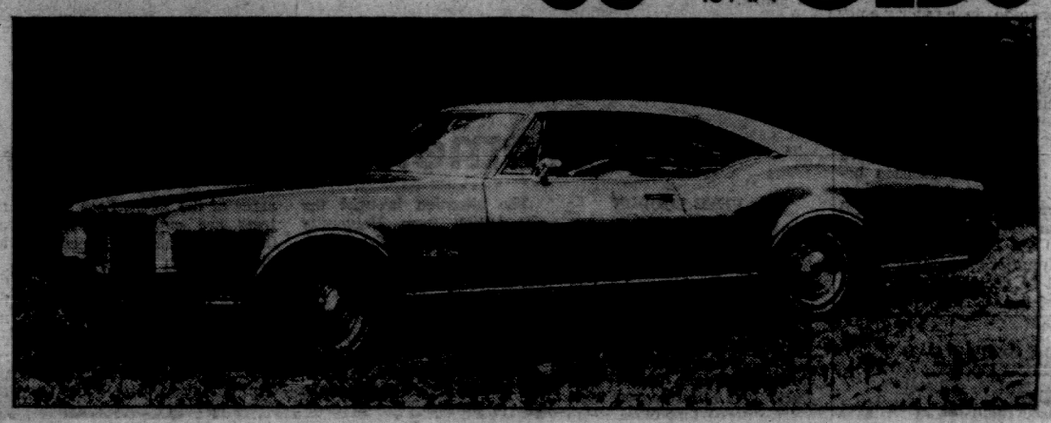

But if he stepped down as president now, the only alternative would be "an Egypt run by the extremist conservative Moslem Brotherhood, a secret organization that would turn back Egypt 1,000 years in Nasser's view."

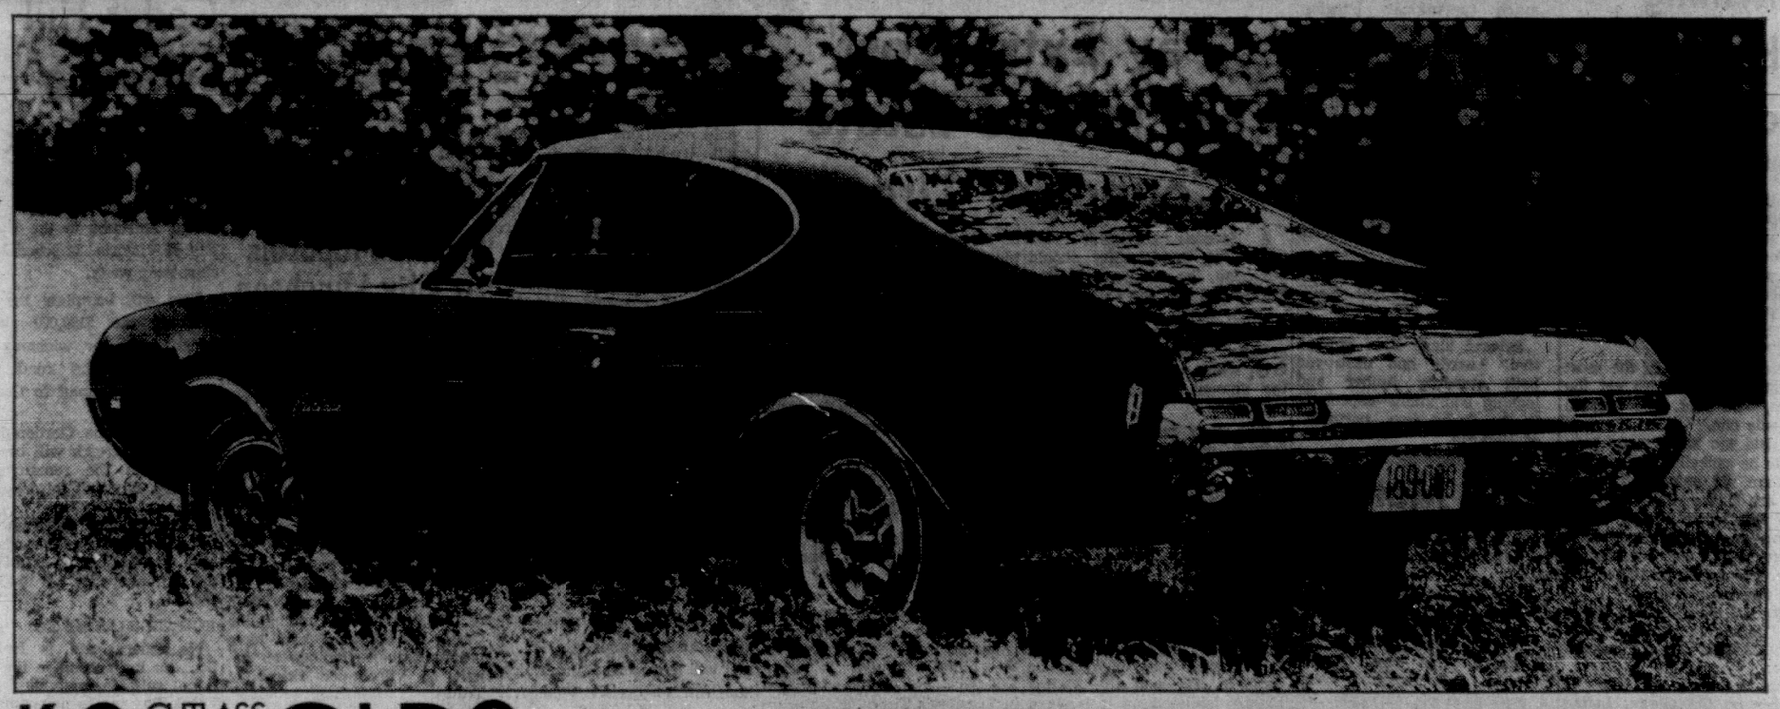

CHINESE INVITED

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Kremlin has invited China to send a delegation to celebrations here for the 50th anniversary of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution in November, informed sources said Tuesday. The sources said the invitation was communicated through the Chinese embassy in Moscow at the beginning of this month.

And the "inside story" for 1968 starts with the biggest, smoothest V-8 engine ever put into a production motor car.

Now, enter a new era of luxury car performance—with the biggest and smoothest engine ever put into a production passenger car—the completely new Cadillac 472 V-8. This new V-8 has the greatest torque, or usable power, of any passenger car engine and has the newest combination of engine components since Cadillac pioneered the V-8 fifty-three years ago. You will notice a brilliant improvement in passing performance that in no way compromises a huge reserve of power to operate all of Cadillac's usual power conveniences.

You will also be impressed with its amazing quiet—so remarkable that only its responsiveness reminds you that a great new engine lies under the hood.

Cadillac for 1968 provides, in addition, its well-proved triple braking system with finned drums that delivers smooth, straight stopping power. Front disc brakes are available for those who prefer the further refinement of an advanced disc-and-drum combination, and this year they're standard on Eldorado. You may also choose a greatly improved air conditioning system that moves more air more quietly.

There is a new instrument panel ... windshield wipers that disappear when not in use ... new brilliance of styling and interiors so beautiful and luxurious that they must be seen to be believed.

Whether your preference is for one of the more traditional models—or the classic beauty of the Eldorado—come discover new elegance and excitement in luxury motoring!

ESTABLISH FRIENDSHIP AT LUNCH

PM, Stanfield Enjoy Meeting

PEARSON

STANFIELD
. . . in the garden

By TIMES OTTAWA BUREAU

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Stanfield seem bent on establishing a good personal friendship, in spite of inevitable political differences.

The two men had a private beefsteak-and-kidney-pie lunch yesterday at Mr. Pearson's residence and both came away relaxed and smiling.

"I get along with Mr. Stanfield very well indeed," said the prime minister.

They had discussed matters dealing with parliamentary business when the house opens next week, and methods by which the workload could be organized most effectively.

Mr. Pearson said he thought they had got off to a very good start

He added that it is important that the opposition leader and prime minister maintain a good relationship on matters of bi-partisan concern.

For his part Mr. Stanfield said he doubted whether their relationship would be quite as pleasant in parliament as it had been at lucnh.

He thought he and Mr. Pearson "got along pretty well."

"I don't know how long that will last in the sense that we will have our party differences of opinion," he added.

As opposition leader he would be putting his views across as forcefully as possible, and he was sure the prime minister would do the same

"But I hope that would not affect our personal relationships," Mr. Stanfield said.

Tennis-Playing Pearson Still Tightly Strung

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—Lester B. Pearson looked down at blue-eyed John Prior during a picnic in the prime minister's Northern Ontario riding of Algoma East and remarked:

"I hope I will look as well when I reach 93."

Mr. Pearson very well may. At 70, he shows little wear and tear. Robust, wry, a bit grandfatherly, he made politicking look easy during a three-day visit to Algoma East last week.

Earlier this month, he set aside the affairs of state to pair with Governor-General Michener, who is a trim 67, in a fast-paced tennis match on the Government House courts.

Their opponents were 29-year-old King Constantine of Greece and Flt.-Lt. Marc Landry, 27, aide-de-camp to Mr. Michener and a former junior tennis champion.

The Pearson-Michener combination, which dates back to their varsity days in the 1920s, won the first set 6-3 and dropped the second 4-6.

Despite some retirement hints early this year, aides say he will be Liberal leader until at least November, 1968.

The party's next bienniel convention is due then and it could set the stage for a leadership convention.

ELBOWING SHOWS

A certain amount of elbowing has become noticeable in Liberal front ranks as the question of a potential successor opens.

Manitoulin Island Liberals countered last week with a resolution asking Mr. Pearson to continue to represent the riding and lead the party "through the next and succeeding general elections."

Their MP, elected in 1948 and seldom more popular, replied tactfully:

"You can say that I said 'yes' before I read it. Don't hold that against me."

'Tough Kids' Factor In Teacher Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the major issues in the New York City teachers strike is the so-called disruptive child.

In the old days the disruptive child was hustled out of the classroom and into reform school.

But what to do with him in a more enlightened age?

The issue is one of the hardest to crack in the United Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) strike against the New York public school system, the largest in the United States with 1,100,000 pupils.

"Disruptive child is a very poor term," says Richard Lubell, assistant superintendent of schools.

"If something is done that interferes with the education of others or himself, then he is disruptive. It's a broad-based definition. When you begin to apply that, then you have problems because you're applying it in the context of different people, each of whom has a different set of standards, acceptances and rejections."

The UFT has sought the power for teachers to rid their classrooms of disruptive children. The board of education has proposed an independent board to review complaints by teachers about disruptive pupils.

Several teachers have complained that they have been beaten up by pupils.

Warm Clothing Needed Now By Unitarians

Contributions of warm, clean clothing are urgently needed for the Victoria Work Group of the Unitarian Service Committee.

The committee is also eager for used babies' wear, worn blankets and drapes. Material should preferably be wool or cotton and still have at least a year's wear.

Wool is also available for cardigan knitting. Anyone with donations to be picked up or who is willing to knit, pack or mend is asked to call Mrs. E. Lord, 385-0543 or go to the collection and packing centre, 1117 Wharf Street, open every Thursday from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

WORKER'S KISS FATAL

PAVIA, Italy (Reuters)—A 21-year-old girl died of a heart attack after being kissed by a colleague at a factory near here, police said today.

'KILLER MINE' SECTIONS CLOSED OFF

ST. LAWRENCE, Nfld. (CP) — The deaths of three miners in the Newfoundland Fluorspar Co. pit here last week has disturbed this work force, led to closure of a dangerous underground work area and raised questions about the future of the so-called "killer" mine.

Robert Edwards, John Slaney and Noel Warren were killed Friday by an underground rockfall in No. 508 slope, scene of several similar but non-fatal upheavals in the last year.

The area where the three died has been permanently shut down and several other hazardous sections have been closed temporarily, it was announced Tuesday by mine authorities.

'MERCI' CARDS BY THOUSANDS FOR CHARLES

MONTREAL (CP) — The St. Jean Baptiste Society, a French-Canadian nationalist organization, announced Tuesday it has received more than 40,000 post cards from Quebecers, inscribed with "Merci, mon General," to be forwarded to French President Charles de Gaulle.

Gilles Breault, a member of the society, launched the campaign several weeks ago to collect cards to show the French president the "gratitude and the support of the Quebec people" for his "historic" visit to Canada last July.

The cards will be sent to Paris in a few weeks under the auspices of the society.

Toronto Group to Conduct Its Own Study of UFOs

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Gordon Patterson, an aerospace specialist, believes unidentified flying objects should be taken seriously, so he has agreed to participate in a study of them.

"We won't get into the question of whether they are or whether they are not from outer space, but whether they are amenable to scientific study," he said Tuesday.

Dr. Patterson is head of the Institute of Aerospace Studies at the University of Toronto, which will hold a seminar Thursday as part of a scientific investigation of UFOs.

Dr. J. Allen Hynek, head of the astronomy department of Illinois' Northwestern University and a scientific consultant for the United States Air Force, will attend the seminar which will determine the scale of the institute's study.

SIMILAR STUDY HELD

A similar study was conducted in the U.S. recently by Dr. Edward U. Condon of the University of Colorado. The 15-month study, costing $313,000 and sponsored by the USAF, was held because of speculation the U.S. government was hiding the truth about UFOs.

"We feel the time is ripe for a Canadian institution to undertake a serious academic review of the whole subject," Dr. Patterson said. "The USAF has in the past adopted the attitude that unexplained sightings were all products of hoaxes, hallucinations or misinterpretations of data.

"I do not feel that all such sightings can be explained away in this fashion."

Dr. Patterson said some sightings in Canada have been made by weather forecasters, airline pilots and other trained observers.

"You just can't brush these things aside."

He said the institute will use scientific equipment to evaluate sightings.

STEELER LINEMEN FLEX MUSCLES

Planning to make things uncomfortable for Eugene Bombers at Royal Athletic Park Saturday night, linemen with Victoria Steelers are laboring this week to perfect plays and strengthen muscles. This was one of drills for burly Steeler linemen Tuesday night as coach Don McKeta ran squad through rugged workout. McKeta hopes to collect second victory of Continental Football League season against Bombers, who have added guard Dennis Brewster from Los Angeles Rams.

Bosox Tied With Twins; Drop Tigers to Fourth

Boswell Survives Troubles To Turn Back Kansas City

By The Associated Press

Dave Boswell overcame a severe backache and early control problems Tuesday night and finished with a brilliant two-hitter as Minnesota Twins held a share of the American League lead by pounding Kansas City Athletics 8-2.

The victory kept the Twins tied for first place with Boston Red Sox, who scored the winning run on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Earl Wilson, Detroit's 21-game winner, during a three-run ninth-inning spurt that caged the Tigers 4-2.

Detroit fell into the fourth spot in the hectic stretch race, one game behind the leaders and one-half length back of Chicago White Sox, who blanked California Angels 3-0 on Joe Horlen's six-hitter.

WINS NO. 14

Boswell breezed to his 14th victory after being hurt by five walks, two wild pitches and a hit batsman in the first four innings. He struck out eight and retired 16 of the last 17 batters he faced.

The Minnesota right-hander said his wildness was due, in part, to a sore back.

The Twins, breaking out of a week-long hitting slump, tagged Jim Nash for four runs in the early innings, then struck for four unearned runs in the seventh after Sal Bando's error opened the gates.

"We've got it going our way," said Bob Allison, who contributed two singles and a double to the Twins' 14-hit attack. Allison, Ted Uhlaender and Jerry Zimmerman—who also stroked three hits—drove in two runs apiece.

SINGLE TIES SCORE

The Red Sox were down 2-1 on the scoreboard at Detroit when Jerry Adair reached southpaw Mickey Lolich for a leadoff single in the ninth. Carl Yastrzemski drew a walk and George Scott tied the score with a single to centre.

Lolich, who had allowed only four hits while striking out 13 through the eighth, then was replaced by Wilson, making his first relief appearance of the year.

After Reggie Smith sacrificed, Wilson walked pinch hitter Dalton Jones intentionally, filling the bases. The Detroit ace then wild-pitched the go-ahead run home and the Red Sox added an insurance tally on Russ Gibson's sacrifice fly.

Jim Northrup's two-run homer in the sixth had given the Tigers their one-run edge.

Horlen stranded Jim Fregosi after the California shortstop tripled with one out in the first inning, then limited the Angels to five singles on the way to his fifth shutout and 18th victory of the year.

RECLAMATION PROJECT

St. Louis Cardinals are champions of the National League but the consolation prize for reclamation project of the year goes to Mike McCormick of San Francisco Giants.

McCormick became the league's first 20-game winner Tuesday when the Giants rallied for five ninth-inning runs and a 6-2 victory over Chicago Cubs.

Jack Hiatt's two-run pinch double keyed San Francisco's ninth-inning uprising and helped McCormick reach the 20-victory mark for the first time.

Elsewhere in the National League Tuesday, New York Mets dropped Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3, St. Louis blanked Philadelphia Phillies 1-0, Cincinnati Reds trimmed Atlanta Braves 3-1 and Pittsburgh Pirates rallied for an 11-7 victory over Houston Astros.

It took 11 years and three trades before McCormick finally paid off on the investment the Giants made on him back in 1956 when they signed him as a 17-year-old bonus baby.

He was traded to Baltimore in 1963 and to Washington in 1965 before returning to San Francisco in an unheralded three-player swap last winter. He's been anything but unheralded for the Giants though.

Trailing 2-1 against Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., after eight innings, McCormick departed for a pinch hitter as the Giants rallied in the ninth. He was the pitcher of record when the runs scored and thus received credit for the victory.

DONNIE MARSHALL

Another Ranger Injured In Thumping by Bruins

By The Canadian Press

Unless something happens to change their luck soon, New York Rangers may start the National Hockey League season with a complete lineup of new faces.

After three pre-season exhibition games, the Rangers have had three probable first-stringers put out of action for varying periods of time.

Most recent was Donnie Marshall, taken to hospital in London, Ont., with a ruptured blood vessel in his thigh after being dumped Tuesday night by Boston Bruins forward Ross Lonsberry in a game the Bruins won 9-3.

It was one of three games played Tuesday with Eddie Joyal scoring three goals to spark Los Angeles Kings to a 7-3 victory over Minnesota North Stars at Guelph, Ont., and Philadelphia Flyers being held to a 2-2 tie by Quebec Aces of the American League.

NO WORD ON TIME

There was no immediate report on how long Marshall's injury may keep him out of action, but Larry Jeffrey and Red Berenson missed the game because of injuries picked up Sunday.

Berenson will be out until after the weekend with a bruised instep but Jeffrey will be gone well into the week with a knee injury.

Lonsberry, Fred Stanfield and Johnny McKenzie paced the Bruins with two goals Tuesday as Derek Sanderson, Tommy Williams and Ted Green contributed one each.

Green had signed a two-year contract with Boston earlier in the day.

SOME BRIGHT SPOTS

A number of bright spots shone through for beleaguered general managers Tuesday as players started signing contracts in increasing numbers and two Toronto Maple Leafs holdouts reported at their Peterborough, Ont., camp.

None of them have signed contracts as yet, nor indeed has Bob Pulford, but at least Punch Imlach has them on the ice.

WON VEZINA TROPHY

Winner of the Vezina Trophy last year as the goalie playing the greatest number of games with the least goals scored against him, De Jordy is staying at home in Buffalo with his wife while the Black Hawks ponder his $35,000 demand.

Chicago is reported offering him $20,000, but DeJordy knows well that Glenn Hall got $42,000 from the Hawks last season and is getting $47,500 this year from Los Angeles. And Hall didn't win the trophy.

KANGAROOS ALSO SNIFF AFTER LOSS

MONTREAL (CP) — Even the kangaroos were sniffing at Expo 67's Australian pavilion following the defeat of Australia's Dame Pattie by Intrepid for the America's Cup.

A cross lettered "R.I.P." was spotted Tuesday on one of the large dirt mounds near where tourists congregate to observe kangaroos and some Australian gum trees.

Kangaroos sniffed around the cross which also carried the words:

"Dame Pattie rests here."

Trainer Says Nino's Ready For Battle

HAINES FALLS, N.Y. (AP) —Bruno Amaduzzi, trainer of middleweight champion Nino Benvenuti, denied reports Tuesday that the Italian's title fight against Emile Griffith at Shea Stadium Sept. 28 would be postponed because of a rib injury.

"The ridiculous rumors are completely unfounded and untrue," said Amaduzzi. "Benvenuti will fight at Shea Stadium Sept. 28. He is in perfect condition."

Young Ducks Survive Heat On Prairies

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prairie duck population has remained fairly constant in comparison to last year despite a hot and dry summer, Ducks Unlimited (Canada) says in a survey report.

It said prairie waters have held up well and, as a result, "brood survival to the flight stage has been very good." Major production centre was Alberta with only the south-central area considered a weak spot.

There was some brood losses in Saskatchewan but the overall situation is good. Most waters in the southern breeding range are carrying a large number of birds.

Russians, Finns To Play in B.C.

Exhibition games for the Russian and Finnish national hockey teams have been scheduled in British Columbia for the coming season.

Opponents for the Russians have not yet been selected, Temple said, but the Soviet nationals are tentatively scheduled to appear Dec. 23 in Vancouver's new arena, expected to be completed in time for the contest.

The Finns will be on a North American tour while the Russians will be en route to Winnipeg for an international tournament early in the New Year.

NHL Brass to Discuss Formula for Playoffs

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League's board of governors will meet in Toronto next Tuesday and Wednesday to formally ratify the 444-game, 25-week schedule for the coming season.

Also expected on the agenda will be discussion and the possible approval of a proposed playoff formula and post-season monetary awards for the expanded 12-team, two-division league.

Brian O'Neill, director of administration for the league, said that one playoff plan to be discussed would feature quarter-finals in which the first and third and second and fourth teams in each division would meet within their own division.

The survivors of these rounds would then meet in two inter-division semi-final series and the winners would meet in the Stanley Cup final.

Under this setup both divisions would have an equal opportunity to win the cup.

The duration of the quarter-final and semi-final rounds has not yet been determined—whether the clubs will play a three-out-of-five or four-out-of-seven games to declare a winner.

Firestone Drops Rope

INDIANAPOLIS — Automobile racing's most famous tug-of-war between the sport's "angels" ended unexpectedly Monday within the shadow of the Indianapolis Motor speedway, where it began three years ago.

Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. announced that it no longer will invest money in contracts for drivers and racing teams to assure their use of its products. The other contestant, Goodyear, is expected to follow suit.

Firestone said the company will continue to develop and design race tires and "make them available for purchase by any car owner or driver who elects to use our product."

McEACHERN SEEKS . . . . . REPORT ON FIASCO

'Ottawa Fans Are So Peaceful'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Allan McEachern, acting commissioner of the Canadian Football League, says he will ask game officials for a report on Saturday's clash between Calgary and Montreal in which fans stormed on to the field before the game ended.

On the last play of the game, won 4-0 by Calgary, Stampeders' Ben Woodson fumbled and the ball was picked up by Montreal defensive end John Baker who began running toward the goal line.

He was only partially stopped by Calgary quarterback Peter Liske but fans blocked his path and he was eventually grounded.

"It is always unfortunate when a crowd goes on the field before a game ends, particularly so in a case like this," said McEachern, "But I doubt if the player was going to get away from everyone.

"Crowd control is the responsibility of the home club and it is something that every club has got to keep on top of."

He said that fans swarmed on to Clarke Stadium turf in Edmonton Sunday after the Western Football Conference game with the B.C. Lions "after they had been asked three times not to."

The commissioner noted that crowd control was improved in Vancouver when an iron fence was erected around the running track that circles the Empire Stadium field.

It was ordered after fans got out of hand during Grey Cup games, he said, but no special measures are planned for the Ottawa Grey Cup game this year because the fans there "are so peaceful and law-abiding, it won't be necessary."

Liske Has Chance Tonight To Convince Toronto Fans

By CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders have an outstanding opportunity tonight to pad their Western Football Conference lead over Saskatchewan Roughriders when they take on Toronto Argonauts at CNE Stadium.

And Toronto fans are expected to turn out in strong numbers if for no better reason than to see for themselves if Peter Liske, the quarterback who wasn't good enough for the Argos, is really as good with Calgary as he's cracked up to be.

With Liske at the helm, the Stamps have rolled to a 7-1 won-lost record this season while the Argos under Wally Gabler, the man Liske was cut for, have won only twice in six outings.

Liske has piled up most of his offence on the receiving of Terry Evanshen, Herm Harrison and Jerry Shaw along with the power running of Lovell Coleman.

STRIPPED RIFLES

The Argos, after an outstanding pre-season series in which they seemed to do no wrong in running up three victories in four tries, now can't seem to do anything right even though coach Leo Cahill has dipped deep into the roster of Toronto Rifles of the Continental League for strength.

After stripping the Rifles of fullback Joe Williams and guard Ed Harrington a few weeks ago, Cahill this week signed quarterback Tom Wilson away from the Rifles as a back-up for Gabler even though he was Dick Thornton, alternate last year for Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the EFC, in the defensive backfield.

But the Argos must have something new with which to assault the Western powerhouse, judging from the secrecy with which he had his team practising for the 8 p.m. EDT game which will be broadcast by the CTV network.

While the Stampeders welcomed all who wished to see them go through their paces Cahill had his charges working out under tight security wraps Monday night.

Fearful that Calgary might learn something of his plans, Cahill had the stadium scoured of everyone who didn't belong to the Toronto press corps and all Stampeders and then locked before the Argos were allowed out of their underground dressing rooms.

But the only secret readily noticed was that Wilkinson was calling some of the signals during the practice and, even though he may not get into tonight's game, Cahill expects him to be a strong offensive threat for the team.

Important as the game is for Calgary, Cahill feels it is even more important for Toronto.

"Amazing as it may sound," he said, "if we beat Calgary we'll be tied with Ottawa for second place."

Toronto still would be four points behind EFC-leading Hamilton Tiger-Cats, but a good deal better off than alone in the conference cellar.

Ferguson to Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats have picked up halfback Larry Ferguson, 27, to replace injured Dick Cohee.

Ferguson was released by Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference three weeks ago.

HENRY TO CINCY

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Henry, left-handed pitcher who had an 8-7 record for Syracuse of the International League, has been sold to Cincinnati Reds.

Two Defeats Shake Rugby Confidence

LONDON (Reuters)—The English Rugby Union team left for a five-match tour of Canada today, its confidence shaken by two defeats in three build-up games.

The 22 players, named in May, had two get-together weekends here and it was hoped that a team strong enough to beat the powerful New Zealand All-Blacks in November would emerge from the Canadian tour.

The two defeats in warm-up matches have shattered these hopes and there now is little doubt that the side to meet the All-Blacks will contain a number of players not going to Canada.

Threats Will Not Stop Jockey From Return to English Races

LONDON (AP)—Australian jockey George Moore says he intends to ride in England again next year despite threats on his life.

The 43-year-old Moore, now in Paris, was quoted by British newspapers as saying that "foreign voices" threatened him on the telephone instructing him to lose or win races.

The anonymous threats also were directed at his wife and family, he said.

"These people are cranks, not gangsters," he is quoted as telling The Daily Mirror. "I shall still race in England."

Moore admitted he has been "worried" but denied he went to Paris to hide. He said he went there to watch his 15-year-old son Gary ride at Longchamp race track — and to ride there himself Friday.

REPORTS FROM SYDNEY

Reports of threats against Moore reached London from Sydney, where the Australian newspaper, the Sydney Sun, claimed Moore said that gangsters in England "have made my life hell."

The newspaper also quoted Moore as saying:

"A team of gangsters has made my life hell. The gangsters seem to know all my movements. They follow me around all the time.

"Last week they threatened to blow all of us up, to shoot Iris, Michelle and me. . . .

The spokesman had no further comment and refused to say whether it was planned to give the family police protection if it returned to England.

Moore's London home was ransacked at the weekend. Clothes belonging to his wife and daughter were slashed but nothing was reported stolen.

Police said they were investigating.

Moore joined the famous stable of British trainer Noe Murless this season and the Australian has won three English classics, including the Derby. The stable winnings this year amount to £250,000 ($750,000), and the lion's share has been collected by Moore.

Denis Foley, writing in the London Evening News, said: "Moore seems to have been singled out for attention probably by members of London's betting-mad underworld."

THIRD LARGEST DOUBLE PAID OUT AT AQUEDUCT

NEW YORK (AP)—Crooked Count and Mecca's Sister combined for the third largest daily double in the history of thoroughbred racing in New York Tuesday with a payoff of $3,648.20 for $2 at Aqueduct.

Fifty-six $2 tickets and one of $10 were sold in the 8-10 combination.

The payoff has been topped only by the $4,310.90 returned after Buddie Jones and Junction City won the first two races of the Saratoga at Belmont Park meeting on August 27, 1945, and the $3,880 paid by Markobob and Spirit at Old Aqueduct on September 3, 1945.

Uplands Junior King Tangles With Veteran

Club junior champion Dave McCall tackles a rugged veteran campaigner Sunday in the second round of match play in the men's championship tournament at Uplands Golf Club.

McCall, who won the junior title for a second time last weekend with a two-over-par 72, will go against former city champion Frank Scroggs.

Ken Knott finished second to McCall in the junior test with a 74 and Keith Burrell took low-net honors. Division winners were Marty Smith, Ian Anderson and Mike Donald.

8:00—F. Switzer vs. M. Johnson; K. Taylor vs. R. Barnard.
8:08—G. Briscoe vs. L. Wilson; R. Hunt vs. . Kirk.

Puck Playoff Ends Tonight

Saanich Wings will be facing a two-goal deficit at the Sports Centre tonight when they tangle with Dave Duncan Shell in the final game of the Esquimalt Summer Hockey League playoff.

The Shell crew grabbed an advantage in the two-game, total-goals final by clipping the Wings 7-5 Monday night. Dave Davidson fired four goals for the winners and Rich Lougheed notched four for the Wings, who reached the final Sunday with a 4-2 win over Victoria North Americans.

Tonight's game starts at 8:30.

Thai Puncher Retains Title

LONDON (AP) — Chartchai Chionoi of Thailand stopped Walter McGowan of Scotland in the seventh round Tuesday night to retain his world flyweight boxing title.

McGowan weighed 111¼ pounds; the champion 110¼.

Bathgate Signed

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Andy Bathgate, the National Hockey League's ninth leading all-time goal scorer with 314 tallies, has signed a one-year contract with Pittsburgh Penguins in the league's new Western Division.

Bathgate, 35, a former most valuable player, will be starting his 14th NHL sason.

PORTLAND (AP) — Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast League have bought veteran pitcher Bill Faul from the Tacoma Cubs.

Veteran Kicker Joins Alouettes

MONTREAL (CP) — Bob Jencks, three-year place kicker veteran of the National Football League, has joined Montreal Alouettes for a five-day trial.

"We considered bringing in Jencks a couple of weeks ago when he was released by Los Angeles Rams but we decided against it then," said coach Kay Dalton of the Eastern Football Conference club.

Coach Believes Redmen Can Still Take Playoff

VANCOUVER (CP) — Brooklin Redmen have a respectable reputation in their Ontario stomping grounds for winning the lacrosse games that really count.

The Redmen stormed into Vancouver last week brimming with confidence and collided with an equally determined Vancouver squad in the Canadian senior lacrosse championship.

Now the Redmen are behind 3-1 in the best-of-seven series for the Mann Cup, and coach Fred Whalley is praying for another miracle in tonight's fifth and what could be the final game.

Brooklin won the eastern title by taking the seventh game in both the Ontario Lacrosse Association's semi-final and final series.

But the Vancouverites seem to have caught the visitors by surprise with a hard-checking, brawling style that has kept the Redmen pinned in their own end guarding the net.

After upsetting Vancouver 9-8 in the opener, the Redmen have been unable to score more than five goals in one game. Vancouver took the next three games by scores of 9-5, 19-5 and 13-4.

One reason is the brilliant play of Vancouver goalie Skip Chapman, but Whalley still feels his club can beat the western champions.

HAD TOUGH PRACTICE

He put the club through a 90-minute practice Tuesday and then went fishing.

Another member of the Brooklin executive, manager Bill Vipond, said Whalley is considering sending two of his players home because of mediocre performances.

"It wouldn't cause any great problems because we brought two extra players with us," said Vipond.

"Something like that might just be enough to snap the club out of it."

Vipond would not name the players involved.

FIGHT RESULTS

PROTESTS WAR

U.S. Aid Team Quits Saigon

SAIGON (CP)—Four leading members of the largest U.S. volunteer relief organization in South Vietnam announced today they resigned in protest against U.S. policy in Vietnam.

The resignations followed an open letter to President Johnson signed by 49 members of the U.S. International Voluntary Services organization, calling for steps to de-escalate the war and a halt to bombing of North Vietnam.

IVS—the largest private relief group of its kind in South Vietnam—has about 170 members working in agriculture, education and community development in the countryside.

The letter charged that U.S. war policies are "self-defeating" and asserted that the U.S. "continues to let self-interest stand in the way of self-determination in Vietnam."

"The trend has been escalation of the war," the letter said. "We say the trend should be de-escalation."

POPULATION SUFFERING

The five-page letter said the suffering of the ordinary population was "greatly intensified by today's American presence" and it questioned results obtained from both the refugee program and the vital rural pacification plan.

The letter contended there was more anti-Americanism in Vietnam now than ever before.

Resigning are Don Luce of East Calais, Vt., director of IVS in Vietnam who has been in the country for nine years; Gene Stolzfus of Aurora, Ohio, associate director who has been here four years; and William Meyers of Souderton, Pa. and Don Ronk of Arcata, Calif., who have worked in Vietnam for the organization for three and two years respectively.

The services' workers on farms, helping refugees and the aged, and teaching English are financed largely by funds from the U.S. Agency for International Development.

GROUP NON-PROFIT

Volunteers include college graduates, former soldiers and several conscientious objectors performing alternate service. The organization is private and non-profit.

The resignations came during a dispute between relief agencies and the U.S. Mission in Vietnam over civilian volunteers' latitude in expressing their opinions on the war to Vietnamese and other Americans.

The volunteers have indicated they believed they were being pushed toward an unwanted association with the war.

BARGAIN IN BUSTS WAITING IN HONG KONG

HONG KONG (UP)—Chinese Communist stores here are holding their annual autumn sale on merchandise ranging from clothes and food to political propaganda items.

In the Kowloon branch of an establishment called "China Arts and Crafts," a shelf containing rows of plaster busts of Mao Tse-tung has a sign over it reading: "Ten per cent off."

NEW APPEAL

Rights Denied Union Men?

Three men and a trade union were not told at the outset of a contempt case whether it was civil or criminal action, the B.C. Appeal Court was told Tuesday afternoon.

Lawyer John Stanton said his clients were thus deprived of certain rights under the Criminal Code and the Canadian Bill of Rights. B.C. Supreme Court fined the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union $25,000 and jailed three officials for one year each.

The officials, president Steve Stavenes, secretary Homer Stevens and business agent Jack Nichol, were later released on bail. The contempt convictions arose from an injunction last March and certain press releases.

Thirty spectators, including various union officials from Victoria and Vancouver, followed the appeal before three judges.

Mr. Justice H. W. Davey said the trial judge held it was criminal "and I have not the slightest doubt, What were you prevented from doing by the absence of a ruling?"

Mr. Stanton replied that counsel was not able to be instructed properly.

PROOF RULES

"The first thing counsel must know is where does the onus of proof lie—does it have to be proved by the person alleging beyond a reasonable doubt, or does it have only to be proved on a balance of probability.

"As it happened, it did turn out to be criminal (procedure) but that is not the point I'm trying to make. At the outset of a case a person has the right to this information —this may have a vital bearing.

"My clients were deprived of their rights. This is one of the reasons for this appeal."

Mr. Stanton spent some time reading precedents and other cases to the appeal court, which began hearings Monday and is expected to adjourn Thursday until next month.

He said equality before the law, part of the Bill of Rights passed by Ottawa in 1960, means that one person has the right to be treated the same way as another and the right to be informed of the nature of the proceedings.

He also said the B.C. Supreme Court convictions depend on the validity of a March 23 injunction and contended that this order was invalid.

Non-Church School Boards Backed by Quebec Council

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's Superior Council of Education came out today in favor of a system of non-denominational regional school boards across Quebec province and the eventual disappearance of local Roman Catholic and Protestant school boards.

In a report to Education Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, the 24-member advisory body expressed support for the regional system recommended last year by the parent royal commission on education.

It said the question of denominationalism should be handled at the local level, by committees of parents and teachers formed in each individual school.

The council, which itself results from a recommendation of the Parent report, made its report after holding public hearings across the province and listening to the views of 87 groups.

It acts as an advisory body to the education department, which called the hearings last winter after a province-wide controversy arose over the Parent recommendation that "neutral" or non-denominational regional boards be established, to be responsible for all schooling.

The royal commission was headed by Msgr. Alphonse-Marie Parent, vice-rector of Laval University.

The council said the administration of public pre-school, primary and secondary education should be taken gradually from the hands of local school boards and placed in the hands of the regional boards.

Two other bodies should be set up to share organization and administrative tasks with the regional boards.

Large co-ordinating bodies called Councils on School Development should be set up in the main administrative regions, having only consultative powers at first but gradually increasing their scope.

At the same time individual school committees composed of parents and teachers could be set up in each school to determine the school's religious denomination or lack of it.

The council's recommendations did not receive unanimous support from all members.

Overlooked Indians Given Tour

WINNIPEG (CP)—A group of 35 Indian students from the Yukon and northern British Columbia will travel across Canada in October because a food company president feels Canadians have tended to overlook the original occupants of the country.

The Independent Grocers Alliance is sponsoring the "See—Enjoy Canada" journey.

Bruce H. Codville, president of Codville Co. Ltd., IGA suppliers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, said in an interview Tuesday the trip will include steps in Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax.

The program is being conducted in co-operation with the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development and the Canadian Centennial Commission.

Levesque Divides Quebec Liberals

Kierans Vetoes Separatist Views But Lesage Refrains From Comment

MONTREAL (CP) — A proposition by Rene Levesque, an outspoken Quebec Liberal, to change the province into a "sovereign state" was attacked Tuesday night by Eric Kierans, president of the Quebec Liberal federation.

However, Liberal Opposition Leader Jean Lesage said Mr. Levesque's proposal was not necessarily separatist in character.

The two statements followed Mr. Levesque's delivery of a manifesto at a Liberal party meeting Monday night in the Montreal riding of Laurier where the former cabinet minister said:

"We will have to dare seize for ourselves the entire liberty of Quebec, its rights to all the essential elements of independence, that is to say, the full control of each and every one of its principal collective decisions."

Eric Kierans said Tuesday night his party probably will not accept Mr. Levesque's proposal.

The provincial Liberal party, he continued, believes in a strong Quebec and a united Canada.

"Anybody has the right to choose his own way and his own path, even Rene Levesque," he said in an interview at Montebello, Que.

"But I can assure you that the Liberal party is not only non-separatist: it is anti-separatist.

Mr. Kierans said Mr. Levesque's proposal will be discussed during the federation's annual meeting, Oct. 13-15.

"But there is no doubt in my mind that it will be defeated," he said.

Mr. Lesage, meanwhile, said in Lake Megantic, Que., it did not appear that Mr. Levesque had endorsed independence for Quebec.

GIVES NO REACTION

However, he refused to offer his own reaction to the Levesque plan, especially since he had not read the 33-page explanation that went with the manifesto.

He said the manifesto will be presented as a policy resolution at the annual meeting of the federation next month.

Another constitutional proposal will be voted on this weekend by the Quebec Federation of Young Liberals.

Guy Morin, president of the young Liberals, says he plans to present to delegates a resolution calling for an "associate states" formula for Canada which would give priority to the rights of the provinces.

Two Men Drowned

CRESTON (CP) — The bodies of two men drowned near Wynndell, 10 miles north of here in the East Kootenay, were recovered Tuesday morning, police reported. Geore Mawson, 72, and Thomas V. Mawson, 50, died when their boat overturned Monday while they were fixing duck hunting blinds at the south end of Kootenay Lake.

Old Shell Kills Boys

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The "time of their life" ended in death for three young Lincoln boys and serious injury to a fourth Tuesday when a live bazooka-type artillery shell they had been playing with accidentally exploded.

N-Arms Budget Up

PARIS (Reuters) — Armed Forces Minister Pierre Messner said Tuesday France next year will spend about 6,500,000,000 francs ($1,300,000,000), or more than one quarter its military budget, on its nuclear weapons and defence systems. He told the National Assembly defence commission the armed forces budget for the coming year totals 24,992,000,000 francs ($4,998,000,000) of which about half will be capital expenditure.

Beatles Voted Tops

LONDON (Reuters) — The Beatles today were voted Britain's top musical group for the third successive year. Readers of Melody Maker magazine gave the accolade in annual poll and named the long-haired foursome's Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band as the year's best long-playing record.

BUSY SCHEDULE

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes faced a busy schedule today which began with an official visit to Government House of Sir Peter Cazalet and Lady Cazalet. Sir Peter Cazalet is the national chairman of the Sea Cadet Council of London, Eng. Also during the morning, His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes gave a coffee party in honor of the team captains and area chairmen for the Community Chest's fund drive.

This afternoon, His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes entertained at a tea for the delegates attending the Canadian Conference of Motor Transport Authorities.

Luncheon Party

Co-workers of bride-elect, Miss Dawne Stenning, held a recent luncheon at the Beachcomber in her honor, presenting pink carnations en corsage to the honor guest. Attending the party were Mrs. E. Doidge, Mrs. A. R. Brown, Mrs. R. O'Brien, Mrs. A. Newell, Mrs. E. Barr, Mrs. F. Greenwood, Mrs. P. Gallagher, the Misses Violet Earley, Gladys Watson, Tommy Elmsley, Chris Smart, Lucy Fox, Margaret Tomalin, Norma Balfour, Kay Oliver, Ray Hull, Julia Galay, Dorothy Charters and Alice Fagan.

Appointed to Post

Former Victorian Dr. Echo Lidster has recently been named as superintendent of adult education for the North West Territories, with headquarters at Fort Smith. For the past two years Dr. Lidster has been working on an educational program for seasonal employed agricultural workers in Alabama, under the U.S. War on Poverty Project. At present Dr. Lidster is in Ottawa for briefing but will take up his post at Fort Smith next week.

Married 65 Years

The entire family of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Luney of the Rudyard Kipling Apartments, 1420 Beach Drive, attended a family dinner in the Empress Hotel on Sunday which was arranged to mark the couple's wedding anniversary. Married 65 years, Mr. and Mrs. Luney were wed in Victoria in 1902. Present at the family dinner were the couple's sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. (Edna) Clark of Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. N. M. (Byrd) McNeill of West Vancouver, five grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Extra VON Training

Members of the Victorian Order of Nurses were told of plans for extra training of the staff when it met in the library of the City Health and Welfare Building.

Three nurses will be attending night classes at the University of Victoria on "Newer Concepts in Psychiatry and Psychiatric Nursing" and two other staff members will be in Vancouver in October to attend a two-day institute on "Nursing Management of Obstetrical Patients."

The institute is being arranged by the University of British Columbia's faculty of medicine in co-operation with the Vancouver General Hospital's department of nursing. It is sponsored by the Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia.

Auxiliary president, Mrs. G. Scott, told of plans for an annual rummage sale, to be held in the spring and said that donations would be accepted from this date.

District director Miss Elizabeth Riddell said that 664 patients had been admitted during the past three months and 6,278 visits made. There were 52 night calls, a considerable increase over the same period last year. There had also been an increase in cases requiring heavy nursing care.

J. B. Barnum presided and minutes were read by honorary secretary, Mrs. G. A. Jones. D. Green gave the treasurer's report.

Pearl Pin as 'Something Borrowed' Token

A tiny pearl pin was the "something borrowed" talisman for Phyliss Elaine Hulford when she became the bride of Raymond Maurice Beck in St. Savior's Anglican Church.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of satin peau d'elegance, styled on empire lines and fashioned with a bodice of lace and lace sleeves ending at the wrist. Her lace train swept back from the waistline, complemented by her illusion net veil which misted from a headpiece of pearls and rhinestones. Her bouquet was of peach-toned Johanna roses accented with ivy and white ribbon streamers.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Hulford, 124 Maddock Avenue East, Mrs. M. Beck, 1314 Pembrook Street and the late Mr. M. Beck.

TRIO OF ATTENDANTS

Attendants of the bride were gowned alike in floor-length peach satin peau d'elegance styled on empire lines and their self-fabric rose headpieces held short illusion veils en tone.

Mrs. A. Ziegler was bridesmatron for her sister. Bridesmaids were the Misses Darlene Tomlinson and Madeleine Beck, the groom's sister.

White gladioli decorated the church. Rev. E. J. Hulford, Vancouver, the bride's uncle, and Rev. P. Atkinson of Victoria officiated. Mr. Hulford gave his daughter in marriage.

Derry McDonnell acted as best man and the guests were ushered by Arnold Ziegler, Alphonsie Beck and Stan Rowlinson.

At the reception following in the Empress Hotel the head table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with peach roses. J. Rutley proposed the toast to his goddaughter.

For travelling on honeymoon, the bride chose a beige double-knit suit trimmed with satin which she accented with peach roses en corsage. She carried a leather handbag, a gift of the groom, which he had made himself.

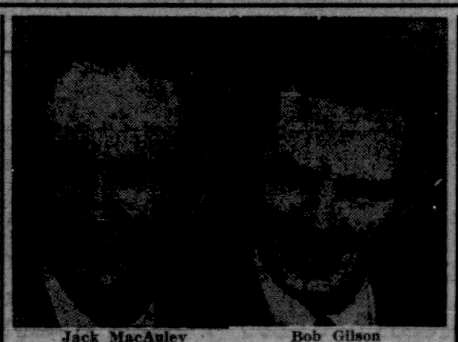

The newlyweds will make their home in Port Alberni.

Hear Vows

Travelling to Victoria for the Beck-Hulford vows were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ziegler of Calgary, Mr. and Mrs. G. Mauritz, Rev. E. J. Hulford, all of Vancouver; Mrs. A. V. Beck, Powell River; Mr. and Mrs. R. Rowlinson and family, Mr. and Mrs. V. Rowlinson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Thornbury, all of Alberni; Mr. and Mrs. T. MacKay of Nanaimo, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Hulford of Chemanius.

'Pretty Polly' Speaks To a Startled Penny

By PENNY SAVER

For years one of the junior Savers had an overwhelming desire to own a parrot — preferably one with a good loud voice. When he was three years old he was introduced to a parrot in a zoo and for months afterward his one goal in life was to own one just like him. Not having heard anything about parrots for years you can imagine my shock when I walked into the den the other day to be greeted by a parrot perched over the television . . . and what a voice! The voice, luckily came from our parrot-nut, hidden behind the sofa, but the parrot was as real as could be.

When I'd finally recovered from the shock I asked where he'd managed to find his feathered friend. Colored in dyed red, yellow, turquoise, blue and white, the bird looks as if he'd just escaped from a South American rain forest.

These beautiful birds come in two sizes, priced at $1.49 and $2.98. If you'd prefer a colorful finch, or a mynah bird, these are also available at similar prices. These are a dandy decoration for children's rooms or a zany conversation-piece in the den.

As the junior set gets going on their studies for this year, Penny is constantly finding stacks of loose papers scattered around the house. I know these are important, so I always save them, but I do wish the students would get organized. If you have similar problems, you'll find a set of loose-leaf rings will help. You can buy six of these rings, all one inch in diameter, for 29 cents. They'll certainly help those valuable papers from being filed in the waste-basket.

The sportsmen in the Saver household were complaining about the fact that all their sweatshirts looked alike. While I was shopping in one store I found some shirts that will certainly solve the problem. They're made in a hobo design—every color of the rainbow patched together in a mod design that leaves the viewer bedazzled. No two are quite alike, and they come in both long and short-sleeved styles, all priced at $4.50.

If you'd like to know where I shopped for these items please give me a call at 382-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

While sunlight and outdoor life build health generally, you may find at summer's end that you did not protect your hair sufficiently. Many women take great care of their face and neck, with special lubrication and moisturizers, but forget that the skin of their scalp becomes dry also, and that the hair may become brittle.

Lowman

You will be wise to get busy now with some reconditioning before having your fall permanent or your fall hair styling. Have cream shampoos and cream rinses and give yourself some hot oil treatments. You can also use one of the products designed for reconditioning dry hair.

Those 100 magic strokes with the hair brush are still a good idea for stimulating circulation in the scalp, but be gentle. Don't go haywire with too much brushing. If your hair is falling out in abnormal amounts, brush it just as little as possible. Instead stimulate circulation in the scalp with massage or a lotion which a dermatologist can prescribe for you. Specialists do not recommend brushing for thinning hair.

It is also unwise to wear a hair-do which pulls too tightly on the scalp. The ponytail is suspect for this reason. Even children should wear it with restraint.

Brushes with natural bristles are much superior to those with nylon bristles. Brush rollers are thought to be injurious to the hair.

No one can say that back brushing and teasing are good for the tresses but the way you comb your hair out is most important. In fact, whenever combing take care not to jerk or pull on the scalp.

It seems that it is possible to "overcare" the hair.

If you would like my booklet "Is Your Hair Thinning" send 15 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

BOWLING CLUB

Dinner And Social

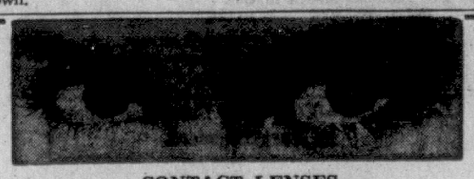

The Lake Hill Lawn Bowling Club held its annual dinner and social when afternoon games were completed last Saturday.

Tables were set in a centennial theme with each guest receiving a centennial pin. Places were marked with flower basket light standards, made by president Mrs. J. Carpenter and Mrs. M. Patterson.

President of the men's club, Mr. Carpenter, acted as master of ceremonies for the award presentation which followed. Game winners were: First, Mrs. S. Fevang and Mrs. A. Webster, and second, J. Mitchell, T. Linders and Mrs. Carpenter.

The award for the most ardent bowler of the year went to George Hiffernan, the happiest bowler award, Bob de Bourcier; bowler making most progress, Mrs. Bessie Shaw; No. 1 salesman of the year, Mrs. J. Mitchell, and youngest guest, Ricky Landers. Mrs. R. de Bourcier and Art Shaw won the doc prizes.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Don Juan, 73, Has Eye for Beauty

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am an old lady of 71, and every time I visit a certain friend of mine her husband goes into raptures over what beautiful legs I have.

Everyone says I have nice legs for an old lady, and now that I have been wearing my skirts a little shorter, I suppose they are more conspicuous, but all that talk from Milton about my legs is very embarrassing.

Not only that, but he is a camera nut, and is always wanting to take pictures of my legs.

I know he reads your column, so will you please tell Milton to act his age. He is 73 and still looking.

NICE LEGS.

DEAR LEGS: Don't be too rough on your elderly friend. If you're truly embarrassed, the next time you visit your friend, make your skirt longer or your visit shorter.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem no one has been able to solve and I hate myself for it.

I am a sleeper. I just can't seem to get up in the morning. I have tried taking afternoon naps, thinking I needed more sleep, but that hasn't helped. I have a wonderful husband who gets the children up, sees that they're properly dressed, makes sure they eat a good breakfast, and get to school on time. He even looks after our little two-year-old until I get up.

Abby, I really want to get up in the morning like a wife should, but I can't seem to do it. No one can wake me up! I can sleep through anything.

I've been to all kinds of doctors, both mental and physical, and they have all turned me loose saying there is nothing wrong with me and they can't help me. If you or any of your readers have any suggestions, I'd be so thankful.

SLEEPYHEAD.

DEAR SLEEPYHEAD: If "all kinds of doctors" have been unable to help you, learn to live with your problem and don't feel guilty. You're lucky you weren't sleeping when that wonderful husband of yours came knocking at your door.

DEAR ABBY: People are always asking me: "Where did you buy those shoes? Or that dress? And how much did you pay for it?" I never know how to get out of telling them, so I go ahead and answer their questions as though I were on a witness stand.

I suppose I could say, "It's none of your business," but I haven't got the nerve, so I find myself telling lots of things I really don't want to tell.

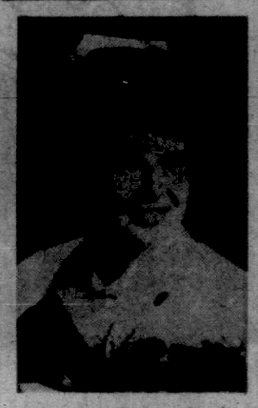

Have you a solution for my problem? I'm sure many others would like to know the answer.

TIMID.

DEAR TIMID: One of the greatest misconceptions of all time is the notion that one must answer a question simply because it has been asked. Some questions are downright rude, and presumptuous. (Example, "How much did you pay for it?") in which case the reply should be, "I would rather not say." And the same applies to any other question one does not wish to answer.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Miss Linda Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Brown, 31 Armine Place, Victoria, was awarded the hospital's auxiliary's $100 award for academic proficiency when St. Paul's Hospital's school of nursing held its commencement exercises in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Vancouver. Other Vancouver Islanders to be honored were Miss Lorraine Ellen Jones, Courtenay, who received the clinical proficiency award, and Miss Patricia Howard, Victoria, who received an honorable mention.

Proceeds of $1,800 To Help Hospital

GANGES—Close to $1,800 was raised by the women's auxiliary to Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital at the annual bargain sale held Saturday in Mahon Hall.

The event was well patronized throughout the day, and the hall was continually thronged with customers. Conveners were Mrs. A. M. Brown and Mrs. Leslie Oliver.

Makes Rough Wrinkled Necks Smoother

If your throat is rough, wrinkled and old looking let me suggest you apply a delightful lotion-like substance you can get at any drug or department store. It's called 2nd Debut and it exclusively contains the Wiesbaden Discovery known scientifically as CEF 600 which carries needed moisture into and under the skin. Not only is wrinkled, loose flabby skin pushed up and made smooth again but at the same time the aging look of a crepe paper throat disappears and you look years younger fast. You can also get "2nd Debut" with CEF 1200 for double strength moisturizing action. Remember the name . . . 2nd Debut.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

Temper Tantrums

I can't seem to control my temper, no matter how hard I try. I'm ready to fly into a sudden rage at the slightest provocation. Is there any way to prevent these explosions?

Janice M.

Here's my favorite temper "cool-off" treatment:

Lie flat on the floor on a towel in a quiet spot for several minutes. Breathe deeply in and out through the nose. Relax completely. Close your eyes and recall some pleasant, peaceful scene, or imagine yourself lying on a frothy little pink cloud, floating away from all earthly cares. When you get up, sip a glass of warm milk spiced with a spoonful of molasses.

Frequently a jolt of fresh air or a change of activity helps prevent tantrums, too. Sometimes to hold your temper in check, slip into a coat and work off that anger in running or walking up and down the block a few times.

Finally, if you feel that deep-rooted problems are causing your temper flare-ups, you might consult your doctor.

Waist Woes

My waist and midriff are much too heavy. Do you know an exercise designed to reduce them?

Carol P.

An overall weight loss will, of course, slim down these areas. Stretching, bending, and twisting exercises help firm waist and midriff. Here is an excellent Yoga exercise called the Side Stretch:

1. Stand with legs about 12 inches apart, hands at sides.

2. Bring arms out at sides at shoulder level.

4. Straighten up slowly and gracefully

5. Repeat movement on the right side.

Do the exercise three times, alternating sides. Increase holding time of the stretch by five seconds each week until you reach 20 seconds comfortably.

Feet Up

I've been reading a lot lately about keeping the feet up as much as possible. As I'm bothered by swollen ankles, I wondered if this would be of any help to me.

The "beauty angle" position is often mentioned. What, exactly, does this mean, and what purpose does it serve?

Eunice G.

The "beauty angle" position consists of lying with the head down towards the floor and the feet elevated about 18 inches. There are slant boards available in stores for this purpose. It's helpful to have a strap or loop at the higher end to hold feet in place.

An ironing board, propped up with telephone books to the proper height, is a quick and easy solution.

Because we spend most of our days standing and walking, blood is constantly flowing into the legs and feet. It's a good idea to defy the law of gravity as often as possible and send blood back to the face and head. This reversal often helps eliminate swelling and aching in the feet and ankles.

Begin by lying in the "beauty angle" for 10 minutes a day (less if you find yourself getting dizzy). Even a quick rest on your bed, with several pillows tucked under your feet, will make you feel like a new woman.

Marigold Market Raises $750

The sum of $750 was realized when volunteers, auxiliary members and members of the Victoria branch, Canadian Mental Health Association, held a Marigold market recently in the War Amputations Hall. The proceeds of the annual bazaar will be used for program expenses of the Victoria White Cross Centre.

Dr. R. E. L. Watson, president of the local branch, introduced Mrs. Malcolm G. Taylor, who opened the affair.

He also thanked the convener, Mrs. J. S. Sanderson, and volunteers who included members of the First United Church, Gordon Head United Church Women and the Y's Menettes.

Average cost: about 6½¢ a bowl

Campbell makes 35 different kinds of soup. The average cost of all 35 different kinds, is about 6½¢ a bowl. That's based on three servings from the regular size and six servings from the large size. About 6½¢ a bowl—astonishingly good value.

New Committee Being Formed as Part of Solution

PRIEST LOOKS AT INDIAN PROBLEM

Fr. W. Mudge, director of Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Women's League, stressed the need for new approaches in dealing with Indians when he spoke at the recent quarterly meeting of the Victoria Diocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League.

He warned, "The days of handing out a box of clothes are gone. We must be trusted and accepted by the Indians . . . the road to the reservation goes both ways." The speaker said that a committee of clergy, Indian and non-Indian laity was being formed to deal with the problem.

Fr. H. D. McInee, OMI, Duncan, director of the Queen of the World Council, represented diocesan director, Fr. Paul Monahan, at the meeting. He asked for CWL help in establishing a Retreat House at St. Mary's Priory and advocated the use of a penny jar project, suggested by W. Patenaude, Port Alberni, to raise funds for the underprivileged. Mrs. Patenaude told how Holy Family Council members had raised $41 during the summer by this means. As Indian Missions chairman, she asked local presidents to appoint parish conveners.

PANEL DISCUSSION

Members of the Holy Family Council used the topic "The Role of the CWL in the Lay Apostolate" for a panel discussion at the meeting. Diocesan social action convener, Mrs. L. Shelling, Chemainus, was chairman. Helen Banner spoke on the role in church renewal, Helen Patenaude, the role in the community, Mary Lou McLaughlin, the role in education, and Louise Leeson, role in the family.

Diocesan president, Mrs. C. J. Harman, Port Alberni, chaired the meeting in the parish hall of St. Andrew's Cathedral. Two members of St. Patrick's Council received special honors.

Mrs. M. C. Hallpatch was there to see her son receive the CWL's annual $500 scholarship and Mrs. V. G. Stuart was told that some of the councils would contribute toward her trip to Belgium to attend the ninth gathering of Catholic guiders and commissioners.

Mrs. G. H. Breen, Happy Valley, spiritual convener, reported that a Day of Recollection would be held in Victoria, Nanaimo and Courtenay on Wednesday, October 25 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. She also spoke on the Children's Day of Peace, to be held the first Saturday in October.

Organization chairman, Mrs. W. W. Rogers, Victoria, told of the new St. Louis de Montford Council at Cowichan Lake and hoped that another council would be formed in St. Joseph's parish.

President of St. Patrick's Council, Mrs. J. K. McAvoy, asked for further donations toward the cost of a washing machine for St. Clare's Monastery.

Councils represented at the meeting were St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sacred Heart, Lake Hill; Queen of Peace, Esquimalt; St. Patrick's, Oak Bay; Star of the Sea, Belmont Park; Our Lady of Assumption, Brentwood; Our Lady of the Rosary, Langford; Queen of the World, Cobble Hill; St. Edward's, Duncan; St. Mary's, Ladysmith; St. Francis, Alberni; Notre Dame, Alberni; Holy Family, Port Alberni, and St. Elizabeth's, Sidney.

Directors attending included Fr. D. Johnson, Port Alberni; Fr. W. J. O'Brien, Langford, and Fr. J. Barrette.

GIVE RECEPTION

Sixty guests attended a reception on Saturday evening, given by Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas Brown, of Cromwell Road, in honor of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Brown, who were married in Vancouver on August 26. The guests included the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Mountain, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Naylor, all of Vancouver. The principals are both graduates of the University of British Columbia. The groom also attended Victoria College and served with the Royal Canadian Navy for six years.

Co-Hostesses

A wishing well held the gifts and pink carnations en corsage were presented to bride-elect Miss Diane Dibnah when Mrs. Douglas Casey and Mrs. Cecil Casey gave a grocery shower in her honor.

The honor guest's mother, Mrs. Cycil Dibnah, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Walter Colvin, received white carnation corsages.

Other guests were Mrs. A. Colvin, Mrs. E. Creelman, Mrs. E. Stencill, Mrs. H. Crellin, Mrs. Colvin, Mrs. F. Acres, Mrs. V. Willerton, Mrs. A. Bird, Mrs. N. Loverod, Mrs. S. Jackson, Mrs. A. Birney, Mrs. B. Koch, Mrs. W. Eldridge, the Misses Delia Eldridge, Linda Acres and Judy Dibnah.

Plan Annual Party

The Women's Auxiliary to the Maritime Command (Pacific) will hold its annual get-acquainted sherry and coffee party in the wardroom of the Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, next Saturday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door or can be obtained from auxiliary members.

Proceeds from the party will be earmarked for auxiliary projects which include the Well Baby Clinic at Belmont Park, a $100 bursary for a dependent of a serviceman and proficiency trophy for a cadet in the Admiral Rayner Navy League Cadet Corps.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion - beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Funds Voted—Members of the Royal Bride Chapter IODE recently met in the Haultain Street home of Mrs. J. C. Mathieson. Funds were voted for the group's share of the IODE shelter at Clover Point, the Municipal Canadian history award, a Christmas parcel for a Canadian veteran in England and a donation toward a new X-ray machine for Korea. Plans were made for a travelogue, to be given by Dr. R. H. McDougall in Christ Church Cathedral's Memorial Hall on Oct. 13. Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd reported on the national convention, held in Ottawa. Educational secretary Miss Helen Rattray read letters from William Burkholder, a medical student who received a 1966 bursary, and three ballet students, former pupils of Miss Wynne Shaw, who have received chapter bursaries. They are Miss Colleen De Court, Miss Maureen Lawson and Miss Linda Burkholder.

The Largest Snowfall in B.C.? . . . Ask The Times!

Q. In a hydro-electric system, what precautions are taken to prevent clogging of the pipelines and damage to the turbines from marine life, animal carcasses or driftwood? I.T.

A. The intakes are protected by trash racks, a heavy screen which prevents such objects from entering the penstocks, says a B.C. Hydro spokesman.

Q. How did Hyde Park in London get its name? A.A.

A. From the Manor of Hyde which belonged to the monks of Westminster Abbey from the Conquest to the Dissolution, according to Muirhead's Guide to London. Henry VIII seized it and turned it into a royal hunting park and deer were hunted there until after the middle of the 18th century.

★ ★ ★

Q. How many people are taking B.C. educational correspondence courses and how many are adults? E.J.

A. According to the department of education, there are 17,500 people enrolled of which 54 per cent are adults, that is to say over 19 years old.

★ ★ ★

Q. What is the largest snowfall recorded in B.C. in one winter and where was it? K.S.

A. In the winter of 1956-57, 880 inches (nearly 74 feet) fell in Kildala Pass, Kemano, says the Gonzales weather office. Largest snowfall in one month was in the same area, 202 inches in February, 1954; largest fall in one day was 43 inches at Premier, B.C., February 15, 1949. These are measured records. These falls may be exceeded in areas where no measuring devices are operated.

Q. What is the address of hocky player Bobby Hull? R.C.D.

A. Care of Chicago Black Hawks, 1800 West Madison, Chicago.

Q. We were in a beer parlor the other night and the glasses were far from full. The bartender told us that the law states no particular amount of beer to be served but that 11-ounce glasses must be used. Is this true? D.R.

A. Yes. Liquor Control Board regulations simply specify the size of glass to be used and that a "fair" measure be served.

Q. Has Vancouver Island ever had a movement to secede from Canada and set up its own state? B.H.

A. Prior to Confederation there was agitation in Victoria for annexation to the United States. After Confederation when the completion of the trans-continental railway, promised in the terms of union, was delayed, there was a secessionist movement which advocated a return to colonial state.

Q. Who was the first person to settle in Victoria? B.H.

A. The first person unassociated with the Hudson's Bay Company to settle in this area was Capt. Walter Grant who took land at Sooke about 1849. James Douglas lived in the Fort Victoria from 1849 to 1851 when his home across James Bay was completed. In 1849 John Tod retired from the Hudson's Bay Company and the following spring started to work his land in Oak Bay.

★ ★ ★

Q. When were map makers first aware that Vancouver Island was an island? B.H.

A. Until Capt. George Vancouver completed his circumnavigation in 1792, cartographers thought Vancouver Island was part of the mainland. The map of his voyage was not published until 1798.

Q. What is the oldest religion in the world? M.V.

A. Judaism, according to the Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics.

★ ★ ★

Q. Who designed the Centennial symbol? Was there a contest? P.B.

A. The 11-triangle symbol was designed under contract by Cooper and Beatty Limited of Toronto after three prize-winning designs submitted in the contest were considered unsuitable.

★ ★ ★

Q. What percentage of people in the labor force did not complete high school? R.G.

A. According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics labor force study issued in 1965, 71.4 per cent had less than a complete high school education.

★ ★ ★

Q. When was the Ku Klux Klan formed and what is the origin of the name? J.W.

A. It was formed in 1865 by six confederate officers. The first two parts of the name come from the Greek word Kyklos from which comes the English word "circle." The word Klan was added for alliteration.

★ ★ ★

Q. Where should I address a letter for child actor Kurt Russell? P.J.M.

A. Try the Walt Disney Studios, 800 South Buena Vista Ave., Burbank, California.

Q. Where can I write for the Centennial coin sets and for how long are they available? M.E.L.

A. Coin sets are obtainable until Sept. 30 from Presentation Coin Sets, P.O. Box 100, Ottawa 2, Ont. Orders should be accompanied by a cheque or money order made payable to the Receiver General of Canada.

Q. Is the federal old-age pension of $105 issued without a means test? P.S.

A. The basic $75 does not call for a means test but the supplementary payment of $30 depends on an income test.

★ ★ ★

Q. How many provinces have Hansard as a record of proceedings of the legislative assemblies? B.A.

A. All except B.C. have some form of record kept, either tape-recorded, printed or mimeographed. Only a French record is kept in Quebec and in Prince Edward Island the records are not available to the public.

★ ★ ★

Q. Is a child not yet 15 eligible for family allowance until age 16 if he leaves school? G.K.

A. Only under special circumstances, says the federal welfare department.

Q. Who are the provincial and territorial premiers of Canada and where can one obtain information about them? G.B.N.

A. Alberta, Ernest Manning; British Columbia, W. A. C. Bennett; Manitoba, Duff Roblin; New Brunswick, Louis Robichaud; Newfoundland, J. R. Smallwood; Nova Scotia, Ike Smith; Ontario, John Robarts; Prince Edward Island, Alexander Campbell; Quebec, Daniel Johnson; Saskatchewan, Ross Thatcher.

Commissioner for Yukon is James Smith. Deputy Commissioner for the Northwest Territories is Stuart Hodgson. Biographies of the premiers appear in Canadian Parliamentary Guide, 1967. Information on the territories' commissioners should be available from Ottawa in the case of the Northwest Territories and from Whitehorse in the case of the Yukon.

Q. When was the title "Dominion" dropped from the title Dominion of Canada? E.F.S.

A. According to the Provincial Library, the letters patent of Oct. 1, 1947, dealing with the office of the governor-general, ommitted the words "dominion of" because, said the U.K. parliament, Canada was no longer a dominion but a country in its own right.

The words "dominion of" were used in the preamble of the British North America Act but not in the body of the act. Canada was never officially the "dominion." That word was used rather than the word "kingdom."

Because of the omission in the letters patent on 1947, the phone book listing became Government of Canada instead of Dominion of Canada and the word dominion was dropped altogether, according to the answer to a question asked in the House of Commons.

Q. When did the Two Minutes Silence, marked on Armistice Day, originate? E.S.

A. Historians have accepted the idea that it originated in South Africa on May 14, 1918, a very dark hour for the Allies. From then to the end of the war every day at noon in Cape Town, a gun was fired to mark the start of two minutes of silence and the idea spread.

But here in Victoria at a meeting of the Returned Soldiers Association in May, 1916, a motion was passed that at the start of every meeting a "moment of silence" should be observed to honor fallen comrades. The idea spread to the other legion branches.

Q. Where did the Canadian provinces get their names? E.A.H.

A. Alberta, for Queen Victoria's daughter, Louise Caroline Alberta, wife of the governor-general the Marquis of Lorne; British Columbia was also named by Queen Victoria. She noted that on all maps the territory was marked as "Columbia" and she thought, because there was a Colombia in South America and that Americans called the U.S. "Columbia" in poetry that "British" Columbia might be a better name; Saskatchewan is the Cree word for swift river; Prince Edward Island was named for the Duke of Kent, commander of British forces in North America; Nova Scotia was intended to be a New Scotland, as the name implies, by the settlers; Newfoundland was the "new found land" of Cabot; New Brunswick was named from Brunswick-Luneberg (House of Hanover) the name of the British Royal family.

Ontario is an Iroquois word. Some say it means "beautiful Lake," others say "standing high" "near the water;" Quebec is an Algonkian word meaning "place where the river narrows;" Manitoba is the Ojibway name for "spirit strait."

Q. What happens to the parking meter takings and to the fines for traffic offence in Victoria and who decides how the money shall be spent? E.B.B

A. City treasurer James Bramley says the 1966 take from parking meters totalled $186,000. Of that $95,000 plus the expenses of operating the meters goes into general revenue. The balance goes into the off-street parking fund for the purpose of building more multi-floor parking lots. Traffic offence fines, totalling $246,000 last year, go into general revenue.

Q. Is there an X-ray or other method of finding out if an oil painting has an earlier picture beaneath the visible one? H.H.

A. Yes there is. Information on how such an examination might be arranged can be obtained by writing to the curator, Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, Moss Street.

★ ★ ★

Q. I received a cheque from the U.S. but do not have a bank account. How can I cash it? B.L.

A. Get a friend who has an account to endorse it before presentation.

Q. Why were street car tracks laid across the Johnson Street bridge? E.A.G.

A. Tracks were laid with the idea of street cars crossing the bridge on the Esquimalt run but they were never used for that purpose, according to city hall. A street car line was in use to Esquimalt but the route was taken across the old Point Ellice bridge and up Bay.

★ ★ ★

Q. Can you tell me the origin of the Creed?

A. Canon R. E. Howell of the Anglican Church replies: "The Creed contains in reduced form the gerneral teaching that the Church considerd was contained in the New Testament.

Q. Where did the Canadian Black Brant rocket get its name? J.C.

A. From the wildfowl, says a Canadian Forces Headquarters spokesman in Ottawa. The brant is the name of a species of goose; the "black" goose which has its breeding grounds in Spitzbergen, Greenland and Siberia and the brant goose with a circumpolar breeding range. To this group also belongs the Canada goose.

★ ★ ★

Q. Is there a Safety Council in B.C. and if so what is the address? M.H.S.

A. Yes. Address of the B.C. Safety Council is 1186 Nicola, Vancouver 5, B.C.

★ ★ ★

Q. What is the name of the dark-leafed flowering tree by the Lansdowne school? A.G.

A. Flowering crabapple, says a city parks department spokesman.

Q. Which political party first held office in the first B.C. election after B.C. became a province? B.H.

A. At the time of Confederation, says the B.C. archives, political parties as known in Eastern Canada did not exist in the provincial field. After the turn of the century Richard McBride formed the first government with the party label. The Encyclopedia Canadiana lists him as a Conservative and a letter from him says "the government to be formed will be Conservative in character." The parliamentary guide of 1903 lists him as a "Lib-Conservative."

★ ★ ★

Q. Has any group of B.C. or Canadian Indians ever been abroad? Who would one write to if planning such a venture? F.S.

A. Indians Affairs Branch says that two groups of B.C. Indians have been abroad. Some 40 students from the Skidegate Reserve were taken in a group to Europe last year.

Chief Simon Baker of the Squamish band was invited to the closing of the RCAF Station in Marville, France where totem poles were presented to RCAF personnel and residents of the area.

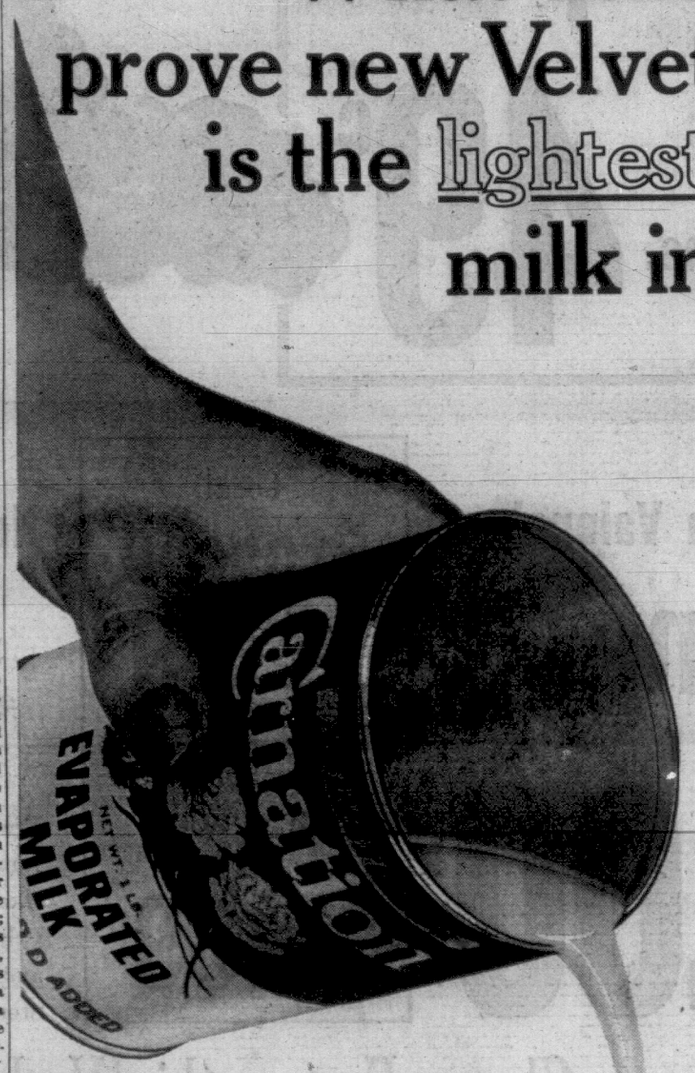

For more information on such trips, write to J. V. Boys, Indian Commissioner for B.C., 325 Granville Street, Vancouver 2.

CAMPBELL IN SOUP

Aldermen Blast Mayor

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell was criticized by aldermen Monday for suggesting that Vancouver withdraw from the Union of British Columbia Municipalities.

"It's typical of the disorganized way he runs his job, opening his mouth before he thinks," said Deputy Mayor Ernie Broome. "Campbell's suggestion shows a real small-time, village outlook."

The mayor said in an interview Friday that he was considering whether Vancouver should withdraw from the UBCM because the city has nothing in common with other B.C. municipalities.

"It's irresponsible for the mayor to make such a statement," said Ald. Ed Sweeney. "He displays a juvenile attitude suggesting if the game isn't played his way the ball will be taken away."

Ald. Hugh Bird said the mayor's remarks may create animosity between Vancouver and other municipalities at the UBCM convention which opens Wednesday in Prince George.

Build Secret Centre

CANBERRA (AP) — The United States and Australia will spend nearly $14,600,000 on construction connected with a top-secret space-research defence centre being established near Alice Springs in central Australia, defence officials said Tuesday. The centre will house American space-tracking equipment. Australia will meet about one-quarter of its construction cost.

AMONG NORTHERN NATIVES

'Alcohol Blots Out Bewildering Life'

SASKATOON (CP)—A call for abolition of drunkenness as an offence has been made by a university professor following a month-long study of problems encountered by the native population of the north.

D. A. Schmeiser, of the University of Saskatchewan Law College, said Tuesday experience in the Northwest Territories proved that legal punishment for drunkenness had not deterrent effect.

"It simply causes greater hardships on the people.

"I agree that the police must have the power to detain people who are intoxicated, and I do agree that one has to deal with the offences committed by an intoxicated person. But I do not agree with creating an offence out of intoxication."

Prof. Schmeiser, investigating legal problems involving Indians and Eskimos for the institute of northern studies, said in an interview he found alcoholism to be primarily a health, social and cultural problem.

'VERY CONFUSED

"The native person is often very confused and has not yet made the difficult adjustment from a very primitive condition of life to our highly technical society. On occasion, he resorts to the use of alcohol to blot out a very bewildering existence."

Even though there were problems among the natives, their progress in adapting has been good, he said.

"We must realize that you can't change a social and cultural problem overnight. We must be prepared to wait some time for educational and social facilities to take effect."

Prof. Schmeiser also recommended that the question of law regarding liquor prosecutions be clarified.

In a decision in the Yukon, the courts ruled that liquor prosecutions involving natives correctly belonged under the Indian Act while a court ruling in the Northwest Territories, based on the Bill of Rights, held that provisions of the Indian Act were discriminatory.

Prof. Schmeiser said he would prefer that the ruling in the Northwest Territories be followed.

Rare Books To Be Displayed At McPherson

Rare Canadian books will be exhibited in a centennial show at the McPherson Playhouse Oct. 13 and 14.

It will be opened by Mayor Hugh Stephen and sponsored by the Marionette Book Shop.

Important books, produced in Canada, will be contributed by B.C. Archives, Victoria Public Library and McPherson library and the University of Victoria.

Two Victoria painters — the late Emily Crr and bird artist Fenwick Lansdowne — will be featured.

"This is my own centennial project," said Gwen Scott, proprietor of the Marionette Book Shop.

"I don't think the public realizes how many good Canadian books have been written in the past decade," Miss Scott said.

Piano Sonatas Feature Uvic Series Tonight

A lecture-recital series by noted pianist Robin Wood, on the 32 Piano Sonatas of Beethoven, begins tonight at 8 in the Education-Arts Building on University of Victoria's Gordon Head campus.

The series is a Uvic non-credit course in the Evening Division but individual tickets will be sold at the door for each of the 15 Wednesday lecture-recitals.

Mr. Wood will discuss and perform the 32 sonatas, the commentary including historical references to Beethoven's life and his role in the development of the modern sonata.

The university's superb new German Steinway concert grand will be used for the series.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Thomas is trying to fill a vacuum left by Bob Hope on NBC-TV. This season he will present 16 filmed dramas interspersed with six musicals or comedies.

Stephen

The past few seasons Thomas has received much critical acclaim for visiting The Wonderful World of Burlesque.

Not missing a bet, he began his NBC season with a burlesque outing which proved as highly entertaining as his three previous efforts.

It was a fast start. He had such guests as dancer Cyd Charisse, comedienne Nanette Fabray, country comic singer Tennessee Ernie Ford and, no burlesque could survive without the top banana in the field, Phil Silvers.

The gags and sketches sported whiskers but the multi-talented cast kept the pace brisk and the program entertaining.

The story was about a compulsive gambler (Thomas) trying to make it big with a bet on the nose of a race-horse.

At the same time, he swore to his wife that he'd never place another bet once their child is born.

The comedy took on a Damon Runyon flavor but without the touch of the master writer. There it suffered.

Still Thomas has a reputation for success in the television game. His long-running series was one of the better products over the years. His association in the production field with Leonard has resulted in top fare.

There is no reason to believe that such a reputation will result in anything but a good season for him and, in turn, ourselves.

140 Arrested As Negro Rioting Flares

By United Press International

Rocks and bottles flew in the streets of Hartford, Conn., and Dayton, Ohio, Tuesday night and early today. There was looting in both cities and 140 persons were arrested.

Hartford police used tear gas to beat back crowds of young Negroes in the summer's second outbreak of violence in the predominantly Negro north end of the insurance city. Forty persons were arrested.

The violence flared after a second night of demonstrations in support of open housing collapsed, probably because the group's leader, John Barber, was jailed after Monday night's march. Four blocks of Hartford were sealed off to contain the turmoil.

In Dayton, the violence spread through five square miles. More than 100 were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct or breaking and entering. The disturbance was set off by a street corner rally at which civil rights militants cried for "justice" in the killing of a Negro civil rights worker by a white policeman.

France TV Beaming On Quebec

PARIS (UPI) — France and Quebec will launch a joint communications satellite for relaying French television programs to Canada, it was reported here.

The satellite will enable programs to be relayed without depending on the existing American Early Bird satellite, informed sources said.

Plans for the new project were discussed by Claude Morin, deputy minister of intergovernmental affairs for Quebec and Maruice Schumann, French minister of state for scientific research.

The satellite will be among the first Franco-Quebec projects initiated by Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson during his visit to France earlier this year. It followed French President Charles de Gaulle's highly publicized trip to Canada in which he issued his now famous "Free Quebec" speech.

Mroin, who arrived in Paris early this week, was scheduled to return to Canada next week after inspecting Quebec House in Milan, Italy.

France, Que. Summits Set

PARIS (UPI) — France and Quebec have agreed to hold regular government-level meetings including summit sessions to tighten their co-operation, it was announced today. The announcement was made by George Gorse, the information minister, after a three-hour Elysee Palace meeting chaired by President Charles de Gaulle.

Chlorine Fells 12

BALTIMORE (UPI) — An explosion and fire at the Continental Oil Co. today released a cloud of potentially-deadly chlorine gas into a south Baltimore neighborhood.

Firemen and workmen at the plant were overcome by the fumes but quick administration of oxygen and other first aid measures saved their lives. Twelve firemen were hospitalized, but there were no fatalities.

Hospitals Need Greater Care To Curb 'Bugs'

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Hospitals are saving more and more lives each year but there is growing concern about the number of persons who die in hospitals from accidents or infections unrelated to their original illness.

Experts from several fields discussed dangers to both patients and staff from fire, infection, radiation and explosions Tuesday in the last of two one-day symposia on hospital hazards. They concentrated on electrical problems Monday. About 200 delegates attended from Canada and the U.S.

Doctors and engineers agreed in most cases that safety records are excellent, but that there still is room for improvement.

The major exception was in fire prevention, where F. A. Ingram, of the national health department's health facilities design division, noted that fire is the oldest of hospital hazards and still has not been conquered.

159 FIRES YEARLY

In the last 10 years, there has been an average of 159 fires a year in hospitals, with six or seven deaths each year, he told the conference.

The same fire hazards existed year after year, in boiler and furnace rooms, kitchens and storage areas for combustible or inflammable liquids, gases and solids.

He complained about the lack of fire walls in hospitals that could contain a fire long enough to ensure safe evacuation of patients.

Dr. Walter C. Harris, chief of the health department's bacteriological laboratories in Ottawa, said infections still are a major problem, although the types of infections are changing.

Thousands of persons died throughout the world each year from infections they pick up while in hospital.

CAN BE REDUCED

Hospitals could reduce the problem by checking several items, including air circulation, sterilization of every-day items such as blankets and curtains as well as sophisticated medical equipment, and ensuring that staff members are properly trained.

Many sources of infection could be eliminated with extra care and attention to hospital design.

Dr. A. W. Conn, chief of anesthesia at the Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto, said the problem of explosions involving anesthetics in hospitals has been greatly reduced in the last 10 years with the introduction of non-inflammable anesthetics.

STANFIELD BACKED BY TORY HIERARCHY

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says in a copyright story that an examination of individual voting-machine totals from the Progressive Conservative convention indicates that the so-called grass-roots delegates would have elected Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba.

Robert Stanfield, former premier of Nova Scotia, won the leadership convention Sept. 9 on the last of five ballots by 1,150 votes to 969 for Mr. Roblin.

The story says the study reveals a "basic premise" that the party hierarchy "in the main favored Mr. Stanfield and the grass-roots delegates Mr. Roblin."

It said the reading on the 10 machines where rank-and-file delegates votes — those elected by local Conservative associations in the 264 federal constituencies — gave a different answer than did the fifth ballot results: "559 for Mr. Roblin to 561 for Mr. Stanfield."

FASCINATING RESULTS

"Mr. Stanfield's comfortable margin of victory was all piled up on the machines that at the convention were referred to as the brass hat, or nob machines." Machines, numbered one to nine, were where the party hierarchy cast votes.

The party hierarchy, the story said, included the sometimes controversial lists of ex-officio and at-large members, those that were given voting privileges for attending the party's thinkers' conference at Montmorency, Que.

The story says fascinating results were obtained by matching the list of voters to the individual machine totals.

"Apart from showing Mr. Roblin to be the favorite of the rank and file, a loyal power base for E. Davie Fulton is indicated among younger elements of the party and in Quebec," the story says.

"It also seems clear, as we guessed at the time of the final ballot, that when Mr. Fulton withdrew after the fourth ballot, the majority of his supporters followed him to the ranks of Mr. Stanfield—with the exception of the Fulton Quebec group, which went strongly to Mr. Roblin."

A study of first-ballot results on machine No. 4 showed that Mr. Roblin lost one from his own caucus.

"But results of other machines ... showed that he had considerable support from Ontario legislators. If this carried over to No. 4 machine, which seems natural, it means that he again had several defections from his caucus."

Traffic Jam Seen In Old Folks Homes

OTTAWA (CP) — A mini-population explosion among Canada's aged within the next decade will create problems that can only be met by increased co-ordination of programs and centralization of facilities, a welfare authority said today.

Reuben C. Baetz, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council, made the prediction at the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Homes for the Aged.

"... There could be something akin to a human traffic jam at the entrance to the homes for the aged during the next decade," he said.

Besides the sheer increase in numbers resulting from a wave of immigrants at the turn of the century who now are reaching old age and the advancement of medical science, a growing shortage in adequate housing would send more and more old people looking for a place in homes for the aged.

Mr. Baetz said supplementary services such as home help, geriatic clinics, and referral services for old people "could be most competently and conveniently provided by the homes for the aged with appropriate staff."

NEW SERVICES

Mr. Baetz suggested those administering old-age programs in Ontario get to know more intimately what is going on in other parts of Canada. There was a study taking place in Manitoba on foster home care for the elderly and a project starting in Nova Scotia on a complete range of co-ordinated services for the aged.

Toronto Rabbi Backs Charge Against LBJ

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto rabbi who visited Hanoi last January says current contentions that North Vietnam was ready then for a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war "can be fully substantiated."

Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg was commenting Tuesday on a denial by the state department in Washington of charges that President Johnson's administration had "effectively and brutally cancelled" a private peace probe from North Vietnam by stiffening terms for peace negotiations.

TALKED TO HO

The charge was made by editor and writer Harry S. Ashmore of Santa Barbara, Calif., who had talked with President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam in Hanoi, also in January.

"Together with the late A. J. Muste of New York, a retired Presbyterian minister, and Anglican Bishop Ambrose Reeves of Chichester, England, I interviewed Ho Chi Minh and Prime Minister Pham Van Dong for an entire morning of Jan. 17," Rabbi Feinberg said in a statement.

"Both the leaders expressed emphatically their readiness to talk once the bombing of North Vietnam is unconditionally terminated.

PARLEY ASKED

"Ho Chi Minh extended through us an invitation to President Johnson to sit down for peace conversations with him in Hanoi as a guest in complete security on a personal level.

"We also had an interview in Hanoi for two hours with the official representative of the National Liberation Front in that city, Nguyen Van Tien.

Ship Painting Causes Snag In SIU Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — Leonard McLaughlin, president of the 5,400-member Seafarers' International Union, Tuesday called upon Labor Minister Nicholson to arrange "without delay" a meeting of the union and representatives of 32 strike-bound Great Lakes shipping companies.

Earlier Tuesday, efforts in Ottawa to resolve the shipping dispute hit an unexpected snag when the companies demanded that sailors agree to accept ship-painting duties at night and on weekends.

In a telegram to the labor minister, Mr. McLaughlin said settlement prospects have "deteriorated greatly over the past 24 hours" and called for the meeting in light of the strike's "inevitable cumulative effect on the economy."

Federal mediators had been reported to have worked out agreement on all the major issues in the dispute, including introduction of a 40-hour week, reduction of the daily work spread and paid leave.

However, both parties were reported adamant on the ship-painting issue.

The SIU went on strike against the 32 companies Aug. 17, pulling its sailors off 178 vessels representing 82 per cent of Canada's inland shipping industry.

PAINTING WRANGLE

The wrangle over ship painting arises from a clause in the contract specifying types of "necessary work" that may be assigned sailors between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. on weekdays and from 8 a.m. Saturday to 8 a.m. Monday.

While several maintenance duties are listed as necessary, a sub-clause expressly excludes scraping, chipping and painting.

Both sides have agreed on a wage and benefit package providing for an increase of about 32 per cent over three years. The sailors are paid on a monthly rate starting at $380.86 for a deckhand. They work a 56-hour week.

The proposed 40-hour work week is said to be based on an averaging system over 18 weeks, about half the regular shipping season.

New Republic of Benin Secedes From Nigeria

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigeria's Midwest Region today declared itself the republic of Benin in the Nigerian federation's second regional secession since May.

The previous one was that of the Eastern Region which named itself the republic of Biafra May 30.

Maj. Albert Ononkwo, military administrator of Benin since it was occupied by Biafran troops in the Nigerian civil war, made the announcement on Benin radio.

He said all reasonable proposals for the preservation of Nigeria had been exhausted and pressures had been building up on him to "lead the people of the Midwest to the promised land."

The "autonomous and completely sovereign republic of Benin" would honor all international treaties and obligations and co-operate closely with Biafra, he said.

The major said more than 10,000 Midwesterners have been "slaughtered, maimed and orphaned by northerners" in the federal forces.

Benin is a town famous in Nigerian history and a centre of Nigerian art and culture.

But a reliable report reaching Lagos Tuesday night said Biafran troops apparently were pulling out, stores were shuttered and the streets deserted.

The town and other key points in the Midwest were captured by Biafran forces in an attack last month.

But these successes seemed today to have been contained by federal forces, now equipped with jet fighters and other war supplies.

A war bulletin issued in Lagos said federal troops had mounted a major attack in the Midwest about 120 miles northeast of Benin.

The Nigerian civil war, which now has dragged on for more than 10 weeks, erupted after Biafra's secession.

This was the culmination of 18 months of mounting intertribal strife in the Nigerian Federation, mainly between the Eastern Region's Ibo people and the north's Hausa.

Civil war has staggered Nigeria's buoyant economy, the most promising in West Africa.

August production of oil was 52,000 barrels daily, compared with at least 580,000 barrels daily before the fighting began July 6.

After holding steady for six weeks, foreign exchange reserves dropped in August by $5,600,000, about the same amount as estimates of the cost of MiG jet fighters Nigeria purchased from the Soviet Union. The central bank held reserves of $142,800,000. A year ago the reserve holdings were $208,300,000.

July produced the first overseas trade deficit since last November.

A richly-successful cocoa selling season averts a worse picture. The value of cocoa bean exports in July was $13,700,000 —about $8,400,000 better than the same month in 1966.

The Standard Bank's review for August, 1967, said the lack of incoming capital and increased debt service and overseas expenditure meant "Nigeria was likely to face a near balance of payments crisis in 1967."

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopeida to Peggy Cummings, age 13, of Shreveport, Louisiana, for her question:

What is the powdery stuff on a butterfly's wings?

A butterfly's wings, flitting and fluttering in the sunlight, seem to be made from durable velvet. But when you hold the lovely creature in your hand, you know that this is far from true. Those beautiful wings are very fragile and delicately dusted with loose powder.

When you hold a butterfly, the dusty powder from his wings comes off on your hands. You will be surprised to notice that the powder seems to be white, even though the handsome wings are patterned with jewel-toned colors. Biologist classify the moths and butterflies in the insect order Lepidoptera, a scientific term meaning scaly wings. The powder shed on your hands is actually tiny scales from the buttefly's papery wings. Some members of Lepidoptera also have similar flaky scales on their heads and feelers and furry bodies.

If you examine one of these scaly winged insects with a hand lens or a good magnifying glass, you can see the tiny ridged scales overlapping each other and arranged in neat rows. If you could probe deeper, you would find that each tiny scale is propped on a tiny stem. The stem fits into a cup-shaped socket on the gauzy wing. Neither the scale nor the stem is fitted very tightly to the wing. The slightest touch tends to shake them loose. This explains why some of the powdery flakes brush off when a butterfly is handled, even by the most gentle fingers.

Powdery Wings

With the help of a good microscope, you get a better view of the scaly wings and the surprising beauty of their structure. No, they do not reveal the jewel colors of a butterfly on the wing. Neither they nor the powdery dust on your hands shows any colors at all. In fact, the microscope reveals that the tiny scales themselves are as clear as glass. A group of them packed close together looks for all the world like a city of houses and tall buildings. The walls and roofs of the miniature city seem to be made from sheets of shiny glass. Even the microscpoe does not help us to find the painted colors that our eyes see on a butterfly fluttering in the garden.

However, those shiny walls and roofs give us a clue. We know that glass plays tricks with the sunbeams. A plain sheet of glass lets through the light and itself becomes invisible, or almost so. But a glass prism bends the different colored rays in white light and fans them out at different angles. The glassy scales on a butterfly's wings also play tricks with light, and by a process of refraction, we are presented with a pattern of colorful rays on its velvety wings.

Most butterflies live only during one season, just long enough to lay eggs and hand on life to a new generation. They shelter from pelting raindrops and try to avoid brushing against obstacles in flight. Their wings, as a rule, stay freshly powdered as long as they need them. But the monarch, the mourning cloak and several other butterflies live from one summer to the next. They lose many of their powdery scales. The monarch migrates hundreds of miles and when he returns in the spring, his velvety wings are worn thin and blotched with colorless bare patches.

Sunlight Can Prove Dangerous

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

A woman recently wrote to say that it took very little exposure to sunlight to burn her arms so bad that they blistered and ulcerated. I immediately told her to have her blood and urine tested for an excess of porphyrins. The disease which causes such ulceration of the skin by sunlight is called porphyria. It is inherited, and can run for two to three hundred years through a family. it is well to know about this disease because if the person takes a big dose of a barbiturate he or she can become mildly psychotic and may even die. Operations are very dangerous for these people because today the anesthesia is often started with a barbiturate called pentothal sodium.

Alvarez

A woman with a skin that burns easily should always wear sleeves on her dresses when she goes out into the sun. There is another possible explanation for a tremendous sensitivity to sunlight: Nowadays there are some drugs that can greatly sensitize the skin to light. Hence, if a woman has been very sensitive to light all her days, she may have porphyria, but if she developed this tremendous sensitiveness since she took a drug of some kind, she had better stop taking the drug for a week or two to see if she loses the sensitiveness.

★ ★ ★

Recently, Dr. David F. Cross of the Institute of Cardiology in London, England, pointed out that angina pectoris, although seen commonly with a narrowing of one of the coronary arteries at the top of the heart, can be complained of also in cases in which the arteries are all right. It can occur occasionally with a valvular or a muscular or arterial disease of the heart. In some cases, later, at autopsy, the arteries of the heart may be found to be normal.

I have seen any number of people who came to me complaining of typical angina pectoris—pain which came with exercise, and especially on walking after breakfast into a very cold wind. What had bothered and puzzled these patients was that every doctor to whom they had gone made electrocardiograms and then said, "Your heart is all right; hence your pain must be of nervous origin."

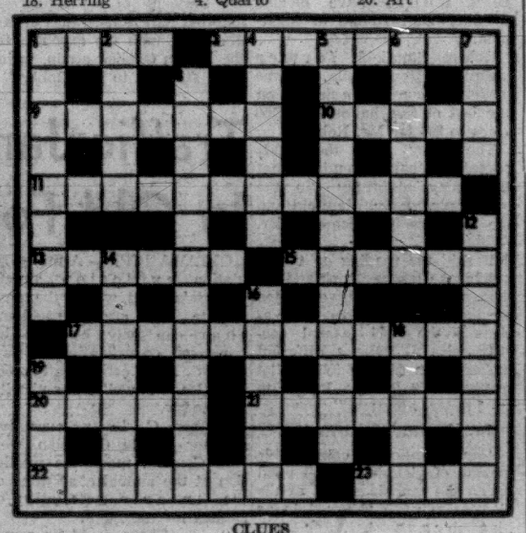

Many years ago, I came to the conclusion that these people did have heart pain, and what had happened was that the circulation of the heart became impaired because of a narrowing of one of the arteries, but because this artery had not yet become plugged up, no bit of muscle had died, and hence there was no abnormality of the electrocardiogram. A big abnormality in the electrocardiogram comes when an artery has plugged up; a bit of muscle has died; and the wave of contraction has to go around the scar. This causes an abnormal record.

ANTI-REDS TO GATHER IN FORMOSA

OTTAWA (CP) — One Canadian and 11 Americans will be among 300 delegates and observers from 30 countries at the first meeting of the World Anti-Communist League being held in Taipei, Formosa, Sept. 25-29.

The Canadian is Robert Thompson, member of Parliament for Red Deer and former national leader of the Social Credit party, who will be an observer. He left Tuesday.

Walter Judd, a former congressman, heads the American group.

The new world body was organized by the Asian Peoples Anti-Communist League, which will continue to function, and other interested groups.

HEALTH of Earl Attlee, 84, Britain's postwar Labor prime minister, is deteriorating according to reports from London. He was taken to hospital last week suffering from what was described as a complaint of old age.

IN QUEBEC CHURCH GROTTO

Mocking Students Routed Where Girl 'Saw' Vision

QUEBEC (CP)—Mocking students and faithful watchers fought a short one-sided battle Tuesday night in a little Lower Town grotto where eight-year-old Johanne Allison says she saw a supernatural vision.

About 20 strangely-dressed guitar-playing students, including one dressed as a surgeon, brought the fury of the crowd on themselves by reciting a blasphemous prayer in the grotto behind Notre-Dame-de-Grace Roman Catholic Church.

Police went to the aid of the mockers who fled on foot to escape their angry adversaries.

Earlier Tuesday, little Johanne denied that she had seen a vision of the Virgin Mary in the grotto but maintained she saw a vision of her mother who died a year ago.

She said in an interview that the false story about the appearance of the Virgin was probably spread by some of her classmates who accompanied her on a visit to the church.

FAMILY SEEKS QUIET

Johanne's father, Alex Allison, had decided to move his family so they could get a respite from the constant excitement which followed reports that Johanne saw the Virgin Mary on Friday.

The girl said Tuesday she was sure the face of her late mother appeared to her beside a statue of the Virgin Mary, which stands in the grotto.

She did not understand how the rumor started that she had seen the Virgin.

Johanne and her brother, Lawrence, 21, agreed the rumor must have been spread and perhaps started by some of her classmates.

Retarded Need More Attention

QUEBEC (CP)—Mrs. Daniel Johnson said Tuesday more schools should be established whose teaching would be adjusted to the development rhythm of retarded children.

Speaking to opening sessions of the national conference on mental retardation, Mrs. Johnson, wife of Quebec's premier, called on all professional groups interested in working for less-favored children to unite and put an end to "a long-ignored tragedy."

She said the biggest reason behind society's failure to deal with the problem is defeatism —an attitude which is contributing to a giant waste of human resources.

About 83 per cent of children with emotional or character disabilities were educatable, 12 per cent were partly educatable and the remaining four per cent would remain totally dependent.

But many of these were being sacrificed rather than helped.

Another speaker, Margaret Rideout, parliamentary assistant to Health Minister MacEachen, said the federal government will spend $2,500,000 during the next five years for research into mental retardation.

Homes for Aged Becoming Status Symbols

OTTAWA (CP) — Homes for the aged are becoming status symbols for elderly people and their families, President-elect J. H. Gillies of the Ontario Association of Homes for the Aged said Tuesday.

In an interview prior to the association's three-day convention, he said the homes are getting bigger and better.

Twelve years ago it was rather unusual for families to place an elderly relative in a home, Mr. Gillies said. "Today it seems to be a status symbol."

Mr. Gillies claims Ontario provides "the best care for the aged in the world."

He gave the $3,000,000 John Noble Home in Brandford which he administers as an example of modern municipal homes. It accommodates 305 residents and has about one staff member for every two occupants.

Besides living quarters, the home has a 4,000-book library, barber and beauty shops, a non-denominational chapel, an auditorium and sitting rooms.

SPEND MORE MONEY

Most municipalities are spending more money building and staffing homes, he said. Construction cost per bed is $10,000 and operating expenses run $5 to $7 a day.

An applicant's ability to pay is secondary. When necessary the province pays 70 per cent and the municipality the remaining 30 per cent of the cost of care.

About 500 delegates are attending the conference. They include administrators, superintendents, board members and auxiliary members at homes for the aged.

Resolutions on care of the aged will be discussed in workshops and voted on Thursday. Most are expected to deal with suggestions for minor changes in the 1966 Family Benefits Act.

SIX-YEAR LOW

Prison Population Falls Below 7,000

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The population of the federal prison system fell below the 7,000 mark this summer for the first time in six years, continuing an unexpected decline that began in 1965.

The decline followed the start of a 10-year, $100,000,000 penal construction program, which was partially based on forecasts that the prison population would grow.

The late Guy Favreau, then justice minister, said in 1964 that a careful study indicated the system would have 8,500 prisoners by 1967.

Penal officials then expected that a five-per-cent annual increase in the number of prisoners would continue.

However, the peak figure to date was 7,651, reached in early 1964, and the number of prisoners has been declining steadily since then.

PROBATIONS A FACTOR

A penitentiaries service official said Tuesday there were 6,952 prisoners in the system Sept. 12, compared to 7,222 a year ago. The last time the figure was below 7,000 was in 1961.

The breakdown showed 692 prisoners in the Atlantic region, 1,971 in the Quebec region, 2,058 in the Ontario region and 2,231 in the western region, which includes the Prairie provinces and British Columbia.

Penologists said a number of factors probably account for the decline and they were unable to pinpoint any single cause. The one most often mentioned is greater use of probation by judges.

"It's very much different than what we expected," said Col. J. R. Stone, deputy commissioner of penitentiaries, in an interview. He described it as a happy trend.

"I'd like to see all the prisons empty."

Youth Fined For Tire Theft

Brian Scott, 20, of 851 Sevenoaks, was given a suspended sentence on a theft charge and fined $100 on a second similar charge in central court Tuesday.

Both charges involved the stealing of tires.

Magistrate Ostler said "the practice of young men canabalizing others autos to provide parts for their own is entirely too common in this area."

Scott was placed on probation for the duration of the one year suspended sentence.

Israel Bond Drive

NEW YORK (AP)—Louis H. Boyar, chairman of the Israel Bond Organization, has announcer a new $500,000,000 State of Israel Bond drive. Boyar said a sharp increase in bond sales following the June Middle East war exhausted the bond supply of a $400,000,000 drive inaugurated in March, 1964.

Socred MP Swings Over To Liberals

'National Party At End of Line'

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—H. A. Olson, MP for Medicine Hat, has quit the Social Credit Party and has written Prime Minister Pearson seeking a berth with the Liberals.

He told a press conference today that "for all practical purposes" the national Social Credit Party is dead.

The 42-year-old Olson said his choice was partly dictated by his commitment at the 1965 election to his constituents to "assist the government in properly governing the country."

A spokesman said Mr. Pearson's comment on Mr. Olson's decision was:

"I am delighted."

It was expected that Mr. Olson's application to sit with government supporters will go before the caucus of MPs and senators this weekend.

If admitted to the ranks of government supporters in the Commons, he would be the only Alberta Liberal. He would be the second Liberal in the three Prairie provinces. The only one now is Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet, member for St. Boniface, Manitoba.

HAS HOPES

This, Mr. Olson said, and other factors lead him to hope he would have an equal opportunity with other government supporters of being appointed to the cabinet. However, he had no comments, formal or informal, on that score.

A spokesman said Mr. Pearson's comment on Mr. Olson's decision was:

"I am delighted."

It was expected that Mr. Olson's application to sit with government supporters will go before the caucus of MPs and senators this weekend.

Mr. Olson said that although he is seeking to join the ranks of the Liberals, he doesn't renounce the monetary doctrines of Social Credit.

"I think there is a great deal of validity in Social Credit monetary proposals. But one of the greatest problems we have had . . . is explanation of them by some self-appointed spokesmen who don't really understand what they are talking about."

Mr. Olson's departure reduces the Social Credit group in the 265-seat commons to four from five under interim leader A. B. Patterson, MP for Fraser Valley.

Mr. Olson cited five reasons in a press release for deciding the Social Credit Party is "dead."

These included decisions taken at the party's national council meeting in Edmonton Sept. 11-12 to close down the national office here and wind up its monthly publication, Focus.

He said his reasons also cover the publication by Premier Manning of Alberta of his book, Political Realignment: A Challenge to Thoughtful Canadians.

It called on Social Credit supporters to assist in reorganizing one of the two major political parties.

Mr. Olson said he has sent Premier Manning a copy of a letter to Mr. Patterson, resigning from the party and all appointments in the party caucus.

Mr. Olson said he plans to tell his constituents in a broadcast later this week of his decision and the reason for it.

ENDORSE VIEWS?

He said he doesn't think his constituency association executive and council endorse the views of Mr. Manning, widely interpreted as a bid to marry Social Credit and the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Olson was asked whether he will seek re-election to the Commons at the next general election as a Liberal.

"Probably," he replied.

He anticipated some difficulty in winning. The easiest course probably would have been to join the Conservatives because the combined Social Credit and PC vote in his riding represented about 85 per cent of the total votes cast.

He said he had informal invitations at various times to join

MORE COMING?

Manning Book Blamed

By JOHN MIKA

Shocked B.C. Social Crediters today are braced to see more Social Credit MPs cross the floor of parliament behind H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat).

But acting national leader Alex Patterson (SC — Fraser Valley), told the Times in a telephone interview from Ottawa that he doesn't think there will be any more disaffections although he can't speak for his colleagues until they have a caucus next Monday.

Mr. Patterson admitted that each of the five Socred MPs last week told the party's national council they were extremely distressed that Premier Manning's recent book urging realignment of the Tory and Socred parties had put them in a virtually untenable position.

He said none of the five at the time threatened to quit, not even Mr. Olson.

'WE CAN SURVIVE'

"As far as I know, I'll be remaining with the party," the acting leader said. "I believe if we can survive this latest blow—Mr. Manning's book primarily but also the loss of Mr. Olson—we will be able to continue."

Later Mr. Patterson emphasized that he has "no plans to switch to another party but I have not discussed this with the others since the news about Mr. Olson. I would not anticipate they would join the Liberals but this whole thing will be under discussion when he meet Monday morning."

Premier Bennett declined to make any comment and Herbert Bruch, provincial MLA for Esquimalt and national party president, could not be located for comment.

But B.C. Social Credit League president George Driedigger in Vancouver made it clear that some are braced to see more join Mr. Olson.

"I regret to see Mr. Olson leave because in my estimation he was and remains one of the

Roblin Gets Offer To Run in Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba has been offered the Progressive Conservative nomination in the Nov. 6 federal by-election in Jasper-Edson.

Dr. Hugh Horner, who resigned his federal seat to enter Alberta politics last May, said today the constituency association had writeen Mr. Roblin and was awaiting his reply.

"If Mr. Roblin does not run here, we have several excellent men who will contest the nomination," Dr. Horner said.

Mr. Roblin has said that if he were to seek a seat in the Commons, he would be interested in representing a Manitoba constituency.

Former Mayor William Hawrelak of Edmonton said today he had been asked by several persons to contest the byelection for the Liberals.

Whoever wins the seat will not hold it for long. It will disappear under redistribution.

MANITOBA MP WOULD RESIGN

MINNEDOSA, Man. (CP)—Progressive Conservative MP J. Nicholas Mandziuk said today he is prepared to resign his seat in Marquette constituency, if Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin wishes to run for Parliament.

'MAY GOD BLESS HER'

Queen Elizabeth II Name for New Liner

From AP-Reuters

CLYDEBANK, Scotland — The Queen cracked a magnum of champagne on the graceful bows of Britain's great new ocean liner today and launched it into the River Clyde with the name millions were waiting to hear—her own, Queen Elizabeth II.

An emotional roar erupted from 30,000 throats as the Cunarder glided down the slipway and set up a huge wave across the river.

"May God bless her and all who sail in her," said the Queen.

The name of the ship had been kept secret until now. She had been known only as Q4.

The 58,000-ton craft slipped down into the Clyde cheered by 9,000 shipyard workers and a large gallery of notables.

Until the Queen pronounced the ship's name, just before shattering the champagne bottle across its bow, only three other persons were in on the secret.

Speculation on what this successor to the Cunard line's Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth would be called had kept newspaper readers agog and bookmakers busy.

The list of possible names included Sir Winston Churchill, Princess Margaret and Princess Anne. But the Queen Elizabeth was high in the betting.

The liner took to the water carrying Cunard's hopes of achieving a profit in place of the present crushing loss it endures to the North Atlantic passenger run.

The ship also bears a heavy load of debt. Public funds to the tune of nearly £24,000,000 ($72,000,000), have been borrowed towards its cost of about £30,000,000 ($90,000,000).

As the launching neared, the Queen, surrounded by members of the Royal Family including Prince Philip and Princess Margaret, had to wait for 15 seconds while a fault in the microphones was fixed.

After announcing the name, the Queen had another anxious wait. She pressed the launching button and nothing happened.

Millions of television viewers shared her anxiety. Sounds of hammering were heard for a moment. And then, 2½ minutes later, the liner began gliding away.

At 58,000 tons the new liner is no giant compared with Mary's 81,237 and the Elizabeth's 82,997. But with the use of weight-saving alloys, her accommodation is comparable—2,000 passengers on the Atlantic, 1,500 while cruising.

Her twin screws, powered by steam turbines, will keep her steady at 28½ knots, no faster than the Mary, but she uses only half the fuel.

Her first commander, Capt. William Warwick, 58, will have a computer that will help his crew set course, watch over the engines, and even keep check on the stockrooms and passengers' bar bills.

AT UBCM MEET

'Tom Terrific' May Explode

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

PRINCE GEORGE—Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell and the Union of British Columbia Municipalities are locked on a collision course.

"Tom Terrific," as he's known on the Lower Mainland, thundered into Prince George this morning with a sweeping denunciation of the 64-year-old organization of municipal governments and a demand that Vancouver and Victoria have a greater say in UBCM affairs.

His scathing criticism of what he termed "the rurally-oriented mouthpiece of the provincial government" will hit the convention floor late Friday afternoon.

'COOLY ALOOF'

Victoria's Mayor Hugh Stephen will support Mayor Campbell's demands—but holds himself cooly aloof from the flamboyant tactics of Vancouver's chief magistrate.

Mayor Campbell, who earlier this week threatened to pull Vancouver out of the UBCM, admitted in an interview today his first thoughts were a tactical error.

"I don't want to ruin the UBCM," he said. "I shall not advocate that Vancouver pull out. But I shall demand that the Lower Mainland and Greater Victoria have a greater say in matters affecting urban areas.

METRO BRANCH

"It is my view that it would be relatively simple for the UBCM to establish within the present organization a branch strictly devoted to the problems affecting metropolitan areas.

"This organization is wasting too much time discussing and debating problems which are of no importance whatsoever to the cities in which the majority of the people of this province live.

Mayor Stephen said he is gratified that Mayor Campbell had reconsidered his earlier decision to pull out of the UBCM.

"It is quite obvious that a city cannot be effective in absentia. The UBCM is in dire need of a forceful and useful opinion.

"I am totally in agreement with Mayor Campbell that the problems facing municipalities in B.C. are so diverse that specific representation of urbanized areas is essential."

Mayor Stephen said that by 1980 four of every five Cana-

CUBANS BACK IN ASSEMBLY

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The Cuba delegation, which walked out of the assembly Tuesday protesting a delay of its ambassador and his aides by U.S. customs officials at Nassau, Bahamas, was in its place when the general assembly convened today.

(See page 3.)

Assembly President Corneliu Manescu of Romania announced that the incident had been satisfactorily settled and took the unusual step of welcoming the Cubans to the assembly hall.

Beulah Slams Texas With 120-mph Blast

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI) — Hurricane Beulah smashed south Texas with 120-mile-per-hour winds today and drove northwest, veering inland from her expected coastal path and "weakening rapidly" but still spinning off tornadoes and rain that killed six persons.

The weather bureau said Beulah's centre was about nine miles north of Harlingen and moving northwest while "weakening quite rapidly" as her eye passed over land.

Earlier a veteran hurricane hunter pilot after flying through the eye reported:

Forecasters said "all precautions" should be continued along the threatened Texas coast, where 30,000 persons had been driven from their homes 163 miles up to Corpus Christi.

Five persons were killed by tornadoes that sprang up in Beulah's path from the coast 100 miles inland, and a man was drowned when a car overturned in a river near Edna, Tex., swollen by 10 inches of rain.

Gov. John Connally called up 1,280 national guardsmen. President Johnson oredered full federal assistance.

Beulah had killed 36 persons —18 in the Caribbean, 11 in Mexico's Yucatan Peninsular and seven in Texas, including the victims today and a 15-year-old girl who vanished while surfing Tuesday.

Brownsville on the tip of Texas was a shambles of unroofed buildings, shapped and flashing power lines and shattered windows. No deaths were reported, however.

Uprooted citrus trees and fruit from a $15 million orange and grapefruit crop littered the sodden ground in the lower Rio Grande valley. Shrimp boats sank off Brownsville's port and small craft and tankers ripped loose and floated free.

Corpus Christi braced for the storm while palm trees bent double in Beulah's vanguard of 60-mile-per-hour gales. Mountainous waves crashed on the breakfront and inundated the extreme northern tip of the city.

Along the coast and inland tornadoes sprang up in Beulah's path — so many that radar trackers could not keep count.

The Red Cross said more than 30,000 persons were in shelters along the coast, including 16,000 in Corpus Christi.

Beulah's winds, estimated at 175 miles per hour when she smashed into Brownsville early today, had weakened to 120 miles per hour. But she could still turn out to be one of the

3 Federal Byelections Called for November 6

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson today called byelections in three federal constituencies for Monday, Nov. 6.

Ridings concerned are Colchester-Hants in Nova Scotia, where Conservative skipper Robert Stanfield will seek election to the Commons; Bonavista-Twillingate in Newfoundland and Jasper-Edson in Alberta.

The last may be the most interesting of the three. All parties will be anxious to see how loyal the Prairies will remain to the Conservatives now that John Diefenbaker has been deposed as leader.

Nomination day in Colchester-Hants will be Monday, Oct. 23. The Liberal association in the riding has not yet decided whether to field a candidate against Mr. Stanfield. The New Democratic Party has already opted out.

It is being suggested by some Liberal sources here that if the Liberals do not put up an official candidate, a ginger Liberal group in Colchester-Hants might do so.

Colchester-Hants was held by Conservative Cyril Kennedy from 1953 until last week when he resigned to give Mr. Stanfield an opening to the Commons, which will reconvene Sept. 25.

Nomination day in Bonavista-Twillingate and Jasper-Edson will be Tuesday, Oct. 10. Normally it would be the previous day but Oct. 9 is Thanksgiving, a statutory holiday.

The Newfoundland riding was left vacant Monday by the departure from the Commons and cabinet of Transport Minister Pickersgill. The riding has been Liberal since Newfoundland joined Confederation in 1949 and Mr. Pickersgill has held it since 1953.

It is believed that Charles Granger, former Liberal MP for Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador and a former aide to Mr. Pickersgill will seek his party's nomination in Bonavista-Twillingate.

Dr. Horner had held the seat

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1967—PAGE 13

'Forget School Costs'

People Will Act, Says UBCM Head

The president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, Mayor H. J. Gardner of Williams Lake, said this morning municipal governments should not concern themselves with rising school costs.

In his annual report to the 64th UBCM convention at Prince George, Mayor Gardner is reported by Times City Hall reporter Jim Hume as stating:

"I am of the opinion that perhaps we should paddle our own canoe, set our mill rates at a level to provide services expected or needed and not concern ourselves as municipal people with the school cost portion of the tax bill."

'DO SOMETHING'

Mayor Gardner said he took his stand because municipal councils have no control over school costs and that he was confident that once the taxpayers wake up to the fact that too much of the high cost of education is being borne by the landowner, they will start trying to do something about it.

The president made a brief reference to an emergency meeting of the UBCM executive last April to discuss rising school costs and the possibilty of a detailed survey of provincial-municipal cost-sharing arrangements.

"The comittee is still working on this matter," he said. "We have delayed the decision because I suspect that a survey such as the one proposed could cost anywhere from $40,000 to $60,000 and I feel that a matter of such major importance as this should be decided by all members of the UBCM.

LESS THAN HUMAN are frosh and less than humane is the treatment afforded them by upperclassmen at Uvic during first-week frolics. Senior biology students lined up these freshmen Tuesday for a "free" group photo. Then they beaned them on the beanies with garlands of soggy seaweed dropped from the roof of the science building just as they were set to say "cheese". John Philion was the photographer who took the smelly shot, cutting himself off forever from a section of future business. But for a picture like that, perhaps it was worth it.

15-YEAR PLAN FOR OAK BAY TO BE DISCUSSED BY BOARD

Directors of Oak Bay's Board of Trade will meet tonight to discuss the regional planners proposals for the municipality.

All directors have received copies of the $2.5 million, 15-year plan which calls for a village development, new apartment zones and improvements to parks.

The directors will exchange views on the plan this evening before meeting municipal engineer and planner G. O. White next week to discuss the proposals in detail before formulating a policy.

Bow-Torn Ship Here After Fog Collision

$1 Million Damage Estimated

By TERRY IZZARD

The first of two badly damaged freighters limped into Ogden Point at noon today.

The 8,000-ton Marie Skou, her bow torn completely off, was being examined by divers at press time.

Still in the fog-shrouded Straits of Juan de Fuca was the 40,000-ton Japanese lumber carrier Chitose Maru.

She was reported to have a 30-foot gash along her starboard bow.

The two ships met head on in the strait shortly after midnight.

Thick fog and smoke had cut visibility to less than a quarter mile.

GIANT AXE

Her crumpled bow looked as though it had been sliced by a giant axe.

Her 7,000-ton cargo will be offloaded and stored at Ogden Point while the ship undergoes repairs in drydock.

A deck officer said it was pitch black when the two ships met.

'IT WAS TOO LATE'

In perfect English he said: "The other ship suddenly appeared out of the fog.

"We tried to veer away but it was too late."

With the exception of men on watch crews of both ships were in their bunks. But for this there could have been serious injuries.

The 650-foot long Chitose Maru was on her maiden voyage from Japan where she was launched only a few months ago.

This was her first visit to Vancouver Island to pick up lumber.

Due to the fog there was no way of knowing her precise position, though she was reported about two hours out in the strait. She was due to anchor off Royal Roads this afternoon.

Damage to the two ships is expected to be well over $1 million, possibly several million.

At the time of the collision the Marie Skou, 416 feet long, was outbound after loading on the Island for the past week.

The Chitose Maru was heading the other way in ballast.

Government Slash-Burning Policy Challenged

By PETE LOUDON

British Columbia's largest forest industry today agreed there is too much slash burning undertaken in this province each fall.

A Vancouver spokesman for the giant MacMillan, Bloedel Ltd., vice-president and general-manager wood products J. O Hemmingsen said:

"We agree that there is too much (intentional) burning. But we are forced by the government to burn or pay a penalty of $12 an acre.

"Furthermore, if we don't burn, the government will not allow us to harvest adjacent timber stands, even though we might own them."

The smoke from slash fires which burn the residue from summer logging operations, has clouded B.C. in recent days.

It has hampered operations of fire spotters and water bombers as far inland as Kamloops.

Several slash fires jumped their guards and destroyed both standing timber and logging equipment—especially in the Sooke area, northeast of Victoria.

The situation brought the observation from University of B.C. plant ecologist Dr. V. J. Krajina that legislation is needed to curb slash fires.

He told The Times they are lit too early in the fall and are damaging to forests and wildlife.

Dr. Krajina said the industry should stop burning slash as a blanket spread over acres of the forest floor after trees are cut. He said the industry should be forced to pile the slash in damp areas before igniting it.

Mr. Hemmingsen agreed there was too much burning but he felt the slash should just be left where it falls, reducing logging costs rather than adding to them.

"It is simply not practical nor economical to haul slash any distance, to pile it and burn it," he stated.

He said slash-burning may damage topsoil or humus, but this doesn't necessarily deter new growth.

"Furthermore, burning does release chemicals which are useful for growing the next crop of trees."

He pointed out that a major reason for the slash-burning policy is to reduce the amount of fuel on the ground. With today's fuller utilization of forest products (MB and PR says it uses everything but rotten limbs and needles in pulp operations) less slash is left behind the loggers, however.

Any intentional burning is a hazard to adjacent timber stands, he said. And there are examples when burning the slash did not impede later fires.

A good example, said Mr. Hemmingsen, was the recent large summer fire in the Alberni region — an area previously burned intentionally.

"Nevertheless, it burned vigorously a second time."

Slash fire permits in lower Vancouver Island are under suspension but several fires started last week are still burning in the Sooke area, in a controlled manner.

When these fires were out of hand Sunday considerable damage was sustained to timber stands owned by Pacific Logging Company Ltd. No official was available today to detail the loss.

Pat Carson Bulldozing said that firm suffered a small loss, so did Malloch and Moseley Logging, including a small truck. Butler Brothers reported its greatest loss was in wages and time. Most of their 100-man crew was diverted to fighting slash fires extending over "several thousand acres," of CPR timberlands.

GORGE RACE

Anything That Floats Can Enter

Bathtubs, air mattresses, paddle boards, rafts — any kind of makeshift craft — can enter the open boat class in Saturday's centennial boat races on the Gorge.

Jerry Gosley, co-ordinator of the Greater Victoria Centennial Society, today called upon Victoria boatmen to support this "open" event.

"This can be one of the most interesting races if we get the entries," he said. "So far we have only one."

He said the kayak race may have to be cancelled if there are less than six entries. To date there are four.

The nine-mile canoe race starting from the Inner Harbor to Portage Inlet and back so far is the only event certain to be held Saturday afternoon.

There are 25 entries so far in the "double" paddle event, mostly all from Victoria and district.

While the races are in progress on the Gorge, Indian dancers will perform on the lawn of the Empress Hotel.

200 Visitors Attend Gyro Installation

The club is well-known for its continued activities in support of the Cadboro Bay Gyro Park, the Queen Alexandra Solarium, Little League Baseball and other funds and scholarships within the Victoria community.

Navy Man Convicted Having Drug

Ricky Kardera, 18, of CFB Esquimalt, was found guilty Tuesday in magistrate's court of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Kardera was arrested early in the morning of Aug. 3 near the main gate of the base.

IN PLASTIC BAG

Two other seamen testified they were present when Cino paid Kardera $10 for a promise to deliver him a matchbox full of marijuana Aug. 2.

Kardera insisted he did not know ths substance was marijuana. He said he bought it for $4 at a "hippie house" and thought it was some sort of herbal tea.

"It is absurd that anyone would want to pay $4 for herbal tea," commented Magistrate Ostler.

The magistrate remanded the case to Sept. 28 for pre-sentence report.

Two Students Receive Awards

Two University of Victoria students have received awards from the Alma Van Dusen Fund, administered by the Vancouver foundation.

Corinne Elizabeth Argue, 2321 Cook Street, a graduate student in psychology, received an award of $250.

'Pay Extra Cost' For McRae Estate Councillor Urges

A Saanich councillor said today the municipality should purchase the 132-acre McRae Estate and pay the extra cost.

Coun. Digby Kier was commenting on the $1.2 million arbitration award for the property, which was $450,000 above the amount set aside for the purchase.

"We may have to go to a referendum in December to get the extra money," he said.

"If that is necessary we should do that. The people wanted the estate in the first instance and I don't think they've changed their mind now."

REGIONAL AFFAIR

Another councillor, Harold Todd, said "other alternatives" to purchase may have to be explored. He said the McRae Estate "situated as it is, is a regional park if there ever was one.

"Saanich could abandon the idea (of purchase) at that price and opt out by paying the rather substantial costs." But, he added, this is "not a very pleasant prospect either."

Reeve Hugh Curtis said earlier he didn't think council could abandon any of the capital budget projects approved by ratepayers two years ago and he would "very much regret" not purchasing the estate.

He said the municipality could "go back to the people for more money."

Saanich councillors attending the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Prince George did not receive a copy of the 21-page arbitration award until last midnight. They were to study it today before commenting.

The extra cost of purchasing the estate in southern Saanich, including costs and interest to the McRae family, is about $550,000 — not $50,000 as printed in Tuesday's Times.

One estimate is that this could be reduced to about $350,000 by applying money from contingencies and savings on McKenzie Avenue in the capital budget.

Partnership in Crime Terminated in Court

A short-lived crime partnership ended in magistrate's court today when two men pleaded guilty to charges of false pretenses.

David Charette, 39, and Donald Gautier, 41, both of 44 San Jose Ave., appeared in court separately.

City police detective Tom Smith told the court Charette obtained a sports jacket from Eaton's Tuesday afternoon. He gave the store a $31.45 cheque later found to be worthless.

Gautier met Charette, took the jacket and the sales slip back to Eaton's, and asked for a cash refund.

Magistrate Ostler remanded both until Sept. 28 for pre-sentence report.

Guided Missile Destroyer Open For Inspection

The general public will be able to visit an American guided missile-armed destroyer leader this Sunday.

The 8,000-ton USS Horne will arrive at Esquimalt late Friday and will leave Monday morning. She will also visit Vancouver next Tuesday to Friday.

Main gates at HMC Dockyard will be open for the public between 1 and 4 p.m. Sunday for visitors to see the destroyer.

The visiting vessel carries a crew of 24 officers and 375 enlisted men. She is 547 feet long and has a 54-foot beam.

Full Gospel Businessmen Meeting Here

B.C. Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi will represent the provincial government at the Pacific Northwest regional Full Gospel businessmen's convention at the Empress Hotel, Oct. 5-7.

Delegates will be welcomed at 3 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 5, and there will be a public meeting at 8 p.m. in the Empress ballroom.

Between religious and social meetings, delegates will visit the Royal London Wax Museum and the Maritime Museum.

On Saturday there will be an adult banquet, a youth banquet, a students' seminar and a children's meeting.

Among the speakers will be Earl Prickett, international vice-president, Pacific Northwest region, and Rev. John Costas, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Blackwood, N. J.

Carter taxation proposals and their implications for the average businessman or individual will be explained by a panel to be brought here by Victoria Chamber of Commerce Oct. 6.

Two Vancouver men, Derek Parkinson, a partner in the accountants firm of Price, Waterhouse and Co., and Jacques Barbeau, partner in the legal firm of Barbeau, McKercher and Collingwood, will outline the royal commission report at Imperial Inn, at a noon luncheon.

The men have devoted much of the summer to studying the Carter commission and have prepared their findings on behalf of Vancouver Board of Trade.

HE WANTS TO RESERVE EXPLANATION

Tim Glover, 3895 Hobbs, pleaded guilty to three similar charges in the court's Tuesday morning sessions.

The first three offences took place at the Sidney Travelodge, the Crystal Court Motel and the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. The fourth was at the Century Inn.

Glover said "I would like to reserve my explanation as other charges are coming in."

Rites Thursday For Ex-Banker

Private funeral services will be held Thursday at Hayward's Chapel for Donald Barrett Maclean, a native son of Victoria.

Mr. Maclean, who was 62, died Tuesday in Victoria. He was manager of the Royal Bank of Canada in Courtenay and later, before his retirement, savings manager at Royal branches in Victoria.

He leaves the widow, Margaret; a brother, Mr. Justice H. Alan Maclean of Vancouver; a nephew in Montreal and a niece in Courtenay.

Cedar Hill Surfacing Next Week

Surfacing of the newly widened Cedar Hill Cross Road at the entrance to the University of Victoria, is scheduled to start next week.

This will complete the first half of the $190,000 project which calls for widening and repaving of the road from Gordon Head Road to Cadboro Bay Road.

This year the Gordon Head-Henderson stretch will be completed and the remainder to Cadboro Bay will be done next year.

The provincial government is providing $90,000 towards the cost, the frontagers $17,643 and the municipality will pay $88,357.

INSTAL MANHOLES

No federal aid is included because the subsoil in the area is not suitable for winter work.

The whole of Windsor Road from Beach Drive to Victoria Avenue will be rebuilt, widened and the crown levelled off.

First stage calls for rebuilding of the short stretch from Beach Drive to Newport. This includes traffic control islands at the start of Windsor.

Victoria Man Gets 2½ Months On Three Charges

A 22-year-old Victoria man was sentenced in magistrate's court today to a total of 2½ months for three offences.

Police said the swearing charge arose after Ouellette used "filthy language" trying to provoke a fight at Thetis Lake Aug. 12. The police said many women and children were in hearing distance.

The other offences occurred at Courtenay in a hotel parking lot Aug. 12. Ouellette was found by police drinking in a car with a companion under the age of 21.

Magistrate Ostler sentenced him to $50 or 14 days on the first charge, and $50 or one month each on the second and third. Ouellette said he was unable to pay the fine.

Ask The Times

Q. Is there a national newspaper boy week and if so when is it? E.G.

A. There is a National Newspaper Boy Day which falls in National Newspaper Week but the dates have not been announced for this year, although the week is usually marked in mid-October.

Q. What was the name of the first ship to circumnavigate Vancouver Island and when? V.G.

A. According to history books, Captain George Vancouver was first to sail around the Island in 1792 on board the Discovery.

140 Arrested As Negro Rioting Flares

By United Press International

Rocks and bottles flew in the streets of Hartford, Conn., and Dayton, Ohio, Tuesday night and early today. There was looting in both cities and 140 persons were arrested.

Hartford police used tear gas to beat back crowds of young Negroes in the summer's second outbreak of violence in the predominantly Negro north end of the insurance city. Forty persons were arrested.

The violence flared after a second night of demonstrations in support of open housing collapsed, probably because the group's leader, John Barber, was jailed after Monday night's march. Four blocks of Hartford were sealed off to contain the turmoil.

In Dayton, the violence spread through five square miles. More than 100 were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct or breaking and entering. The disturbance was set off by a street corner rally at which civil rights militants cried for "justice" in the killing of a Negro civil rights worker by a white policeman.

France TV Beaming On Quebec

PARIS (UPI) — France and Quebec will launch a joint communications satellite for relaying French television programs to Canada, it was reported here.

The satellite will enable programs to be relayed without depending on the existing American Early Bird satellite, informed sources said.

Plans for the new project were discussed by Claude Morin, deputy minister of intergovernmental affairs for Quebec and Maurice Schumann, French minister of state for scientific research.

The satellite will be among the first Franco-Quebec projects initiated by Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson during his visit to France earlier this year. It followed French President Charles de Gaulle's highly publicized trip to Canada in which he issued his now famous "Free Quebec" speech.

Mroin, who arrived in Paris early this week, was scheduled to return to Canada next week after inspecting Quebec House in Milan, Italy.

France, Que. Summits Set

PARIS (UPI) — France and Quebec have agreed to hold regular government-level meetings including summit sessions to tighten their co-operation, it was announced today. The announcement was made by George Gorse, the information minister, after a three-hour Elysee Palace meeting chaired by President Charles de Gaulle.

Chlorine Fells 12

BALTIMORE (UPI) — An explosion and fire at the Continental Oil Co. today released a cloud of potentially-deadly chlorine gas into a south Baltimore neighborhood.

Firemen and workmen at the plant were overcome by the fumes but quick administration of oxygen and other first aid measures saved their lives. Twelve firemen were hospitalized, but there were no fatalities.

Hospitals Need Greater Care To Curb 'Bugs'

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Hospitals are saving more and more lives each year but there is growing concern about the number of persons who die in hospitals from accidents or infections unrelated to their original illness.

Experts from several fields discussed dangers to both patients and staff from fire, infection, radiation and explosions Tuesday in the last of two one-day symposia on hospital hazards. They concentrated on electrical problems Monday. About 200 delegates attended from Canada and the U.S.

Doctors and engineers agreed in most cases that safety records are excellent, but that there still is room for improvement.

The major exception was in fire prevention, where F. A. Ingram, of the national health department's health facilities design division, noted that fire is the oldest of hospital hazards and still has not been conquered.

159 FIRES YEARLY

In the last 10 years, there has been an average of 159 fires a year in hospitals, with six or seven deaths each year, he told the conference.

The same fire hazards existed year after year, in boiler and furnace rooms, kitchens and storage areas for combustible or inflammable liquids, gases and solids.

He complained about the lack of fire walls in hospitals that could contain a fire long enough to ensure safe evacuation of patients.

Dr. Walter C. Harris, chief of the health department's bacteriological laboratories in Ottawa, said infections still are a major problem, although the types of infections are changing.

Thousands of persons died throughout the world each year from infections they pick up while in hospital.

CAN BE REDUCED

Hospitals could reduce the problem by checking several items, including air circulation, sterilization of every-day items such as blankets and curtains as well as sophisticated medical equipment, and ensuring that staff members are properly trained.

Many sources of infection could be eliminated with extra care and attention to hospital design.

Dr. A. W. Conn, chief of anesthesia at the Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto, said the problem of explosions involving anesthetics in hospitals has been greatly reduced in the last 10 years with the introduction of non-inflammable anesthetics.

STANFIELD BACKED BY TORY HIERARCHY

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says in a copyright story that an examination of individual voting-machine totals from the Progressive Conservative convention indicates that the so-called grass-roots delegates would have elected Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba.

Robert Stanfield, former premier of Nova Scotia, won the leadership convention Sept. 9 on the last of five ballots by 1,150 votes to 969 for Mr. Roblin.

The story says the study reveals a "basic premise" that the party hierarchy "in the main favored Mr. Stanfield and the grass-roots delegates Mr. Roblin."

It said the reading on the 10 machines where rank-and-file delegates votes — those elected by local Conservative associations in the 264 federal constituencies — gave a different answer than did the fifth ballot results: "559 for Mr. Roblin to 561 for Mr. Stanfield."

FASCINATING RESULTS

"Mr. Stanfield's comfortable margin of victory was all piled up on the machines that at the convention were referred to as the brass hat, or nob machines." Machines, numbered one to nine, were where the party hierarchy cast votes.

The party hierarchy, the story said, included the sometimes controversial lists of ex-officio and at-large members, those that were given voting privileges for attending the party's thinkers' conference at Montmorency, Que.

The story says fascinating results were obtained by matching the list of voters to the individual machine totals.

"Apart from showing Mr. Roblin to be the favorite of the rank and file, a loyal power base for E. Davie Fulton is indicated among younger Quebec," the story says.

"It also seems clear, as we guessed at the time of the final ballot, that when Mr. Fulton withdrew after the fourth ballot, the majority of his supporters went strongly to Mr. Roblin."

A study of first-ballot results on machine No. 4 showed that Mr. Roblin lost one from his own caucus.

"But results of other machines ... showed that he withdrew from the ranks of Mr. Stanfield—with the exception of Ontario legislators. If this followed him to the Fulton Quebec group, which seems natural, it means that he again had several defections from his caucus."

Family Challenge

CARACAS (Reuters) — Three sisters from Carora in western Venezuela, whose aggregate ages total 285 years, have challenged other "brothers and sisters of the world" to beat their record. The Verde sisters, who claim to have reached their ages in perfect health by "behaving well at all times," are Adelfina, 107; Adolfa, 96, and Julia, 82.

'Domestic Policy'

PARIS (UPI) — The French government suspects President Lyndon Johnson's decision to build an anti-ballistic missile shield against China is dictated more by domestic policy considerations than any real threat, informed sources said Tuesday.

Traffic Jam Seen In Old Folks Homes

OTTAWA (CP) — A mini-population explosion among Canada's aged within the next decade will create problems that can only be met by increased co-ordination of programs and centralization of facilities, a welfare authority said today.

Reuben C. Baetz, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council, made the prediction at the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Homes for the Aged.

"... There could be something akin to a human traffic jam at the entrance to the homes for the aged during the next decade," he said.

Besides the sheer increase in numbers resulting from a wave of immigrants at the turn of the century who now are reaching old age and the advancement of medical science, a growing shortage in adequate housing would send more and more old people looking for a place in homes for the aged.

Mr. Baetz said supplementary services such as home help, geriatic clinics, and referral services for old people "could be most competently and conveniently provided by the homes for the aged with appropriate staff."

NEW SERVICES

Mr. Baetz suggested those administering old-age programs in Ontario get to know more intimately what is going on in other parts of Canada. There was a study taking place in Manitoba on foster home care for the elderly and a project starting in Nova Scotia on a complete range of co-ordinated services for the aged.

Toronto Rabbi Backs Charge Against LBJ

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto rabbi who visited Hanoi last January says current contentions that North Vietnam was ready then for a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war "can be fully substantiated."

Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg was commenting Tuesday on a denial by the state department in Washington of charges that President Johnson's administration had "effectively and brutally cancelled" a private peace probe from North Vietnam by stiffening terms for peace negotiations.

TALKED TO HO

The charge was made by editor and writer Harry S. Ashmore of Santa Barbara, Calif., who had talked with President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam in Hanoi, also in January.

"Together with the late A. J. Muste of New York, a retired Presbyterian minister, and Anglican Bishop Ambrose Reeves of Chichester, England, I interviewed Ho Chi Minh and Prime Minister Pham Van Dong for an entire morning of Jan. 17," Rabbi Feinberg said in a statement.

"Both the leaders expressed emphatically their readiness to talk once the bombing of North Vietnam is unconditionally terminated.

PARLEY ASKED

"Ho Chi Minh extended through us an invitation to President Johnson to sit down for peace conversations with him in Hanoi as a guest in complete security on a personal level.

"We also had an interview in Hanoi for two hours with the official representative of the National Liberation Front in that city, Nguyen Van Tien.

New Republic of Benin Secedes From Nigeria

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigeria's Midwest Region today declared itself the republic of Benin in the Nigerian federation's second regional secession since May.

The previous one was that of the Eastern Region which named itself the republic of Biafra May 30.

Maj. Albert Ononikwo, military administrator of Benin since it was occupied by Biafran troops in the Nigerian civil war, made the announcement on Benin radio.

He said all reasonable proposals for the preservation of Nigeria had been exhausted and pressures had been building up on him to "lead the people of the Midwest to the promised land."

The "autonomous and completely sovereign republic of Benin" would honor all international treaties and obligations and co-operate closely with Biafra, he said.

The major said more than 10,000 Midwesterners have been "slaughtered, maimed and orphaned by northerners" in the federal forces.

Benin is a town famous in Nigerian history and a centre of Nigerian art and culture.

But a reliable report reaching Lagos Tuesday night said Biafran troops apparently were pulling out, stores were shuttered and the streets deserted.

The town and other key points in the Midwest were captured by Biafran forces in an attack last month.

But these successes seemed today to have been contained by federal forces, now equipped with jet fighters and other war supplies.

A war bulletin issued in Lagos said federal troops had mounted a major attack in the Midwest about 120 miles northeast of Benin.

The Nigerian civil war, which now has dragged on for more than 10 weeks, erupted after Biafra's secession.

This was the culmination of 18 months of mounting intertribal strife in the Nigerian Federation, mainly between the Eastern Region's Ibo people and the north's Hausa.

Civil war has staggered Nigeria's buoyant economy, the most promising in West Africa.

August production of oil was 52,000 barrels daily, compared with at least 580,000 barrels daily before the fighting began July 6.

After holding steady for six weeks, foreign exchange reserves dropped in August by $5,600,000, about the same amount as estimates of the cost of MiG jet fighters Nigeria purchased from the Soviet Union. The central bank held reserves of $142,800,000. A year ago the reserve holdings were $208,300,000.

July produced the first overseas trade deficit since last November.

A richly-successful cocoa selling season averts a worse picture. The value of cocoa bean exports in July was $13,700,000 —about $8,400,000 better than the same month in 1966.

The Standard Bank's review for August, 1967, said the lack of incoming capital and increased debt service and overseas expenditure meant "Nigeria was likely to face a near balance of payments crisis in 1967."

Ship Painting Causes Snag In SIU Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — Leonard McLaughlin, president of the 5,400-member Seafarers' International Union, Tuesday called upon Labor Minister Nicholson to arrange "without delay" a meeting of the union and representatives of 32 strike-bound Great Lakes shipping companies.

Earlier Tuesday, efforts in Ottawa to resolve the shipping dispute hit an unexpected snag when the companies demanded that sailors agree to accept ship-painting duties at night and on weekends.

In a telegram to the labor minister, Mr. McLaughlin said settlement prospects have "deteriorated greatly over the past 24 hours" and called for the meeting in light of the strike's "inevitable cumulative effect on the economy."

Federal mediators had been reported to have worked out agreement on all the major issues in the dispute, including introduction of a 40-hour week, reduction of the daily work spread and paid leave.

However, both parties were reported adamant on the ship-painting issue.

The SIU went on strike against the 32 companies Aug. 17, pulling its sailors off 178 vessels representing 82 per cent of Canada's inland shipping industry.

PAINTING WRANGLE

The wrangle over ship painting arises from a clause in the contract specifying types of "necessary work" that may be assigned sailors between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. on weekdays and from 8 a.m. Saturday to 8 a.m. Monday.

While several maintenance duties are listed as necessary, a sub-clause expressly excludes scraping, chipping and painting.

Both sides have agreed on a wage and benefit package providing for an increase of about 32 per cent over three years. The sailors are paid on a monthly rate starting at $380.86 for a deckhand. They work a 56-hour week.

The proposed 40-hour work week is said to be based on an averaging system over 18 weeks, about half the regular shipping season.

SUPERVISOR SOUGHT

'Waiting Pupils' Cause Problem

DUNCAN — There is no "Blackboard Jungle" in the precincts of Cowichan senior secondary school.

Nor at Mount Prevost junior secondary school.

Schools superintendent Art Jones today said earlier reports of fighting and smoking among students were exaggerated.

Acting principal of Cowichan high, Harold Proctor, said: "It is a problem of controlling numbers and the only reason we brought the matter to the attention of trustees is that the school is being used as a transit point."

About 500 students from other schools in the district are marshalled at Cowichan and Mount Prevost for transit by school buses.

Mr. Jones said: "Once in a while a fight breaks out among the boys, and there is some smoking off the school grounds.

"The board is investigating the cost of hiring a commissionaire to supervise the students at these schools between 8 and 9 a.m. and 3 and 4 p.m."

Hinges and doors have been broken and a recent $5,200 paint job badly marked.

Trustee Ernest Goddard said: "Supervision of waiting students is not a teachers' job. Before and after school hours every teacher has plenty to do.

"There is always a teacher on duty in the school but they should not be expected to patrol the grounds too."

A request from Mr. Proctor for more trash cans on James Street in front of Cowichan high was approved by the board.

Extra trash cans will also be requested from the local councils for the area of Festubert and St. Julian streets in the vicinity of the students' marshalling point.

SCHOOLS READY IN NOVEMBER

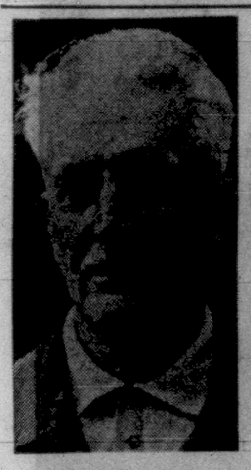

DUNCAN — The new Roome Road and Lane Road elementary schools will probably be ready for occupancy at the end of November.

Schools superintendent Art Jones told Cowichan district trustees that opening of these schools will bring to an end the present shift system.

He said he had received no written complaints about the shift system which has been in operation since school opened earlier this month.

Mr. Jones said: "The board is not to blame for the situation and we are rectifying it as soon as possible."

Previously board chairman Dr. Neil Dorning said delay in granting departmental approval for plans of the new schools was responsible for the delay.

Cyclist Suffers Head Injuries

DUNCAN—Rodney Dillabaugh, 17, of Duncan, was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria, Tuesday night for emergency surgery after being in a highway crash.

Dillabaugh was still unconscious while being transferred from King's Daughters' Hospital here. He was in fair condition today.

Oppose Abortion

MONTREAL (CP)—The Catholic Women's League Tuesday urged its 165,000 members to tell their federal representatives they oppose adoption of permissive abortion legislation. The 400 delegates attending a three-day convention of the national Roman Catholic women's organization, based their resolution on a statement passed by last year's convention which termed abortion "the taking of the life of an innocent human being."

PRIVATE RESERVE FOR 'OVER 65s' . . . AND A CIRCUS

By ED GOULD

GANGES—A parishoner told Reverend Ray Horsefield of the Anglican Church: "On Salt Spring Island we do things differently."

The comment was appropriate as observed in this week's events: A new traffic "circus"; a proposal to ban youth from the Gulf Islands; a back page slap at bureaucracy; and a host of sundries.

The new traffic circle, or circus (it seems to owe more to Barnum and Bailey than St. Giles) has left drivers perplexed.

MIDDLE OF ROAD

Formerly the intersection featured a First World War memorial (it now resides in splendid new surroundings at Centennial Park across the street right smack in the middle of the road.

You had the choice of turning left or right or, if you felt patriotic, driving right through and opening a New Front.

The new complex has every known modern street inconvenience: no entry, one-way, crosswalk, dozens of arrows pointing every which direction, yield, stop, and crash!

DROVE WRONG WAY

While he spoke, one man drove the wrong direction up a one-way lane, turned around and drove the wrong way down another; a woman drove past a stop sign with nary a pause; another woman stopped at yield, looked both ways and plowed through a loaded crosswalk.

The ban on young people was proposed by D. S. Morrision of Fulford Harbor. Mr. Morrision deplores pollution of air and stream and especially resents any improvement in ferry service.

In a letter to the Driftwood weekly he urged the government to "declare the Gulf Islands a closed area, reserved for retired people." An under-65 Ganges businessman wondered aloud who would run the services on this proposed colony of ancients.

Mr. Morrison concluded: "We oldsters have some rights as well as the untried and inexperienced youngsters who are telling us how business methods should be applied to the art of living."

NOT ALL MEAN!

The Chamber of Commerce once hinted that the mean average age of Salt Springers is 68 years. Of that number, of course, it may be assumed that not all are mean. The question is: How many are average?

In a back page notice to the Bureau of Statistics, Salt Spring Island Driftwood editor Frank Richards complained he was tired of telling them he didn't own the paper last year.

"No government can accomplish a change of historical fact," the notice read. Some governments have tried, mind you.

RCMP ON HAND

Meanwhile, a gaggle of pensioners who have taken to missing the last bus at Swartz Bay—mainly because the bus hasn't been there—have been assisted to their destination by a handy RCMP paddy wagon!

Recently, a grizzled sea captain (every other man, and some women, is a captain of some sort on these islands) said:

I looked him over from bow to stern. His hat was a greasy sweat band with captain lettered by hand; his shirt, open at the waist, showed a wide expanse of a hairy belly; his shortened trousers were held up with rope and his twitching feet were bare.

I looked past the nervous tic in his left eye and wisely chose not to divulge the "source" of my material!

Best Collection Anywhere Of 19th Century Victoria

By HUMPHRY DAVY

If you want to know how a well-to-do great-grandmother lived in 19th century Victoria, then a visit to Point Ellice House, 2660 Pleasant, will be enlightening and rewarding.

Historians, connoisseurs of art and antiques, and architects, who were present for the opening of the 100-year-old dwelling as a museum Tuesday, agreed it contained the finest collection of Victoriana in Western Canada.

The house built for the Hon. Peter O'Reilly, B.C.'s first gold commissioner, contains hundreds of antique furnishings, household utensils, artifacts and bric-a-brac.

It also includes wine and champagne imported to Victoria when British Columbia was a colony.

★ ★ ★

But the unique thing about the collection is that none of the articles were bought for the museum. They all belonged and were used by the same family.

Carolyn Case, curator of history for the provincial museum, said it would take a museum between 20 and 30 years to collect a similar collection.

"I have never seen as large a collection of Victoriana in Western Canada," he said.

Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, who conducted the opening ceremonies, was equally as impressed with what he saw.

Some of the things which impressed Mr. Pearkes was a gold harp which was played a century ago by Mrs. Kathleen O'Reilly, and a writing desk owned by Sir James Trutch, B.C.'s first lieutenant-governor.

He was a brother of Kathleen O'Reilly.

Mr. Pearkes was also interested in a fine lady's side-saddle and some riding whips.

For many visitors, the house still retained an aura of romance.

They also saw some of the possessions of Kathleen, the daughter, who was courted by Capt. Robert Scott, of South Pole fame.

Scott, then a young naval officer, was obliged to give up the idea of marrying Kathleen because of the lack of money. She was not far from his thoughts when he left for the South Pole in 1912 where he was destined to die.

The rugs and old English prints on the walls also attracted notice.

Master of ceremonies for the opening was James Nesbitt, local historian.

Lawrie Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, in a brief address, said many old Victoria homes could be restored if people would only use their imaginations.

★ ★ ★

The lawns and garden which overlook Selkirk waters, including the home, were illuminated for the occasion.

The scene to many visitors was quite impressive—a house landscaped with trees and a garden situated in the midst of industrial Victoria.

Comox Driver Acquitted

The charge arose out of a fatality April 29 in Comox when Flynn's car struck a bicycle being riden by George Mulholland, 15.

County Court judge H. C. MacKay said there was no evidence to indicate excessive speed or erratic driving.

Chiropractors Plan Meeting in Nanaimo

The three-day meeting, starting Sept. 29 wil include lectures by Eric Shrubb, of the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College in Toronto, on X-ray interpretation in accident reporting and a seminar on chiropractic techniques.

Other talks will deal with the law and the chiropractor and on Workmen's Compensation Board reporting.

Mother Wants To Visit Daughter

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany has asked the Canadian external affairs department to allow the mother of a plane crash survivor to visit her injured daughter in Halifax, the official East German news agency ADN reported today.

The request was made for Frau Lucie Luca, mother of Jutta Albrecht, one of two East German women injured in the recent crash of a Czech airliner in Newfoundland.

The East Germans asked that government officials also be allowed to visit the women in hospital to administer "humane necessities and the usual support from the government of their native land."

The new request follows reports by the East Germans to send a member of their Cuban embassy to Halifax. An entry visa was refused by Ottawa.

A government spokesman in Ottawa said last Friday the East German diplomat—a woman—had been refused entry because she did not have a temporary travel permit from the Allied Travel Office in West Berlin. He said the special permit is required because Canada does not recognize East Germany diplomatically and does not grant visas to East Germans wishing to visit Canada.

The Canadian spokesman said the door had not been "irrevocably closed," however, and that officials from three other Communist countries had been given special entry visas promptly after the crash, in which 36 persons died.

On Sept. 15, East German Foreign Minister Otto Winzer accused Canada of "inhuman behavior" for turning down the entry request.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Makes Late Husband Early

MRS. L. C. BORDEN

Waiting meals, while her husband mixed his own mustard, nearly drove Mrs. L. C. Borden to desperation. That is, until she brought a gleam to his eye with Colman's Hot Ready Prepared English Mustard. Now he drives her to desperation by getting to the table ahead of time. Advt.

BULLETINS

Hit by Police

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police knocked down several women anti-war demonstrators today when they crashed through a wooden fence keeping them across the treet from the White House.

The clash came when an estimated 500 members of the Women's Strike for Peace tried to march in front of the White House in defiance of an interior department order limiting the number of pickets there to 100.

Bomb Wounds 18

HONG KONG (UPI) — Communist terrorists hurled homemade hand grenades, incendiary bombs and other explosives in a series of anti-British attacks throughout the colony tonight, wounding at least 18 persons, including three children.

Crash Kills 2 Men

GOLDEN, B.C. (CP) — Two Vancouver men were killed Tuesday night when their sports car crashed in flames a mile east of here, police said today.

The men were bound for Calgary. Their car went out of control, rolled down a bank and burst into flames. Names were withheld.

Bingo Man Shot

VANCOUVER (CP) — A club treasurer who was shot in the leg and robbed of bingo receipts Tuesday night was in satisfactory condition today in hospital.

Doug Jacobs, 49, was shot as he was about to enter his house. Four men fled in a car after robbing him of $327, receipts from a night of bingo at the British Ex-Servicemen's Association Hall.

Hunter Charged

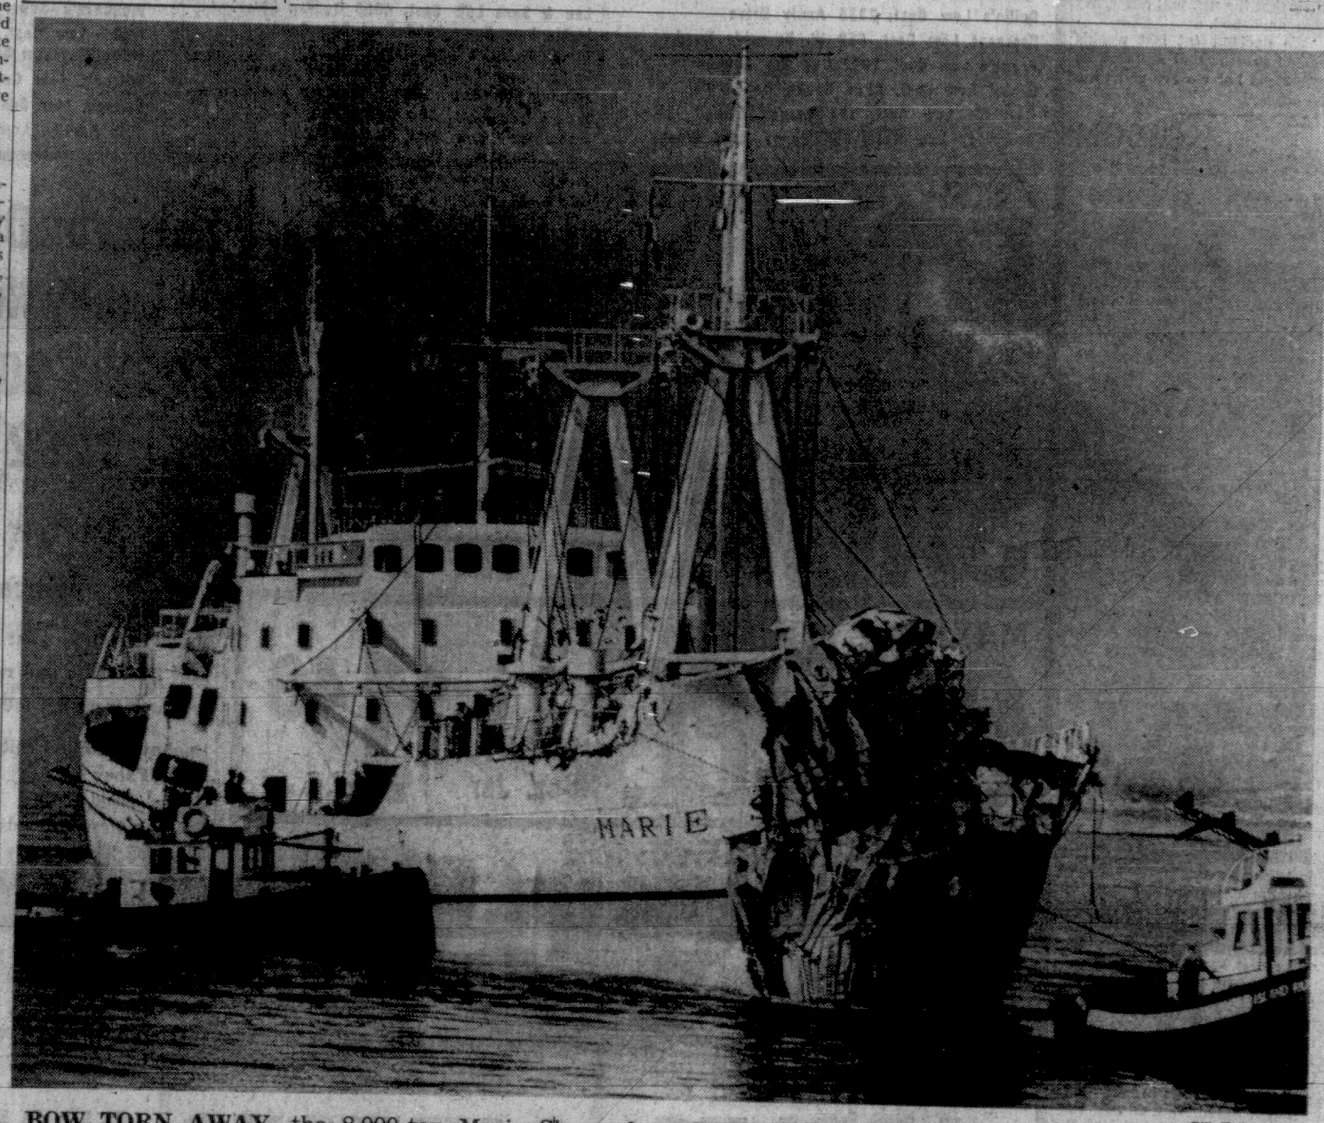

ARMSTRONG, Ont. (CP) — Harold Risky, 51, of Dubuque, Iowa, was charged today with careless hunting after his companion was killed Tuesday.

Eldon Nelson, 50, of St. Paul, Minn., died from a shotgun wound. The incident occurred near the garbage dump of this community, 150 miles north of the Lakehead, where the men were believed to have been hunting bears.

CUBANS BACK IN ASSEMBLY

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— The Cuba delegation, which walked out of the assembly Tuesday protesting a delay of its ambassador and his aides by U.S. customs officials at Nassau, Bahamas, was in its place when the general assembly convened today.

Assembly President Corneliu Manescu of Romania announced that the incident had been satisfactorily settled.

BOW TORN AWAY, the 8,000-ton Marie Skou of Danish registry, was towed into port here today after midnight collision with 40,000-ton Japanese freighter Chitose Maru. They met head-on in Strait of Juan de Fuca. No one was hurt but both ships were crippled. Japanese ship was expected to arrive off Royal Roads later today. Fog and smoke blanketed the strait. 30,000 Flee From Homes

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI)—Hurricane Beulah smashed south Texas with 120-mile-per-hour winds today and drove northwest, veering inland from her expected coastal path and weakening rapidly but still spinning off tornadoes and rain that killed six persons.

The weather bureau said Beulah's centre was about nine miles north of Harlingen and moving northwest while "weakening quite rapidly" as her eye passed over land.

Earlier a veteran hurricane hunter pilot after flying through the eye reported:

Forecasters said "all precautions" should be continued along the threatened Texas coast, where 30,000 persons had been driven from their homes 163 miles up to Corpus Christi.

Five persons were killed by tornadoes that sprang up in Beulah's path from the coast 100 miles inland, and a man was drowned when a car overturned in a river near Edna, Tex., swollen by 10 inches of rain.

FEDERAL AID

Beulah had killed 36 persons —18 in the Caribbean, 11 in Mexico's Yucatan Penisula and seven in Texas, including the victims today and a 15-year-old girl who vanished while surfing Tuesday.

Brownsville on the tip of Texas was a shambles of unroofed buildings, snapped and flashing power lines and shattered windows. No deaths were reported, however.

CROPS HIT

Uprooted citrus trees and fruit from a $15 million orange and grapefruit crop littered the sodden ground in the lower Rio Grande valley. Shrimp boats sank off Brownsville's port and small craft and tankers ripped loose and floated free.

Corpus Christi braced for the storm while palm trees bent double in Beulah's vanguard of 60-mile-per-hour gales. Mountainous waves crashed on the breakfront and inundated the extreme northern tip of the city.

Along the coast and inland tornadoes sprang up in Beulah's path — so many that radar trackers could not keep count.

The Red Cross said more than 30,000 persons were in shelters along the coast, including 16,000 in Corpus Christi.

Beulah's winds, estimated at 175 miles per hour when she smashed into Brownsville early today, had weakened to 115 miles per hour. But she could still turn out to be one of the

Roblin Gets Offer to Run In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba has been offered the Progressive Conservative nomination in the Nov. 6 federal by-election in Jasper-Edson.

Dr. Hugh Horner, who resigned his federal seat to enter Alberta politics last May, said today the constituency association had writeen Mr. Roblin and was awaiting his reply.

"If Mr. Roblin does not run here, we have several excellent men who will contest the nomination," Dr. Horner said.

Mr. Roblin has said that if he were to seek a seat in the Commons, he would be interested in representing a Manitoba constituency.

Former Mayor William Hawrelak of Edmonton said today he had been asked by several persons to contest the byelection for the Liberals.

Whoever wins the seat will not hold it for long. It will disappear under redistribution.

MANITOBA MP WOULD RESIGN

MINNEDOSA, Man. (CP)— Progressive Conservative MP J. Nicholas Mandziuk said today he is prepared to resign his seat in Marquette constituency, if Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin wishes to run for Parliament.

'Tom Terrific' May Explode

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

PRINCE GEORGE—Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell and the Union of British Columbia Municipalities are locked on a collision course.

"Tom Terrific," as he's known on the Lower Mainland, thundered into Prince George this morning with a sweeping denunciation of the 64-year-old organization of municipal governments and a demand that Vancouver and Victoria have a greater say in UBCM affairs.

His scathing criticism of what he termed "the rurally-oriented mouthpiece of the provincial government" will hit the convention floor late Friday afternoon.

Mayor Campbell, who earlier this week threatened to pull Vancouver out of the UBCM,

'MAY GOD BLESS HER'

Queen Elizabeth II Name for New Liner

From AP-Reuters

CLYDEBANK, Scotland — The Queen cracked a magnum of champagne on the graceful bows of Britain's great new ocean liner today and launched it into the River Clyde with the name millions were waiting to hear—her own, Queen Elizabeth II.

An emotional roar erupted from 30,000 throats as the Cunarder glided down the slipway and set up a huge wave across the river.

"May God bless her and all who sail in her," said the Queen.

The name of the ship had been kept secret until now. She had been known only as Q4.

The 58,000-ton craft slipped down into the Clyde cheered by 9,000 shipyard workers and a large gallery of notables.

Until the Queen pronounced the ship's name, just before shattering the champagne bottle across its bow, only three other persons were in on the secret.

Speculation on what this successor to the Cunard line's Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth would be called had kept newspaper readers agog and bookmakers busy.

The list of possible names included Sir Winston Churchill, Princess Margaret and Princess Anne. But the Queen Elizabeth was high in the betting.

The liner took to the water carrying Cunard's hopes of achieving a profit in place of the present crushing loss it suffers on the North Atlantic passenger run.

The ship also bears a heavy load of debt. Public funds to the tune of nearly £24,000,000 ($72,000,000), have been borrowed towards its cost of about £30,000,000 ($90,000,000).

As the launching neared, the Queen, surrounded by members of the Royal Family including Prince Philip and Princess Margaret, had to wait for 15 seconds while a fault in the microphones was fixed.

After announcing the name, the Queen had another anxious wait. She pressed the launching button and nothing happened.

Millions of television viewers shared her anxiety. Sounds of hammering were heard for a moment. And then, 2½ minutes later, the liner began gliding away.

At 58,000 tons the new liner is no giant compared with Mary's 81,237 and the Elizabeth's 82,997. But with the use of weight-saving alloys, her accommodation is comparable—2,000 passengers on the Atlantic, 1,500 while cruising.

Her twin screws, powered by steam turbines, will keep her steady at 28½ knots, no faster than the Mary, but she uses only half the fuel.

Her first commander, Capt. William Warwick, 58, will have a computer that will help his crew set course, watch over the engines, and even keep check on the stockrooms and passengers' bar bills.

DELIGHTED SAYS PM

Socred MP Bids To Join Grits

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—H. A. Olson, MP for Medicine Hat, has quit the Social Credit Party and has written Prime Minister Pearson seeking a berth with the Liberals.

He told a press conference today that "for all practical purposes" the national Social Credit Party is dead.

The 42-year-old Olson said his choice was partly dictated by his commitment at the 1965 election to his constituents to "assist the government in properly governing the country."

A spokesman said Mr. Pearson's comment on Mr. Olson's decision was:

"I am delighted."

It was expected that Mr. Olson's application to sit with government supporters will go before the caucus of MPs and senators this weekend.

If admitted to the ranks of government supporters in the Commons, he would be the only Alberta Liberal. He would be the second Liberal in the three Prairie provinces. The only one now is Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet, member for St. Boniface, Manitoba.

HAS HOPES

This, Mr. Olson said, and other factors lead him to hope he would have an equal opportunity with other government supporters of being appointed to the cabinet. However, he had no comments, formal or informal, on that score.

Mr. Olson said that although he is seeking to join the ranks of the Liberals, he doesn't renounce the monetary doctrines of Social Credit.

"I think there is a great deal of validity in Social Credit monetary proposals. But one of the greatest problems we have had . . . is explanation of them by some self-appointed spokesmen who don't really understand what they are talking about."

Mr. Olson's departure reduces the Social Credit group in the 265-seat commons to four from five under interim leader A. B. Patterson, MP for Fraser Valley.

Mr. Olson cited five reasons in a press release for deciding the Social Credit Party is "dead."

MORE COMING?

Manning Book Blamed

By JOHN MIKA

Shocked B.C. Social Crediters today are braced to see more Social Credit MPs cross the floor of parliament behind H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat).

But acting national leader Alex Patterson (SC — Fraser Valley), told the Times in a telephone interview from Ottawa that he doesn't think there will be any more disaffections although he can't speak for his colleagues until they have a caucus next Monday.

Mr. Patterson admitted that each of the five Socred MPs last week told the party's national council they were extremely distressed that Premier Manning's recent book urging realignment of the Tory and Socred parties had put them in a virtually untenable position.

He said none of the five at the time threatened to quit, not even Mr. Olson.

'WE CAN SURVIVE'

"As far as I know, I'll be remaining with the party," the acting leader said. "I believe if we can survive this latest blow—Mr. Manning's book primarily but also the loss of Mr. Olson—we will be able to continue."

Later Mr. Patterson emphasized that he has "no plans to switch to another party but I have not discussed this with the others since the news about Mr. Olson. I would not anticipate

3 Federal Byelections Called for November 6

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson today called byelections in three federal constituencies for Monday, Nov. 6.

Ridings concerned are Colchester-Hants in Nova Scotia, where Conservative skipper Robert Stanfield will seek election t the Commons; Bonavista-Twillingate in Newfoundland and Jasper-Edson in Alberta.

The last may be the most interesting of the three. All parties will be anxious to see how loyal the Prairies will remain to the Conservatives now that John Diefenbaker has been deposed as leader.

Nomination day in Colchester-Hants will be Monday, Oct. 23. The Liberal association in the riding has not yet decided whether to field a candidate against Mr. Stanfield. The New Democratic Party has already opted out.

It is being suggested by some Liberal sources here that if the Liberals do not put up an official candidate, a ginger Liberal group in Colchester - Hants might do so.

Colchester-Hants was held by Conservative Cyril Kennedy from 1953 until last week when he resigned to give Mr. Stanfield an opening to the Commons, which will reconvene Sept. 25.

Nomination day in Bonavista-Twillingate and Jasper-Edson wil. be Tuesday, Oct. 10. Normally it would be the previous day but Oct. 9 is Thanks-

With another good crowd in attendance, including five busloads of fans from Vancouver, today's first race at Sandown was won by Abine, with John Andrews aboard. Western Chief was second and Salemtown third.

Abine paid $10.30, $3.80 and $2.90. Western Chief returned $2.70 and $2.40, while Salemtown returned $4.30.

"I don't want to ruin the UBCM," he said. "I shall not advocate that Vancouver pull out. But I shall demand that the Lower Mainland and Greater Victoria have a greater say in matters affecting urban areas.

"It is my view that it would be relatively simple for the UBCM to establish within the present organization a branch strictly devoted to the problems affecting metropolitan areas.

"This organization is wasting too much time discussing and debating problems which are of no importance whatsoever to the cities in which the majority of the people of this province live.

Mayor Stephen said he is gratified that Mayor Campbell had reconsidered his earlier decision to pull out of the UBCM.

"It is quite obvious that a city cannot be effective in absentia. The UBCM is in dire need of a forceful and useful opinion.

"I am totally in agreement with Mayor Campbell that the problems facing municipalities in B.C. are so diverse that specific representation of urbanized areas is essential."

Mayor Stephen said that by 1980 four of every five Canadians will be living in urban areas.

"In order to face up to the problems that situation will bring it becomes increasingly obvious that the urban areas must have a strong and united voice."

Mayor Stephen also agreed the UBCM is rurally oriented and added he is strongly in favor of Mayor Campbell's suggestion that reorganization must take place and take place soon.

Mayor Campbell said that it is ridiculous to try and run the UBCM on a $25,000 a year budget.

"How can the president of the UBCM come from a community like Williams Lake and be expected to efficiently lead cities like Vancouver and Victoria with their $40 million and $16 million annual budgets?"

He presented his annual report to the UBCM this morning. It was described by Mayor Campbell as a "tragic documentation of the futile efforts of the UCBM.

"I do not make this statement as a personal criticism of Mayor Gardner. I am sure he has done his best but his report states very clearly what I am talking about. It is full of words like 'frustrating' and 'stonewall' and it is obvious that this man, leading this organization, was unable to get to the provincial government."

Mayor Campbell said that he anticipates trouble in getting the opportunity to address the convention.

"They don't want to hear this sort of criticism," he said. "Privately, they all agree with what I'm saying but they don't want to rock the boat and prefer to continue in their own placid way. But they have to listen to me. And they will. I do not expect to win the fight this year, but win it I will."

Mayor Campbell will attempt to introduce several late resolutions from Vancouver Friday afternoon. He expects his request to be rejected by the delegates.

"But it will give me the opportunity to say to the convention what I am saying this morning."

most damaging storms ever to strike the Texas coast, where 9,000 persons have been killed by hurricanes in the last 150 years.

Many buildings in the little town of Palacios were levelled by the tornadoes to splintered planks sticking up two feet above the foundations.

Windows were blown out of buildings and cars throughout Brownsville. Shattered glass, planks and sheets of plywood nailed against windows ripped loose by the wind shot through the air.

Escapers Sought

MOOSE LAKE, Man. (CP)—A manhunt was on today for four prisoners who escaped Tuesday night from a provincial jail rehabilitation camp in southeastern Manitoba, overpowering a guard and seizing his rifle.

they would join the Liberals but this whole thing will be under discussion when he meet Monday morning."

Premier Bennett declined to make any comment and Herbert Bruch, provincial MLA for Esquimalt and national party president, could not be located for comment.

But B.C. Social Credit League president George Driedigger in Vancouver made it clear that some are braced to see more join Mr. Olson.

"I regret to see Mr. Olson leave because in my estimation he was and remains one of the finest MPs in the whole House," said Mr. Driedigger. "I just wish he hadn't left us at this particular time."

Mr. Driedigger said Premier Manning's book put all the party's federal members into a seriously difficult situation and "each of them is assessing his personal position and making a decision.

"I have no criticism to launch against any of our members who might make the same decision as Mr. Olson's. It's a personal decision."

Mr. Driedigger said he did not know as a fact that any more MPs would quit the party, "but we knew the book was going to cause us difficulties."

He said he was certain that whatever happens federally, it will not "hurt us provincially one bit."

But Mr. Driedigger said he has invited each of the five MPs to the B.C. provincial convention Nov. 2 and 3 in Vancouver "so they can outline their positions to us on this matter.

"I have no doubt they are very concerned (about the Manning book). They expressed that concern at the national council meeting on the 12th and 13th."

History shows that setbacks and victories by the federal wings have little effect on the provincial wings of all Canadian parties, he said.

"When the Diefenbaker administration collapsed it did not affect the Tory provincial administrations. The same is true for the Liberals and the same is true for us.

"It is almost impossible to project federal situations into provincial politics and vice versa. Davie Fulton's rejection in his own province as provincial leader and the CCF defeats in Saskatchewan have proved that."

GREATLY CONCERNED

"There is no doubt we are all greatly concerned about the impact of Mr. Manning's book but we realize that he called for a realignment only if the Conservatives would completely reorganize their party, "Mr. Patterson said.

"I don't think they have given any indication they are prepared to reform—in fact the whole proposition has received a very cool reception from the Tory spokesmen," said Mr. Patterson.

He said he was not planning to leave because, despite Mr. Olson's charges that the national party is dead, "I don't see any indication yet that it is prepared to fold up and in that context I have no plans to fold up either."

But he added that future courses of action will hinge on decisions that will be made at the impending national convention on Socred constitution and policy in January.

He denied Mr. Olson's statement that the national office has been abolished.

"We decided (at last week's council meeting) to suspend its operations but we are retaining the office.

He said his reasons also cover the publication by Premier Manning of Alberta of his book, Political Realignment: A Challenge to Thoughtful Canadians.

It called on Social Credit supporters to assist in reorganizing one of the two major political parties.

Mr. Olson said he has sent Premier Manning a copy of a letter to Mr. Patterson, resigning from the party and all appointments in the party caucus.

Mr. Olson said he plans to tell his constituents in a broadcast later this week of his decision and the reason for it.

ENDORSE VIEWS?

He said he doesn't think his constituency association executive and council endorse the views of Mr. Manning, widely interpreted as a bid to marry Social Credit and the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Olson was asked whether he will seek re-election to the Commons at the next general election as a Liberal.

"Probably," he replied.

He anticipated some difficulty in winning. The easiest course probably would have been to join the Conservatives because the combined Social Credit and PC vote in his riding represented about 85 per cent of the total votes cast.

He said he had informal invitations at various times to join the Conservatives. Mr. Olson read portions of his letter to Prime Minister Pearson informing him of the decision to apply for status as a Liberal.

It was dated Sept. 20 and was sent to Mr. Pearson shortly before the Olson press conference was called.

The Commons standing is: Liberals 130, Progressive Conservatives 94, NDP 22, Creditistes 8, Social Credit 5, Independents 3, vacant 3.

Mr. Olson's departure would leave four Social Credit MPs and raise the Liberal figure to 131, if he is accepted by the party.

Mr. Olson issued a press release which appeared to be almost word for word the contents of his letter to Mr. Patterson. It said in part:

"From my observations, the leaders of the Social Credit League of Alberta will continue to pursue the course of seeking an accommodation or 'marriage' with the Progressive Conservative party.

"My convictions and conscience, in keeping with the commitments I have made to the people of my constituency, prohibit me from endorsing or supporting this course."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Minor Pacific disturbances will bring occasional rain to the north coast and keep skies cloudy in the central interior Thursday. With the exception of the west coast of Vancouver Island southern regions will be mainly sunny and warm Thursday. However, cloud is expected to spread to some of the southern interior.
